GIANT MERGER IN FOOD TRADE IS ANNOUNCED

J. P. Morgan & Co. Unites Fleischmann, Royal and Gillett, Ltd.

NEW MOVE INVOLVES $500,000,000 CAPITAL

Company Now Considered Nucleus of Larger Consolidation.

WORLD-WIDE SELLING SYSTEM IS ACQUIRED

Capitalization Will Include 20,000,000 Common and 1,000,000 Preferred.

New York, June 20 (A.P.).—Creation of a new $500,000,000 food company to merge the Fleischmann Co., Royal Baking Powder Co. and E. W. Gillett Co., Ltd., of Canada, was announced today by J. P. Morgan & Co.

The merger, to be effected through an exchange of stock, is the third to be arranged this week by Morgan & Co. The name for the new company is to be selected later.

Joseph Wilshire, president of Fleischmann & Co. and one-time yeast packer, will be president of the new corporation. Donald K. David, executive vice president of Royal Baking Powder and former Harvard economics professor, will be vice president.

Directors will include Maj. Max C. Fleischmann and Mr. Wilshire, of Fleischmann Co.; William Ziegler, jr., and Mr. David, of Royal Baking Powder, and William Ewing and Henry P. Davison, of J. P. Morgan & Co.

The new company is considered in Wall street as the nucleus of a giant food company consolidation. Thomas Cochran, of J. P. Morgan & Co., in making the announcement, said other companies probably would be taken in later.

General Foods Co. to Join.

General Foods Co., organized recently to take over Postum Co.'s diversified line of food products, is expected by Wall street eventually to join this new Morgan company.

Fleischmann Co. makes nearly all of the compressed yeast sold in the United States. It is one of the largest manufacturers of distilled vinegar and is an important producer of malt and malt extract and of dried and wet grains for stock feed. Of its twelve yeast manufacturing plants, two make alcohol and eight vinegar.

Of most importance is Fleischmann's world-wide marketing organization. Through 900 selling agencies the company delivers direct to approximately 300,000 bakeries and retail distributors in the United States. In foreign countries sales are made either through distributors or direct to consumers. The company owns a group of tank cars and a chain of country elevators, purchasing a large part of its grain direct from the growers. Last year the company withdrew from the manufacture of gin and spirits in Canada.

Royal Baking Powder brings into the combine Chase & Sanborn Corporation, Boston tea and coffee distributors, in which it has a substantial financial interest. The new company will purchase Chase & Sanborn outright.

Largest Producer in Canada.

E. W. Gillett Co. is the largest producer of baking powder in Canada and has been controlled by Royal Baking Powder stockholders.

The new corporation will have a capitalization of 20,000,000 no par common shares and 1,000,000 no par 7 per cent dividend cumulative preferred shares. Both classes are voting stock.

The new company offers 2½ common shares for each Fleischmann common share, and one preferred share, or at the option of the stockholder 4 common shares, for each share of Fleischmann preferred. One common share is offered for each Royal Baking common share and one preferred share is given for each Royal Baking preferred share. Ten shares of the new company common are offered for each share of E. W. Gillett common.

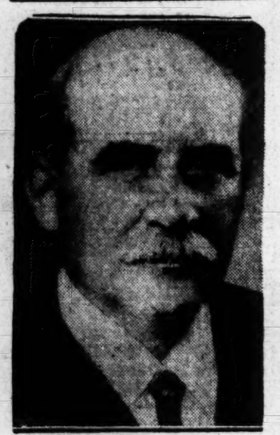

Application is to be made to list the certificates of deposit for the Fleischmann Co. common and the common and preferred of Royal Baking Powder on the New York Stock Exchange.

Mr. Wilshire, the President, has had an interesting career. Born in Cincinnati—home of the Fleischmann Co., 49 years ago, he landed his first job with a Cincinnati ice company. His next step upward was as an electrician's helper. Then he took a job as yeast packer in the Fleischmann's Cincinnati plant. Some of his friends considered this a step down the ladder of success. He served in various departments of the company and for a time was on the sales force of the Cincinnati agency. He later became general sales manager in Mexico. He was elected a vice president in 1919 and in 1920 was made vice president with headquarters in New York. He was chosen president in 1925.

Mr. David, a native of Idaho, is a graduate of the University of Idaho. He is a young man not quite in his fifties. As assistant dean and professor

YOUNG HEFLIN LOSES PERMIT TO DRIVE CAR

Pleads Not Guilty, Is Freed on $1,000 Bail Following Auto Crash.

TALKS FREELY OF CASE

James Thomas Heflin, jr., 28 years old, son of the senator from Alabama, yesterday lost his District automobile operator's permit as the result of his arrest on a charge of driving while drugged.

Traffic Director William H. Harland announced the action had been taken against young Heflin after an investigation of the case was completed by Assistant Traffic Director M. O. Eldridge.

Heflin pleaded not guilty and was freed in $1,000 bail for a jury trial on the charge when arraigned before Judge Isaac R. Hitt in Traffic Court in the morning.

Senator Heflin was not aware of his son's arrest until yesterday afternoon, according to Associated Press dispatches from Toledo, Ohio. The dispatches stated that Senator Heflin is satisfied his son was not under the influence of a drug while driving his automobile on Wednesday.

"The boy may have had a drink," the dispatch quoted the senator, "but I am sure he had nothing to do with narcotics. Of course, I'll stand by him. I will do everything I can to help him out."

While waiting to be arraigned in court young Heflin repeatedly asked newspaper men where he could get a drink.

"Right now I'm not worried about what my father will say about all this, but I know he'll say plenty. All that worries me now is where I can get a drink."

The young man was forced to wait two hours in the office of Milton S. Kronheim, professional bondsman, of 505 D street northwest, who secured his release, before his case was called. He then accompanied his attorney, Samuel F. Beach, son of former District Attorney Morgan Beach, to the courthouse. The proceedings lasted but a few minutes. Young Heflin left the courthouse in quest of another drink.

While waiting in Kronheim's office Heflin talked freely with newspaper men. His father's secretary, J. L. Thornton, warned him to "keep your mouth shut," but young Heflin waived the warning aside with the remark:

"Don't pay any attention to him."

In the course of the interview Heflin admitted that he had been "kicked out" of Alabama, Washington and Lee and George Washington Universities for drinking. He also talked freely about his now-famous return to New York City from a Panama trip a few months ago.

Heflin denied that he was under the influence of drugs when arrested Wednesday by Policeman C. S. Shelton, of the Traffic Bureau, at Seventh street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest. He

PROGRESSIVES TO "CRAM" FOR TARIFF BATTLE

Group Assigns Sections for Intensive Study by Individuals.

SPECIALISTS GIVEN FAMILIAR SUBJECTS

Protectionist Committee Will Find Senators Fully Armed.

WHEELER TO ASSIST G. O. P. DISSENTERS

Strength of Coalition Was Shown by Vote of Borah's Lost Limiting Resolution.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The Republican Progressives, before scattering for their homes yesterday, got together on a definite line of tariff attack.

Approximately fourteen of them, together with at least one Democrat, met in Senator La Follette's office, and for one thing apportioned subjects of the tariff among them. In the time intervening between now and August 19, when the Senate reconvenes, each senator is to familiarize himself thoroughly with the subject or subjects assigned to him and he will be relied upon to lead the fight on those items that he has specialized in.

Senator Norris, of Nebraska, was apparently the father of the get-together, while among the others present, besides Senator La Follette, were Senators Nye and Frazier, of North Dakota; Brookhart, of Iowa, and Howell, of Nebraska. Senator Wheeler, of Montana, was the Democrat in attendance. Neither Senator Borah nor Senator Johnson, of California, was in attendance, but this was not because of any lack of interest.

Invincibility Is Their Aim.

Brookhart and Frazier were given agricultural items, and so on down the line.

It is the view of the Progressives that by preparing for the fight in this manner they will be well night invincible. They will at least be as well organized and equipped to fight as the Senate finance committee or the Republican majority of it, which will carry the fight in favor of the bill. It will be, in fact, the first time that the committee haranguers will find themselves opposed by men as well-informed on the bill as they.

The committee members who go through with long hearings naturally are better equipped with arguments than those senators who have not served on the committee and have given attention to only such items as they are particularly interested in. It was with a view to removing this inequality that the Progressives virtually organized a committee to study the bill themselves.

It has been generally expected that the House will not recognize its bill when the Senate finance committee gets through with it, but it is to be more of a case of the committee not recognizing its bill when the Senate gets through with it.

Coalition Strength Shown.

The Progressive-Democratic coalition will have nothing to do with the framing of the committee bill. The Democrats are, of course, represented on the committee only in the minority and the Progressives have only one member on it, Senator Couzens, of Michigan. It is packed with hide-bound protectionists.

The vote on the Borah resolution, which would have confined the committee's revision to agricultural and

DRY KILLING SURVEY BEGINS OVER NATION

THEIR IDENTITY IS SOUGHT

(Associated Press.)

The casualty list of prohibition is being compiled by the Department of Justice.

In every State agents are listing both local and national officers killed in enforcing the Volstead act and also the violators or suspected violators of that law who have been killed.

This announcement yesterday was preceded by word that the State Department was to study the latest incident in the Federal campaign against liquor smuggling along the Canadian border—the firing on an American customs patrol boat in the Detroit River.

The Justice Department said no special significance was attached to compilation of the fatalities. The purpose of the survey was defined as merely to gather law enforcement information. Much similar data already have been made available to the investigating commission appointed by President Hoover. The commission yesterday continued its secret sessions formulating a program.

Treasury Asked for Report.

Secretary Stimson asked the Treasury Department for a report of the Detroit River shooting affray. While he did not indicate his purpose, Government officials asserted if the nationality and identity of the rum boat and its crew were established there was a possibility that the American Governmen might make representations to Canada seeking their apprehension and delivery to the American authorities. Information reaching the Government indicated the attacking craft had escaped into the Canadian waters of the river.

After the request of the Secretary of State, Assistant Secretary Lowman, of the Treasury, ordered the customs authorities at Detroit to report on the shooting. Lowman said he expected to receive and dispatch the report to Secretary Stimson today.

"The firing upon customs boats by bootleggers is nothing unusual," he declared.

State Department officials said there had been no correspondence between

Racing Stable Loss Is Held Deductible

Joseph E. and George D. Widener Relieved of Tax on Big Sums.

Philadelphia, June 20 (A.P.).—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals today decided that Joseph E. Widener and George D. Widener, widely known financiers and sportsmen, operate racing and breeding stables as "a business," and therefore may deduct from their income tax returns to the Government any losses sustained in their operation and maintenance. A similar view had been taken by the United States Board of Tax Appeals.

The decision saves Joseph Widener from paying Federal taxes on $446,824.15, which were the losses he suffered through the running of his stables from 1919 to 1922, and George Widener is relieved of paying assessments on $90,864.37 for the year 1919.

Hoover Signs Pay Bill For Capitol Employes

President Hoover yesterday signed the Capitol pay bill which provides increased salary for 2,496 employes in the legislative branch of the Government. The bill was enacted by Congress just before the recess.

Under the provisions of the bill secretaries to senators and representatives, clerks and other employes will receive increases totaling $877,897 annually.

Richey Will Not Sell Hoover's Fishing Camp

(Associated Press.)

Lawrence Richey, one of President Hoover's secretaries, said yesterday he had decided against selling his fishing grounds at Catoctin Furnace near Frederick, Md., in view of assurances of Frederick city and county officials that the few individuals protesting against his posting the place did not represent the sentiment of any appreciable number of the community.

HARBOR FORCE ADDS TO SEARCHING POSSE

Mayor Offers $1,000 Reward for Capture of Fleeing Murderer.

Sergt. Charles R. McClary, of the Alexandria police force, was shot and almost instantly killed in the semi-darkness of an alley at 525 North Patrick street in Alexandria at 9:05 o'clock last night by an unidentified colored assailant who escaped.

An intensive search by Virginia authorities, swelled by many emergency officers and armed volunteers, who also were aided by Washington police and the Harbor Precinct here, at an early hour this morning had proved unsuccessful.

Less than year ago, on August 19, 1928, Sergt. Elton B. Hummer, of the Alexandria police force, was slain under similar circumstances. Sergt. Hummer was killed in the street, supposedly by a man he had arrested a fortnight before on a statutory charge, who had jumped bail later.

Early this morning Mayor William Albert Smoot offered a reward of $1,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer of Sergt McClary.

News of the slaying swept through Alexandria like wildfire and for hours crowds of indignant citizens milled in front of the police station. Feeling of the populace ran high, but there was no demonstration except the appearance of hundreds in the downtown section long after midnight as suspect after suspect was led into the station for a lengthy grilling.

Was Hunting Rum Cache.

McClary was mortally wounded when he and Detective Sergt. Edgar Sims went to the North Patrick street residence occupied by Eugene and Mary Price, colored, to investigate a report that liquor was hidden there.

With Sims stationing himself back of the house at the end of an alley paralleling the structure, McClary maintained a brief guard in the front yard until he observed a colored man walking slowly toward him from the darkness of the passageway.

Reconstructing the scene from statements by Sims and by Thebe Reynolds, 30 years old, colored, of 527 North Patrick street, who was arrested by police as probably the only eyewitness aside from the murderer, McClary accosted the man and walked behind him into the semidarkness of the front yard.

"The man then backed away and fired straight at McClary two or three times," declared the Reynolds woman to The Post representative, through a hole in her jail cell door. "Sitting out in front of my house I saw the man grin a little and show his gold teeth and then wheel around and run away before McClary had even a chance to shoot."

Man Small, Says Woman.

"The man wasn't very large, but chunky, and he had on real dark clothes. Mr. McClary then started falling. I would know the man if I ever saw him, although I don't ever remember having seen him before."

Sims placed his fellow officer in an automobile and speeded to Alexandria Hospital, but McClary died on the way in gasping out, "They got me." His revolver was found secure in its holster. It had not been used.

Dr. Samuel Moore, coroner, and Dr. Thomas M. Jones, of the hospital, pronounced the policeman dead. Despite the fact that the Reynolds woman and the detective sergeant both reported the firing of several shots, the physicians found that death had been caused by a single steel-jacketed .32-caliber bullet, which pierced the left shoulder at an angle, penetrated through the throat and went out through the right shoulder.

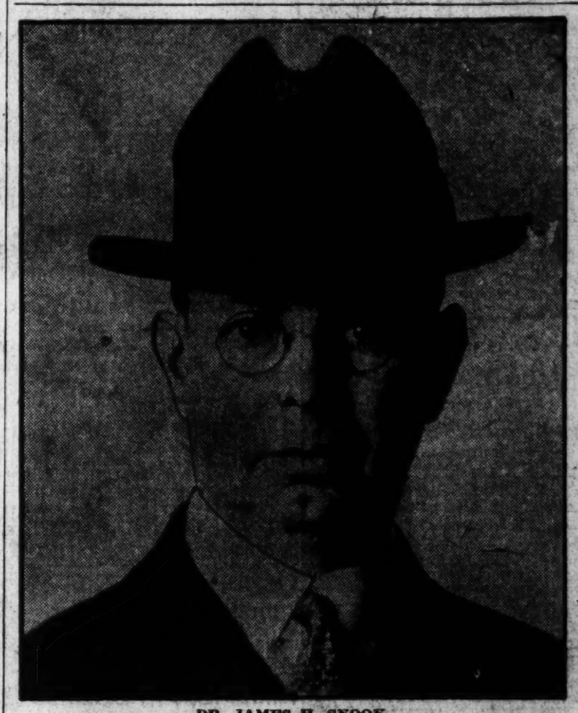

Three Persons Held.

Sims and City Manager Paul Morton, who had been summoned to the scene by a telephone call from an unknown party, arrested the Price couple and Clyde "Crip" Nelson, a colored man with an Alexandria police record, recently released from serving a jail sentence, who were found talking in the rear of the North Patrick street house.

The three, who were kept in close confinement at the jail, admitted that they had seen the murderer walking about the premises shortly before the shooting, but they repeatedly maintained that they did not know the man nor could they give his name. More than two-score colored men and women were brought into the police station singly and in small groups for

DR. SNOOK CONFESSES KILLING COED PROTEGE FOR THREATS TO WIFE

Struck Hix Girl With Hammer in Fight After Quarrel.

CONFESSION DEPICTS TERRIFIC STRUGGLE

TEARS AND COLLAPSE PRECEDE ADMISSIONS

Woman, Doctor Declares, Tried to Draw Gun; Spoke of Killing His Family.

Columbus, Ohio, June 20 (A.P.).—Dr. James H. Snook has confessed that he killed Theora K. Hix, Ohio State University coed, on a rifle range here last Thursday night. The confession is in the hands of John J. Chester, jr., county prosecutor.

The deposed Ohio State University professor of veterinary medicine signed a written confession that he struck Miss Hix on the head with a hammer, then severed her jugular vein with a pocket penknife and left her body on the range grounds following a violent quarrel in his coupe.

According to the confession, Snook said that Miss Hix climaxed a period of trying to dictate his movements by threatening his wife and child with death if he dared to leave the city with his family for the week-end. She then reached into her pocketbook where she sometimes carried a revolver Snook had previously given her, and in the struggle "she was hit" on the head with a hammer "with intent to stun her," the confession as related in the journal said.

Severed Jugular Vein.

Snook then severed her jugular vein, put the body out on the ground, hurriedly gathered up his things and left the spot, the statement reveals. On the way home he threw her purse into the Scioto River.

The doctor expressed to Chester a desire to "get it over with quickly" and told Chester that he would plead guilty to a first degree indictment, which Chester will seek before the grand jury tomorrow morning.

Chester, however, believes that Snook may change his mind and fight in court for a penalty less than electrocution, which is the sentence in Ohio for murder without a recommendation of mercy by a jury.

Dr. Snook's confession was made to Prosecutor Chester, Chief of Police Harry E. French, Chief of Detectives W. G. Shellenbarger, Detectives Otto Phillips and Larry Van Skiak and Deputy Sheriff Ralph Paul at 1 o'clock today, an hour after Snook broke down, began to cry, and said he murdered the 25-year-old coed, whose battered body was found last Friday on the rifle range. The confession climaxed 23 hours of almost continuous grilling of Snook at police headquarters and the county jail.

Close Friends Three Years.

According to this confession Snook met Miss Hix about three years ago and the friendship continued in an "intimate way" since then.

During the three years, Snook said he aided her in her education, but that "I found out it was not appreciated as much as I thought it should be." Their association was "not a love affair" and they had no thought of marriage. Miss Hix, he claims, "developed a more determined attitude in regard to dictating my movements."

He says that the "final culmination" occurred last Thursday night. He met her about 8:30 at Twelfth and High streets, drove out to the rifle range in his automobile and they then began to quarrel. The girl, Snook says, threatened his wife and baby with death if he

BISHOP SEES ATTACK IN STOCK DEAL TALE

CITES "THREATS" IN FALL

(Associated Press.)

Declaring the publication of accounts of his stock transactions an effort to weaken his influence on the eve of the Virginia political campaign, Bishop James Cannon, jr., said in a statement yesterday that he had engaged in various kinds of business transactions for 40 years.

Cannon characterized the telegrams exchanged late last October and early in November with Senator Glass and The Evening World attempts "to frighten and muzzle me." The messages had discussed his stock transactions.

"I heard nothing further of this matter until shortly after my letter of June 1 to the Anti-Smith Democrats appeared," he said. "Since that letter was published, I have learned that there has been renewed activity, from what sources I do not know, and intimations have come to me that my persistence in pressing my opposition to the national and Virginia State Democratic organization would bring on a personal attack in the press.

"As I knew of nothing dishonorable or disreputable involved in my purchases or sales of stocks, I still refused to be muzzled, and have pressed the battle with all possible vigor to this hour."

His name was carried in news stories from New York Wednesday as having been among those who had accounts with Kable & Co., a New York stock firm which had filed a petition in bankruptcy.

Cannon's statement called attention to a series of telegrams he said had been exchanged between himself and Senator Glass, a Virginia Democrat, and with the New York Evening World during the recent presidential campaign in which he took an active part. All

BORAH AND HOWARD TALK SEA FREEDOM

Senator and Envoy Exchange Views on Closer Anglo-U. S. Relations.

FRANK DISCUSSION HELD

Naval reduction, freedom of the seas and closer relations between the United States and Great Britain were the subject of an informal talk yesterday afternoon between Sir Esme Howard and Senator Borah.

The conversation was described as an informal chat between the British Ambassador and the chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee covering in a general way the questions brought to the fore by the recent moves of President Hoover and Prime Minister MacDonald, looking toward a rapprochement between the two governments.

Senator Borah entertains some very definite views concerning the need for clearly defining the freedom of the seas, feeling that this issue has been perhaps the greatest obstacle to an agreement for further reduction or limitation of naval armaments. This view of the senator is widely shared. In fact, in all gatherings where disarmament has been discussed the freedom of the seas has loomed up strongly in the background.

Sir Esme and Senator Borah exchanged views frankly on this and other matters. The discussion was most friendly.

What actually passed between the two men was not disclosed. It is assumed, however, that the British Ambassador desired to learn the views of Senator Borah directly, while the senator was equally interested in going over various matters with Sir Esme in person.

The freedom of the seas issue is conceded to be a knotty one by men who have given it deep study, and who see no prospect of a definitive agreement in the immediate future, even though Senator Borah has expressed

First Post-Fox Screen Tests Start Contest in Earnest

Initial Shots Expected to Start Rush of New Entrants.

The Post-Fox screen test contest is on in earnest. First tests for those entered in the competition were taken yesterday at the Wardman Park Hotel, and other tests will be made as soon as contestants qualify and can be accommodated.

With only a few hours left in the first week of the contest, many Capital residents are taking advantage of the chance to earn a screen test by securing six subscriptions to the Sunday Post, because the requirement for those entering in the second week is eight subscriptions, while for the third week the number has been set at ten.

It is all so easy that those who have qualified and taken their tests are spreading the news to their friends. A rush of entries is expected to follow taking of the first tests when those who have declined to enter so far find out just how easy it is to make an appearance before the camera.

Many have considered the contest a difficult proposition, believing that

Richmond, Va., June 20.—Ultimate division of the Methodist Episcopal Church South was predicted here today by Bishop Collins Denny unless political activities of churchmen cease. Bishop Denny was speaking against sending to President Hoover a resolution which had been offered following an address here Wednesday by Bishop James Cannon, jr., militant dry and political crusader of the church, which was incorporated as an amendment to a conference report on temperance and social service.

Discussion of political activity of the church precipitated a violent session, with the presiding elder forced to make frequent rulings as to who had the floor. Only three members of a large committee signed a minority report submitting the document on temperance and social reform without the amendment, which later was passed dared go out of the city for the week-end with them.

Then, the confession states, the coed reached for the revolver. There was a struggle. Snook reached for a hammer and struck her on the head with intent, he says, to stun her. "She continued to fight desperately and an increased number of blows of increasing force was necessary to stop her," he continued.

Slew to End Suffering.

Snook claims that he thought her skull was fractured and that she was suffering, so he severed her jugular vein with his knife. Some of his things had scattered during the struggle and he retrieved them, left her body on the ground and drove away.

He had the hammer on the back part of the seat of his car, he said, and he put this in the back of his machine as he drove away. He went over the quarry bridge on the Scioto on the way home and tossed Miss Hix's purse, from which the revolver was missing, into the water. He could not account for the missing revolver at the time, but believed it dropped out during the struggle. The revolver was found in Miss Hix's apartment shortly after her death. When Dr. Snook was first implicated he admitted giving it to the girl for her own protection.

In his confession Snook does not say that he killed her with the hammer, he said he used it "to quiet her." But he does say, "I severed her jugular with my pocket knife." The prosecutor said that he will base his demand for a first-degree indictment on premeditation grounds, saying that Snook's admissions would bring the death penalty, whether or not the case goes to trial before a jury.

Confession Is Held Up.

At the bottom of his confession Snook says that he made the statement voluntarily, that no one threatened him or promised him anything for making it, and that he told the truth about the murder.

The confession was held up this afternoon by Chester because he had promised Snook, at the latter's request, that it be not revealed until tomorrow. It was indicated that Snook wanted time to compose himself and prepare a statement for the press.

The day was crammed with conflicting reports and rumors of a confession. Three times before noon it was said that Snook had confessed, but each time Chester denied it. This morning Shellenbarger announced that the doctor had confessed just before 6:30 o'clock, but Chester denied this.

Shellenbarger's statement followed one by Detective Phillips in which Phillips quoted Snook as saying that he had taken the key to their room from the girl's key ring at the scene of the crime. Phillips maintained this was a confession of guilt.

Other keys found on the broken ring fit into locks of her safety deposit box, the apartment she shared with two other girls, and her trunk. Phillips pointed out that Snook had turned in his key and the girl's key to their clandestine apartment on Friday before the body was found. But this belief was temporarily unsustained as Snook continued to deny such admissions and Chester denied that a confession had been made.

Message "Breaks" Snook.

Just before noon, in the final questioning in Chief French's office, Snook began to weaken under the fire of the officials. He was maintaining his "hard-boiled" bravado when fate intervened.

He was talking when Chief French's secretary opened the door.

"Message from Dr. Long, the chemist," she said.

Chester took it and Snook gasped.

Chester glanced over it, smiled, told Snook to stop talking and handed the message to the professor.

It said that the chemist had found that stains found on the knees of trousers Snook sent out to be dry cleaned were blood stains.

Snook read it calmly, but shuddered as he finished. He appeared to "wilt," Chester asserted, and "from then on it was just getting the detailed confession."

The deposed professor began to bicker and fight for time. He was making up his mind what to do and say. He stammered and appeared more befuddled than during the early morning questioning. Then he began to cry. Chester said he "cried like a baby" for half or three-quarters of an hour. Shellenbarger summoned the stenographer, and the confession then was secured, though kept secret for some time.

Game to the Last.

Dr. Snook was "game to the last," the questioners said. He had maintained his air of bravado from the time he was apprehended last Saturday morning and the officials, realizing they were dealing with a man of high mental caliber, did not go near him at the county jail until they had disposed of all other persons connected with the case.

Another intimate friend of the coed's, Marion T. Meyers, an instructor in the College of Agriculture, was also taken into custody when it became known that he had been seen with the girl recently. He was grilled several times and eventually proved his innocence. The authorities declared he "had an aptitude for getting mixed up with trouble when he was actually innocent" and then released him. Meyers' fraternity brothers put up good alibis for him, and this did much to help secure his release.

Before released Meyers told Chester and French that he was "afraid of Snook," and this led Chester to believe that Meyers knew of Snook's movements the night of the murder.

The confession refutes statements by a taxi driver that he had driven Miss Hix to a certain address the night of the murder and that she was agitated. It also refutes statements by other persons who were called, or who volunteered information. And the confession places the crime on the shoulders of the man who had been suspected from the start.

Three men were injured, one seriously, when the automobile in which they were riding crashed off the Baltimore pike about 3 miles south of Laurel, Md., at 1:45 o'clock yesterday morning and overturned in attempting to avoid colliding with another car.

James A. Bernhert, 31 years old, of 1203 I street northeast, driver of the car, is at Casualty Hospital suffering from serious lacerations of the scalp, a possible fracture of the spine and abrasions about the body. He was reported in a critical condition.

Hugh Brown, 28 years old, of 1000 Rittenhouse street northwest, was treated at Casualty Hospital for a possible fracture of the skull. His condition was reported as fair.

Leo Clements, 21 years old, of 1677 Wisconsin avenue northwest, the third occupant of the car, received bruises about the body and abrasions about the hips and shoulders. After being given medical aid at the hospital, he was discharged.

The fleet will make a 50-000-mile tour of the United States, Canada and Central America.

PLANS TOLD AT LUNCHEON

Led by the General Jim, which was christened at Bolling Field yesterday by Mary Fechet, daughter of Maj. Gen. James E. Fechet, chief of Air Corps, eight Aristocrat monoplanes will take off today from Washington for a tour of the United States, which will cover approximately 50,000 miles. The tour is being sponsored by the General Tire Co., owners of the planes.

The entire fleet is piloted by former members of the First Pursuit Group, U. S. Army Air Corps, who have been engaged by the General Tire Co. to take the planes over their scheduled route. Maj. C. H. Maranville, former World War flier, is in command of the fleet.

Preceding the christening ceremonies, the eight pilots and other persons interested in the tour met at luncheon at the Mayflower Hotel. W. O'Neil, president of the General Tire Co., spoke at the luncheon, predicting some unusual developments in aircraft for which the rubber industry will be responsible.

"The rubber industry," O'Neil said, "is working hand in hand with aviation to develop the safe plane. We believe that within a short time the rubber industry will have developed safeguards which will protect planes in crashes with pneumatic shields. In other words, we are working for a plane which will bounce instead of crack up if it is forced to land."

Other speakers at the luncheon were C. S. Rieman, president of the General Airplane Corporation, manufacturers of the eight planes used by the General Tire Co. in its tour; Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts; Representative W. Frank James, of Michigan, and Maj. Clarence M. Young, Director of the Department of Aeronautics, Department of Commerce. Guests of honor included Gen. Fechet, Mrs. Fechet, Miss Fechet, Frank Tichenor, editor of Aero Digest; Lieut. Elwood R. Quesada, and William E. Leahy, Washington attorney. H. M. Harvey, sales manager of the General Tire Co., presided.

162 New Airplanes Purchased by Army

Ninety Will Be Air-Cooled Pioneers in Military Operations.

Assistant Secretary of War F. Trubee Davison yesterday approved contracts for 162 new airplanes for the Army Air Corps involving an expenditure of $5,000,000.

Ninety of the planes will be a new pursuit type powered with a "Wasp" air-cooled engine. This marks the first time in the history of the Air Corps that quantity production has been started on a pursuit plane that is powered by other than a water-cooled engine. Ten planes of this type were recently delivered to the Air Corps for trial and proved to be satisfactory in every respect, it was said. The Boeing Airplane Co. will manufacture the planes.

Of the remaining 72 planes contracted for, 41 are O-1E Curtiss Observation type, 28 are Curtiss A-3B attack type and three are experimental types. The experimental planes will be sent upon completion to the material division, Wright Field, for exhaustive tests to determine their suitability for Air Corps use. They are radical departures from service type planes heretofore used in the Army. Two are designated as the XO-27 and are bimotored three-seater monoplanes, observation type, manufactured by the Fokker Co., while the third is a two-seater pursuit type manufactured by the Berliner-Joyce Aircraft Corporation.

Body of McKinley Student Is Found

Funeral for Youth Who Drowned in Potomac Is Set for Today.

Harbor Precinct police yesterday afternoon found the body of Bernard Kaplan, McKinley High School student, near the spot where he was drowned Wednesday afternoon in the Potomac River at Widewater Creek, Md.

The body was recovered by Harbor Policemen C. Spring, B. O. Hayes and C. N. Burkett in dragging the bottom of the river and was turned over to Maryland police for the boys' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kaplan, who operate a delicatessen store at 1334 Fourteenth street northwest.

Classmates of the boy will act as pallbearers at funeral services which will be held this afternoon from the home. Dr. J. T. Loeb will officiate. Interment will be in National Capital Hebrew Cemetery. The body is at the Bernard Danzansky funeral parlors.

Bandit Patient 'Operates' On Doctor Successfully

Chicago, June 20 (A.P.).—"What you need," said Dr. F. Siegfried Jackson, examining a transient patient at his office last night, "is to have your tonsils taken out. I'll operate tomorrow."

"And I," said the patient, drawing a pistol, "will operate now."

Somewhere in Chicago today there was a man with $210 of Dr. Jackson's money and a pair of tonsils that needed taking out.

Bert Hinkler Plans New Record Flight

Briton Who Flew to Australia and Return Receives Gold Medal.

Copenhagen, June 20 (U.P.).—Bert Hinkler, British aviator, announced today that he plans to start another sensational flight, probably from England, within the next few months.

Hinkler, who was awarded the International Aeronautic Congress Gold Medal this morning for his flight from England to Australia and back, declined to reveal any further information about his plan. He said he would stay in England for the next two months before attempting the proposed flight.

President Count Vaux presented the gold medal to the famous flier, explaining that Hinkler's flight was a "milestone in the evolution of airtouring." Hinkler was cheered by the assembly of aviation representatives from all parts of the world. He later signed his name in the federation's Gold Book, which contains only the names of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, Francisco de Pinedo and Sir Alan Cobham—all winners of the gold medal.

In explaining to the congress the advances of aviation in various countries, the Danish flier, Capt. Ramm, said United States mail pilots flew 13,926,000 kilometers and carried 1,842 tons of freight on the regular American routes in 1928.

Ventilation System For Senate Begun

Work Starts on Installation Similar to That Enjoyed by Representatives.

A squad of workmen invaded the Capitol yesterday and began the task of installing the new air conditioning system in the Senate chamber. The work is scheduled to be completed before Congress reconvenes on August 19.

With the completion of the system the senators will have the same comfort that the representatives have had for some time. With the system working, all air taken into the Senate chamber, the visitors' galleries and the press galleries will be filtered, washed, humidified or dehumidified, depending on the prevailing conditions out-of-doors.

The work is being done under the direction of Willis H. Carrier, thermal engineer, who also installed the system in use in the House.

Mix Recovers $75,000.

Concord, N. H., June 20 (A.P.).—The bag containing cash and securities reported valued at $75,000 which Tom Mix, motion picture actor told police at Portsmouth had been stolen from a private car in which he was traveling with the Sells Floto Circus, was found later today hidden in a power box under one of the circus cars.

KINSHIP OF JURYMEN HALTS M'GUNN TRIAL

FACES CONTEMPT CHARGE

New York, June 20 (A.P.).—The prosecution of James McCunn, bootlegger to big business, and his three associates ended in a mistrial today after discovery that a member of the jury was a nephew by marriage to the chief defendant.

The juror was Edwin J. Carroll, a clerk, who had sworn he did not know McCunn and had never seen him until the trial started three days ago, but who declared at the opening of court this morning that McCunn resembled the man who had married his aunt. McCunn is a brother of the husband of Carroll's aunt. Authorities said an anonymous note disclosed the relationship.

Federal Judge Edwin R. Holmes, of Mississippi, who presided at the trial, immediately declared a mistrial, and United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle said he would ask that Carroll be punished for contempt of court. The Federal attorney also asked the grand jury to investigate "as to whether there was any connection between the presence of this nephew on the jury and the extraordinary complacency with which the defendant McCunn conceded at the trial his unlawful possession, purchasing, transporting, warehousing importing and sale of huge quantities of illegal liquor, and presented a defense which was a mere quibble as to the meaning of the word conspiracy."

Replying to this, M. Michael Edelstein, counsel for McCunn, who defeated the Government in several recent night club conspiracy cases, said:

"The reason why the defense conceded that liquor was sold, possessed, transported and imported was they were not charged with those offenses, which are substantive offenses, but they were charged with conspiracy. The defendants could be guilty of all the substantive offenses and still not be guilty."

Edelstein, who was among three defense lawyers, made much of testimony from eleven "blue ribbon" witnesses—including bankers, brokers and business leaders—that they had long purchased McCunn's product and found it the best.

The defense fought against testimony and evidence that would support the indictment for conspiracy to violate the prohibition law, the charge on which McCunn, Edward Maloney, Frank Collins and John H. Spellman were being tried.

After the mistrial was declared Judge Holmes put the case over until the July term of Federal Court. The Government had completed its case yesterday, and the defense was to have opened today.

The four on trial were arrested after dry agents last February seized $500,000 worth of high-grade liquors and lists of wealthy patrons in raids on the Monroe Lamp & Equipment Co. in Manhattan and the International Postal Supply Co. in Brooklyn.

Only One Flier Present As Stowaway Departs

Paris, June 20 (A.P.).—Only one of the Yellow Bird fliers, Armeno Lotti, jr., accompanied Arthur Schreiber, who stowed away on the plane on its transatlantic flight, to the Leviathan boat train today as he left Paris for the United States.

The stowaway seemed contrite and somewhat anxious. He shook hands with Lotti before the photographers and they kissed each other on both cheeks.

Schreiber said: "I am glad to go home, but I am sorry I can't go with a little different story."

Sir Esme's Dinner in Honor Of Ganns Is Moist Affair

Sir Esme, in Diplomatic Move, Fixes Social Status of Vice President's Sister and Husband; Cellar Apparently Well Stocked.

Although Sir Esme Howard, the British Ambassador, announced recently that he would not sign requests of the embassy staff for shipments of alcoholic liquor, his dinner last night in honor of Vice President Curtis and Mrs. Edward Everett Gann was wet.

The dinner, according to those who attended, gave every evidence that the British Embassy's cellar is well stocked and that the attaches will not suffer the effects of prohibition before a new a new ambassador arrives.

At the time Sir Esme wrote his letter to James Carter, an ardent prohibitionist in Richmond, many persons expressed skepticism. The British foreign office, in an official communication, stated that Sir Esme could do as he pleased but that his successor would not be bound by any agreement he might have made to forego diplomatic immunity in the importation of liquor.

The dinner also put to an end any further discussion as to the social status of Mrs. Gann, the Vice President's sister. Sir Esme placed Mrs. Gann on his right, and as he is dean of the Diplomatic Corps, the question was settled once and for all.

Sir Esme also settled the question where to seat Mr. Gann. This has been a problem that has bothered Washington hostesses almost as much as that of seating Mrs. Gann.

George W. Wickersham, chairman of President Hoover's law enforcement committee, was among the guests. Representative Ruth Bryan Owen, daughter of the late William Jennings Bryan, prohibition crusader, was another.

FARMER AND GIRL, 13, JAILED AS WIFE DIES

LOVE TRIANGLE IS HINTED

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., June 20.—Edward Spitler, 27, a farmer living in the foothills of the Massanutten Mountain, east of Mount Jackson, and his 13-year-old sister-in-law, Fannie Bynaker, were arrested by Shenandoah County authorities today in connection with the death of Mrs. Ella Bynaker Spitler, the wife and sister of the pair, early yesterday morning.

Mrs. Spitler died, apparently, from the effects of poison, and following a report by Coroner W. C. Ford, the Shenandoah Commonwealth's attorney, Otto V. Pierce, ordered the arrest of the husband and sister. The coroner's report to the Commonwealth's attorney at Woodstock was as follows:

"Mrs. Edward Spitler came to her death from poisoning, and from evidence obtained and the fact that the husband and sister of the deceased did not attempt to render any aid and left Mrs. Spitler and her children, I think that the case warrants further investigation."

The developments in the case are that coincident with the death screams of Mrs. Spitler at 1 o'clock Wednesday morning, the husband and Bynaker girl fled from the isolated home and left with the dying mother three small children. Neither Spitler nor Miss Bynaker returned to the room after they heard the woman scream. Mystery is further added to the allegation that an undertaker was summoned before a doctor was called, and inasmuch as neither Spitler nor Miss Bynaker entered the room after the death scream, officers are perplexed at their summoning of the undertaker if they did not know that the woman was dead.

Two notes, purporting to be in Mrs. Spitler's handwriting, are in possession of officers. In these notes the writer seeks to show that the mother took her own life and that her husband was innocent of any charge. One of the notes expresses the wish that the husband "now will be able to enjoy the pleasure of the one he really loves, with me out of the way" and hints that Spitler had threatened to leave home. Spitler admits that he and his wife had quarreled before she retired and that he had threatened to leave home. He and the Bynaker girl also told officers that they did not go into the room after Mrs. Spitler screamed. Analysis of the contents of a glass in the room beside Mr. Spitler's wife disclosed a deadly poison. No autopsy was performed on the body because it already had been embalmed before the coroner was summoned to the scene.

Mrs. Rita Lydig, Ill, Taken to Hospital

Nature of Ailment of Late Dr. Grant's Fiancee Is Not Disclosed.

New York, June 20 (A.P.).—Mrs. Rita de Acosta Lydig was taken from her suite at the Ambassador Hotel today to the Neurological Hospital at the medical center for observation.

Mrs. Lydig was prominent in news several years ago when she announced her engagement to the Rev. Dr. Percy Stickney Grant had been broken because Bishop William T. Manning refused to give his consent to the marriage in the Protestant Episcopal Church because she had been divorced. Dr. Grant died later.

At the hotel, where Mrs. Lydig had occupied the suite for three years, it was said nothing was known of her illness until an ambulance arrived, when it was learned she had been ill for three days. She was taken to the hospital by her personal physician, whose name was not disclosed.

DePriest Hits Back At Southern Critics

Denies Social Equality Was Involved in Tea at White House.

(Associated Press.)

Representative Oscar DePriest, negro, of Illinois, issued a statement yesterday declaring that no question of social equality was involved in the attendance of his wife at a White House tea recently.

"It's all a lot of moonshine for any one to suggest that a question of social equality was involved in my wife's going to a White House tea," he said. "My wife was invited not because she was white or black, Republican or Democrat. She was invited because she happened to be the wife of a man who was a member of Congress."

He added that Southern Democrats were trying to "help themselves politically in those Southern States that voted against Al Smith."

"The political effect will be to drive all colored votes back into the Republican party," he said.

Eleven Immigrants Feared Slain by Cuban Boat Crew

Blood-Spattered Launch Believed Scene of Crime; Sailors Tell of Bargains Made With Alleged Victims for Entry to United States.

Havana, Cuba, June 20 (U.P.).—Police announced tonight that bloodstains on the motor launch Del Rio and conflicting stories told by members of the vessel's crew indicated that eleven immigrants who were attempting to slip into the United States had met with foul play after engaging passage.

Four members of the crew were arrested when they returned here after an unusually short voyage. It was said the immigrants had engaged passage to the nearest point on the American coast, and Capt. Bernardo Sanstre of the Del Rio, admitted that he was engaged in immigrant running, police said.

Sastre claimed he landed his last group of passengers at a place called La Herradura, near Key West. Members of the crew, however, told the court that they landed the immigrants about 30 miles west of Havana, in Pina del Rio province.

Police said that blood-stained clothing was found on the vessel and that a stool pigeon, Diaz Ancomedo, had represented himself as an immigrant and engaged passage with Sastre for $400 in marked bills. No word has been received from Ancomedo.

Antonio del Valle, bridgekeeper of the Havana electric street car bridge spanning the Almendares River, up which the Del Rio usually passed, was arrested on charges of aiding the men. Police said he received $40 each time he opened the low bridge for the Del Rio to pass out to sea.

Supporting their suspicion of foul play, police said that detectives had arrived on the dock to arrest the crew of the Del Rio after Ancomedo and the ten other passengers went aboard. The motor launch escaped, however, and fled out to sea.

Police believe that the captain knew he was under suspicion.

HEK WAKEFIELD HIT BY MYSTERY SHOTS

Alabama Police Are Silent on Wounding of Grid Star in Birmingham.

JUSTICE'S SON ACCUSED

Birmingham, Ala., June 20 (A.P.).—Chief of Police Fred H. McDuff today revealed that H. E. "Hek" Wakefield, banker and 1925 all-American football selection, was shot twice at 2 o'clock Monday morning in front of the residence of Junius Walthall, brother of Henry B. Walthall, the actor, in Mountain Brook Estates, exclusive residential section, here.

The official report of the shooting was made to Chief McDuff by Officers McGuire and Salser. It said Wakefield was shot in the left thigh and right hand with a small-caliber pistol. Wakefield was "resting comfortably" at St. Vincent's Hospital today.

The officers reported that the shooting was done by Tom H. Crumpton, real estate dealer and son-in-law of Justice Virgil Bouldin, of the Alabama Supreme Court. Crumpton was arrested, the report said, although the nature of the charge was not announced. At neither the county nor the city jails was there a record of the case. It was explained that the arresting officers could have released Crumpton on his own recognizance and that the case could be docketed when ready for trial.

McGuire refused to discuss the affair, saying the principals had requested that it be given no publicity, to which he had acquiesced. Salser was having a day off and could not be located. Chief McDuff said his only information was contained in the report of the investigating officers.

Wakefield declared he was "all right" today and refused to discuss the case. Crumpton could not be found at his office. He is a son of a prominent Maplesville, Ala., family. The shooting was understood to have taken place following a gathering of friends at Walthall's residence. None would discuss details.

Officials of St. Vincent's said Wakefield was brought to the hospital by two men, who left immediately after the patient was removed to the operating room. The report to police came from St. Vincent's.

Wakefield is a member of a prominent Memphis, Tenn., family. He was one of the sensations of the 1925 football season as an end at Vanderbilt University. He is manager of the Birmingham branch of Caldwell & Co., Nashville banking and bond house.

They Call It Politics

By CARTER FIELD

CARTER GLASS' charge that President Hoover is "submerging" prohibition in his law enforcement investigating commission comes on the heels of the very bitter disappointment of such outstanding wets as Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, at this same "submerging." The Wets sincerely hoped that such an investigation as Mr. Hoover proposed would lead to such a showing of graft, scandal, murder and whatnot that an enraged country would immediately demand the instant repeal of the Volstead act, if not the eighteenth amendment itself.

Most of the Drys have been highly satisfied with Mr. Hoover's program, knowing precisely where Mr. Hoover proposed the investigation would lead, and approving heartily the objects they knew he desired.

Mr. Glass, as usual, surprises every one by his attack. He generally takes stands that were totally unexpected, and always proves his total independence of entangling alliances.

FOR example, when he attacked the New York bankers who dared to loan money on the call market this spring, Mr. Glass at once demanded the removal of President Mitchell of the National City Bank as an officer of the New York Reserve Bank. He lifted his lance in defense of the Reserve Board at a moment when members of the board were more than a little worried about the possible consequences of their constrictive policy against speculative loans. Privately most of them were highly pleased that the National City Bank had "saved" the market on that particular day. They wanted a gradual deflation, not a crash.

There was his novel attack on Candidate Hoover during the campaign. "Of course he fed the Belgians," Mr. Glass sneered to Virginia audiences he was trying to hold in line against the wiles of Bishop Cannon. "What did you think he could do with all that food Woodrow Wilson sent over there—eat it?"

Also he squelched the almost unsquelchable Heflin back in the days when John Skelton Williams was persecuting W. P. G. Harding, then governor of the Federal Reserve Board, through Heflin as his mouthpiece. Heflin made virtually the same kind of an attacking speech for a good many days running. Interrupted by Mr. Glass, Heflin accused Glass of not having listened to his attack.

"I have listened to that speech a good many times since I heard John Skelton Williams make it to you," retorted Glass.

IT doesn't take long for feeling to reach white heat in an encounter, if Carter Glass is one of the parties to it, and the old, beautiful friendship between Glass and Bishop Cannon was thoroughly riddled in the last presidential campaign. So it would surprise no one watching the interesting developments now unfolding in the politics of the Old Dominion if Bishop Cannon launched a counterattack at the Virginia senator.

For it so happens that Mr. Glass, though a dry of many years' standing a dry who fought shoulder to shoulder with Bishop Cannon to get a law enforcement plank at Houston, has for the second time, in the view of the Cannonites, taken the wet side of an argument.

The first time, of course, was when he decided to support Alfred E. Smith, despite previous statements that Smith was certain to be defeated, not because he was a Catholic, but because he was a wet.

This time he wants President Hoover to stop "submerging" prohibition in the law enforcement commission inquiry. So do the wets. So does not Bishop Cannon.

PRESIDENT HOOVER'S original purpose in the Law Enforcement Commission was to take advantage of the tense feeling for and against prohibition, and of the enormous public interest in that topic, to work out a reform in the court procedure and administration of justice generally in the United States. He hoped, as he told many friends then and since, to bring this country's law-enforcement mechanism up to a par, at least, with those of Great Britain.

Assuming complete success for this program, the net results would not affect the slightest change in either the Volstead act or the eighteenth amendment. The dry leaders, including Bishop Cannon, realized this perfectly. As they do not want the laws changed, this was entirely satisfactory to them.

But, continuing on the assumption of complete success for the Hoover program, it would mean a speeding up of the lagging wheels of justice, and it would not be an unreasonable assumption to believe that bootleggers would be landed in jail much more quickly than at present. For that the dry leaders had nothing but enthusiasm.

ALL of which is the more curious, especially if one considers the increasing dryness of public statements by Mr. Hoover—notably in his call this week on the people living in Canadian border towns to join in suppressing the rings of "international criminals"—in view of what brought all this about. For, until Mr. Hoover was nominated no one considered him an outstanding dry.

At Paris during the peace conference he drank wine with apparent enjoyment while discussing the pressing problems of the hour with Henry Morganthau and other lieutenants of Woodrow Wilson. When he became a Cabinet member, in 1921, he became personally bone dry, regarding that as the proper thing to do. He did not think a high Government official should disregard the law. But it was not Hoover who made the wet and dry issue paramount in the last campaign.

The activities of the wet supporters of Smith, and the speeches of the governor himself, plus the activities of the dry Democrats in the South, however, made the result of the election look to Mr. Hoover like a dry mandate—certainly a dry enforcement mandate.

But Mr. Glass accuses him of "submerging" prohibition!

BISHOP DENNY SEES MENACE OF POLITICS

by a recorded vote of 76 to 26, and pledged the hearty cooperation and support of the church conference to President Hoover.

It had been argued that the proposed resolution contained the gist of the one passed by the Methodist College of Bishops. In this connection Bishop Denny said that Bishop Cannon had neglected, in his speech here Wednesday to mention that the action of the College of Bishops on the Hoover resolution had not been unanimous, but that Bishops Denny and Warren A. Candler, of Atlanta, had dissented.

"I feel very deeply about this," Bishop Denny said. "I do not think it is within the sphere of the church to do such things. I fear that it means the ultimate division of the Methodist Church, for many will refuse to be dragged, as a church, into politics."

SCREEN TESTS BEGIN CONTEST IN EARNEST

while securing the subscriptions might be easy, that taking the screen test was something they could not do. There are no requirements for the test except that each contestant be as natural as possible. No acting is necessary, for what the motion picture producers are seeking are new faces rather than accomplished actors and actresses.

In being natural, adults entered in the contest will do well to follow the lead of the children who have qualified. Pictures of the children have invariably turned out well simply because they do not try to pose or "cut up." The more natural the pose, the more likely contestants are to be among the first ten who will have their tests sent on to the Fox Film Corporation executives for review. These ten will also receive six months passes to the Fox Washington Theater, where results of all the screen tests will be shown. The Fox people are cooperating with The Washington Post in offering residents of the Capital and vicinity this opportunity of "crashing" the movies.

John E. Campbell, director-producer of the contest for The Post, calls attention to the fact that many of the present-day stars of he films were discovered through tests similar to that in The Post-Fox contest. Any one, whether he be a year old or a hundred years old, is eligible to compete. Picture directors are seeking not only handsome youths and beautiful girls for future stars, but character actors and actresses, children and men and women who can do "bits." It is a chance to have your face flashed before men who decide the fates of those who gather in the huge salaries and the glories that go with a place in the motion pictures.

All information regarding the contest, the nature of the test and other details may be obtained from Mr. Campbell on the fourth floor of The Post building, or by calling Main 4205.

Good Hope Road Work Will Cost $140,208

Cost to the District of Columbia for the proposed widening of Good Hope road and Alabama avenue southeast from Seventeenth street to the District line was set at $140,208.58 by the verdict of a condemnation commission made yesterday to Justice Peyton Gordon in the District Supreme Court.

The jury, composed of Charles O. Paxson, Mark Solan, P. R. Rogers, Charles Ockershausen and Benjamin Carow, reported the land necessary for the extension was worth $142,157.78, and cost of the proceeding would bring the total to $143,988.38. Benefits on adjacent property were assessed at $3,779.80, leaving the net cost $140,208.58.

DEBENTURE BATTLE REVIVED BY GRANGE

Only Means of Obtaining Tariff Benefits on Surplus Crops, Says Master.

APPEALS TO SENATORS

(Associated Press.)

Less than 24 hours after Congress quit work to await a report on the House tariff bill, the controversial export debenture plan was revived yesterday by its original sponsor—the National Grange—as the only method by which the grower of surplus crops could obtain tariff benefits.

L. J. Taber, master of the grange, placed the proposal before the Senate finance subcommittee holding hearings on the agriculture schedule of the bill and said unless it were approved by the Senate, "there would be a different story to tell."

He added he was optimistic over its prospects as a rider to the tariff measure, despite its overwhelming rejection by the House as a part of the farm bill.

The debenture twice was approved by the Senate by a margin of three votes in the face of opposition by President Hoover. One of its principal backers, Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, already has proposed it in slightly different form as an amendment to the tariff measure.

Taber told the subcommittee, headed by Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader, that the struggle on the part of agriculture for tariff equality with other industries had been continuous, but success never had been achieved. He submitted a list of approximately 150 farm commodities on which he asked rates higher than those provided in the measure.

"We have sought continuously to build up agriculture without turning down any other group," he declared, "but if we are to be denied every means to make the tariff effective on the export branches, and if we are then to be denied equal rates with industry on our nonexport branches, there will be nothing left for organized agriculture to do but to rally its forces for a general lowering of the tariff wall."

Questioned by Senator Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, Taber said the grange indorsed the proposed increase in the sugar tariff but opposed levying duties on building materials, now duty free, particularly lumber, in the interest of conservation.

TARIFF "CRAMMING" PROGRESSIVES' PLAN

directly related products, clearly discloses the influence the Democratic-Progressive coalition will have in the Senate consideration of the bill.

Borah lost his resolution by one vote, and even if that were to remain the line-up there would be no comfort for the regulars. As a matter of fact, the coalition has more strength than the Borah vote revealed. There were many factors involved other than the mere expression of opinion that the revision should be confined to agricultural and directly related products.

It was well known, for one thing, that had the resolution been carried the Senate finance committee would have immediately dumped its bill into the Senate and thereby prevented any vacation.

Johnson's Vote Puzzles.

No one knows why Senator Johnson voted against it. It may be that it was because it was the Borah resolution. But at any rate his action, a distinct surprise, is not being interpreted by the Progressives as meaning that he has left their ranks, that he will not be with them in the big tariff fight. There is no reason why he should not. The citrus fruit industry of his State comes under the head of agriculture. There is no reason why he should be interested in Eastern industry.

Senator Couzens also voted against the resolution and no one, not even the regulars, take his action as meaning that he is to vote with them throughout the tariff bill. As a matter of fact, the senator has said that he would not.

Wheeler's attendance at the meeting of the Progressives is believed to have been more in the nature of a fellow Progressive than as the liaison between the Progressives and the Democrats.

The Democrats will go about strengthening their lines and preparing for the fight separately, but so formulating their program that it fits in with that of the Progressives. All things considered, it would seem that the administration's fears that consideration of the bill may extend over into the regular session are well justified.

Aircraft Draftsmen Reported as Wanted

Requests for draftsmen with aircraft training have been received by the Columbia School of Drafting, Fourteenth and T streets northwest, following installation of a new course of aircraft drafting some months ago.

Paul J. Leverone, president of the school, reports that the first class in aircraft drafting is making good progress, due to thte aid given the school in preparing its course by the Government and private airplane manufacturers who furnished drawings of their planes.

3-Year-Old Boy's World Tour Plan Short Lived

Garret DeLong, 3 years old, 2800 Twenty-sixth street northeast, decided yesterday that he would like to see more of the downtown section. While his mother was buying a hat, he slipped off from her and decided to see the world. His trip was cut short by a Post reporter, who took him to the First Precinct Station.

While at the station the boy was more interested in a policeman's blackjack than he was in going home. He was later taken home by his father.

Nation-Wide Poster Drive For Prohibition Is Planned

Campaign Announced by Commissioner Doran Will Stress Value of Dry Law From Economic and Health Standpoint.

Lithograph posters pointing out the blessings of prohibition soon will make their appearance in the land, it was learned yesterday.

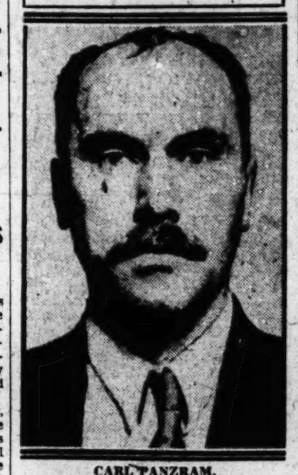

Prohibition Commissioner James M. Doran announced that a contract for the printing of the posters will be awarded in about two weeks. They will be off the press in about two months and will be paid for out of a fund of $50,000 appropriated for the purpose by the Seventieth Congress.

Beyond saying that the posters would stress the value of prohibition from a health and economic standpoint, Dr. Doran would give no details as to what they would look like. The various lithograph companies that entered bids for the contract submitted a number of drawings and slogans to the Prohibition Unit, and the posters to be used will be based on the best of these.

Once the posters are off the press, they will be hung up in the thousands of postoffices and other Federal buildings in the country, just as Army and Navy recruiting posters are now distributed.

In addition to the posters, there will be pamphlets outlining what the Federal Government is doing to enforce prohibition and listing the advantages of prohibition.

SLAYS GUARD

CARL PANZRAM.

CARL PANZRAM KILLS LEAVENWORTH GUARD

Man Who Would "Execute Whole Human Race" in New Outbreak.

RUNS AMUCK WITH IRON

Carl Panzram, who declared in a local court last November that he "hated the whole human race, and would like to kill everybody," murdered a guard and caused a near riot in the Federal Penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kans., yesterday, according to an Associated Press dispatch.

Panzram's victim was R. G. Warnke, foreman of the prison laundry. The convict crushed his skull with a flat iron.

After killing Warnke, Panzram went after the other workers in the laundry, brandishing the iron as he ran. He finally was subdued by an armed guard and placed in solitary confinement.

Officials at Leavenworth indicated that Panzram would be tried for murder.

Following one of the most dramatic trials in local court annals, Panzram, who is 35 years old, was sentenced to 25 years in Leavenworth for housebreaking and larceny by Chief Justice Walter I. McCoy in the District Supreme Court last November 11.

Invading the house of Dr. Lewis W. Eugster last July, Panzram stole a radio set. He was arrested in Baltimore and while waiting trial at the District Jail created a sensation by confessing freely to murdering a child in Philadelphia and another one in Salem, Mass. Pennsylvania and Massachusetts authorities tried vainly to have Panzram surrendered to them to stand trial for the murders.

Panzram defended himself at the housebreaking trial in November. Taking the witness stand, he confessed the crime and declared on the night of the theft, he waited several hours in Dr. Eugster's home in order to murder the physician. He thrilled spectators in the court with a declaration from the witness stand:

"I hate the whole human race and would like to kill everybody including myself and I will if I get the chance. While you have been trying me, I have been trying you and in my mind I have already executed a few of you."

Panzram attempted to escape while waiting in the jail to be sent to the penitentiary. He extracted the chair from his "bunk," with which he attempted to twist open the bars of his cell, but was frustrated by a guard and placed in solitary confinement until January when he was sent to Leavenworth Prison.

"Enemy" in Control Of Atlantic City

Entire State Is Threatened With Capture in Mimic War.

Camp Dix, N. J., June 20 (U.P.).—Atlantic City tonight was theoretically in the hands of 60,000 enemy soldiers, who landed on the coast, defeated a mythical defending American force, and are preparing to take over the entire State of New Jersey.

Brig. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, commanding the defending force of American soldiers, gave orders to his men tonight to dig in on the World War principle and try to hold a line against the invaders.

This order followed a discouraging day for the defending soldiers, despite the fact that defencing forces in military and naval maneuvers usually have a hard time of it, and enemies show surprising strength. All through a day of paper fighting the enemy had the advantage, and it was with little enthusiasm that the ghostly defenders spent this evening digging invisible trenches along Rancocas Creek, south of Mount Holly, facing the attackers.

The maneuvers are being conducted by the first division of the Army. They represent about the ideal in such matters.

Band Carnival to Continue.

The carnival being conducted at Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue southeast by the Washington Boys' Independent Band will continue through Saturday, according to announcement. Proceeds of the carnival will be used to pay expenses of the band. Chief attractions at the carnival are the band, a ferris wheel and games.

RUMRUNNERS' THEFT CAUSES ONE ARREST

Canadian Charged With Receipt of Cameras Stolen From Photographer.

SEARCH FOR GUNS URGED

Windsor, Ontario, June 20 (A.P.).—Alfred J. Woods, lessor of export docks at Amherstburg, was arrested today and remanded without bail on a charge of receiving a camera stolen from a border cities star photographer who was kidnapped by rum runners last Tuesday. The photographer was released after the rum runners had destroyed plates of pictures of their operations he had taken.

Crown Attorney James S. Allan, who opposed admitting Woods to bail, recommended that Canadian customs or immigration officials search the boats of rum runners on the Detroit River for firearms.

"The solution rests with the Federal Government," he said in reference to the kidnapping, "and that solution would prevent much of the liquor smuggling. At present the stricter enforcement by the United States river patrols has weeded out the weakened rum runners.

"No longer do you find the old-timer of the river front engaged in this remunerative pastime. Instead, the gangs now at work are undoubtedly the toughest of rum runners, fellows who'll not be frightened by talk, and I think it was men of this character who were responsible for Tuesday's affair at Amherstburg.

"The point that puzzled me, however, is that the Federal Government places officers at the ferry docks to scrutinize and question each person coming into the country that way and yet these men can come over in boats and land unmolested and unquestioned. There is no doubt that if the boats in which they arrived were searched the number carrying weapons and the number of armored boats would be decreased materially."

Ottawa, June 20 (A.P.).—Officials of the Department of National Revenue replied to criticism of Crown Attorney James Allan, of Windsor, today that the carrying of concealed weapons by rum runners was a matter to be handled by provincial authorities and not by custom agents as Allan contended.

No Complaints Received.

They said that no complaints had been received to indicate that rum runners were carrying firearms. Custom officers could search the boats if they knew that such contraband as firearms was being brought into the country in them, they said, but the more serious matter of carrying concealed weapons was an infraction of the criminal code and therefore a matter for the provincial officers.

The Federal officials said their agents might search immigrants for weapons, but this authority did not extend to nonimmigrants and could not be applied in the case of rum runners who stayed in Canada only long enough to load their boats.

DRY KILLING SURVEY OF NATION IS BEGUN

the United States and Canada in connection with the recent concentrated drive of the American prohibition authorities in the Detroit River area against liquor smuggling.

Canadian Inquiry Is Possible.

It was indicated in Government circles, however, that in the event of shots fired by American prohibition craft landing on Canadian territory, that government undoubtedly would make inquiry of the State Department concerning the situation. The Detroit River is about a mile wide and the international boundary runs through its center, the officials said, in pointing out that the situation was fraught with such possibilities.

At the State Department it also was said the American Government had anticipated the possibility of such a drive against rum smuggling as now is being made when its representatives requested Canada at the Ottawa conference last January, to make the export of liquor to the United States illegal. Canada refused to grant this request.

Meanwhile announcement was made at the department that negotiations were in progress in the proposed arbitration between the United States and Canada of the sinking of the Canadian schooner I'm Alone last winter by a Coast Guard cutter in the Gulf of Mexico. It was said that the American arbitrator would be selected soon by Secretary Stimson.

Grand Jury Flays Agents.

Rochester, N. Y., June 20 (A.P.).—Resolutions condemning the character and practices of Federal dry agents here and rebuking Fred F. Victor, of Yonkers, associate president of the Antisaloon League of New York State, were made public today by the Federal grand jury. The resolutions strongly condemned the practice of Federal agents of taking young girls on "whoopee" parties and buying them drinks, "even until intoxicated."

Immediate steps to halt this method of obtaining evidence here were urged.

Sheriff Seeks Customs Men.

Plattsburg, N. Y., June 20 (A.P.).—Sheriff George Brunell left today for Ogdensburg with new subpenas for service upon Weldon J. Cheatham and F. L. Coveney, customs border patrolmen wanted for questioning in a John Doe hearing here growing out of the fatal shooting last Saturday of Arthur Gordon, 22, alleged rumrunner.

The new subpenas for the customs officers, who left Gordon dead at a hospital here after shooting him on a so-called "booze trail" near Mooers, where they were stationed then, were indorsed by County Judge John K. Vollins. Previously the subpenas, which sheriff's men were unable to serve after Coveney and Cheatham left the county, were signed only by City Judge R. C. Booth. Their signing by the county judge marked a new move in the effort of Clinton County to force the attendance of the two customs men at John Doe hearings here.

The new subpenas are returnable Monday at an adjourned hearing in the John Doe proceedings in city court. If they are ignored then the county judge has the authority, he explained, to issue warrants for the arrest of those named on charges of contempt of court.

Group to Study Cause Of Faulty Auto Crashes

(Associated Press.)

Secretary of Commerce Lamont yesterday announced the appointment of a special committee to investigate automobile maintenance and to determine steps to be taken to reduce the number of accidents from faulty mechanism.

William Candler, of Atlanta, Ga., is chairman of the committee, composed of 38 representatives of manufacturers, automobile dealers, motor clubs and operators, which met here to discuss its program. Secretary Lamont, who is chairman of the national conference on street and highway safety, said that estimates indicate that from 5 to 40 per cent of all serious accidents on the highways are due to faulty maintenance.

PILOT, TWO OTHERS DIE IN PLANE CRASH

Capt. C. S. Caldwell Is Killed With Passengers in Canadian Tragedy.

SHIP HITS POWER WIRES

Montreal, June 20 (U.P.).—During a trial flight this afternoon a new Fokker plane, built by Canadian Vickers, Ltd., struck some power wires at Verdun and crashed into the St. Lawrence River, instantly killing Capt. C. S. (Jack) Caldwell, internationally known pilot, who was at the controls; Hon. Capt. H. C. Jarvis, former aid de camp to Viscount Willingdon, and Dr. William D. Morris, local surgeon.

The latter two were passengers.

The force of the impact carried away the plane's undercarriage and it fell into the water at terrific speed.

Caldwell comes from New Jersey, it was said.

Jarvis, after leaving the service of Canada's governor general, became publicity agent for Canadian Vickers.

Capt. Caldwell, who is a renowned daredevil test pilot, crashed to death as his first baby was expected hourly. The news is being kept from Mrs. Caldwell.

Was Plane's First Flight.

Caldwell was taking up for its first flight a Fokker seaplane adapted for a new kind of camera work, and built by Canadian Vickers, Ltd., Montreal.

At a height of 80 feet the plane raced into electricity power cables which tore off the undercarriage and then somersaulted into the St. Lawrence River at Verdun, a few miles west of Montreal.

Even had the men not been instantly killed by the impact, they would have been trapped under water in the cabin.

Motorboats and skiffs were rushed out, and after many dives young members of a boating club recovered the bodies of Dr. Morris and Capt. Jarvis. Caldwell's body was not recovered until the plane was towed away.

Hundreds of people saw the crash, and the bank was lined with people as the attempts were being made to recover the bodies. When the bodies were brought ashore, Dr. Morris' wrist watch was still going.

A month ago Caldwell climbed out of his plane to get a parachute, and it saved his life when the plane went into a spin 4,000 feet above the St. Lawrence.

It was the first time for months he had carried a parachute, and he said to friends when he was brought ashore he had a "hunch." For this he was elected first Canadian member of the Caterpillar Club, composed of airmen who have saved their lives by parachute. After this crash he refused to allow anyone else to telephone his wife.

"I have been in crashes before. She would not believe you; she must hear my voice," he said.

Mrs. Caldwell is anxiously awaiting the return of her husband in their apartment on Dorchester street, for she wants him to be within call when the baby is born.

Two Dead in Minnesota Crash.

White Bear Lake, Minn., June 20 (A.P.).—Two men were killed near here tonight in an airplane crash.

They were Cy Thurber, 34, a salesman of Minneapolis, who also held a pilot's license, and Paul Beck, 23, of Winona, Minn., who was learning to fly a plane.

Thurber was giving Beck instructions when the accident occurred. The two had left the St. Paul Airport early in the evening and when they reached White Bear Lake witnesses said the engine apparently failed. The plane spun downward and then went into a spin, being demolished when it hit the ground.

Thurber was killed instantly, while Beck died at a hospital in St. Paul.

HEFLIN LOSES PERMIT TO DRIVE AFTER CRASH

said he had been on a party the night before and had broken a promise to the father to "stay on the water wagon." He said he got his automobile from a garage at Fourteenth and L streets northwest.

"I had a few drinks in the morning, but I wasn't drunk when driving. At Seventh street, I was trying to make a "go" sign when the cop switched the sign all of a sudden and I crashed into a big laundry truck in front of me. The truck driver thought he was to blame for stopping so suddenly and said he would be willing to testify for me in court. Then the cop came over and smelled liquor on my breath. I was scared stiff and couldn't explain things because my tongue was kind of thick."

Roy Carrington Bragg, of Wolfork avenue, Alexandria, driver of the truck hit by Heflin, issued a statement last night, denying that he had said he would assume any responsibility for the accident. He declared the fault rested entirely with Heflin, who, he said, crashed into the rear of the truck after he had put it in neutral after coming to a full stop behind three cars awaiting the change of traffic lights. Bragg said he heard the brakes of Heflin's car screeching and that he in turn slammed on his own brakes to protect the machines in front.

BAILIFF WHO KILLED MERRYMAKER IS HELD

Georgian to Face Grand Jury on Murder Charge for Shot Fired in Dark.

SOUGHT TO QUIET NOISE

Buchanan, Ga., June 20 (A.P.).—Luther Ballenger, 41 years old, a Corinth District bailiff, who tried to halt a carload of merrymakers with a pistol shot, was bound over to a grand jury at a preliminary hearing today on a charge of murder. He was remanded to jail without bail for grand jury action on July 15.

The State charged that Ballenger's bullet killed Grady Phillips, 21, one of a party of five young men who were on their way "to make music" at a neighbor's last Saturday night.

Ballenger testified he tried to halt the car because its occupants were disturbing the peace, and that as it went by he heard one of the men yell, "run over him." The bailiff fired at a tire, he testified, and was not shooting at a human being

Otis John and Kennett Woodward were the State's principal witnesses, although their brother Luke also testified. All were brothers-in-law of Phillips and members of the merry-making party. They testified that none of the men was drinking and that there was no liquor in the car. They said Ballenger and Ed Harrison, a deputy sheriff, had searched their car earlier in the evening and found no liquor. When Ballenger stepped into the road, they said, they passed him and heard a shot. Phillips slumped over in his seat in the midst of a banjo ditty.

Ballenger called a physician, all testimony agreed, and saw that Phillips was given proper medical attention. It was also brought out that the bailiff did not regard the car he tried to stop as a "liquor car," but was trying to break up what he regarded as a public nuisance.

STOCK DEAL STORY POLITICS, SAYS CANNON of them related to his stock transactions.

"Why, out of all the countless millions of stock transactions during the past two years, have those in my name been selected for comment by Senator Glass, the New York Evening World and now other secular papers?" he asked.

"Certainly the times selected for the attacks—during the national campaign last fall and now the beginning of the Virginia campaign—are sufficient proof of the real motive underlying the threatening telegrams last October and the publications of today.

"What bearing did my private stock transactions have upon the question of the defeat or election of Alfred E. Smith, and what have they to do today with the issue of Raskobism and Southern Democracy, or prohibition and lawlessness?

Mudslinging, Says Bishop.

"The resort to mudslinging, the effort to besmirch my character and to weaken my influence by publishing to the world that I have purchased and sold stock indicates the desperation of the enemy and deserves the contempt of all decent men and women," he concluded.

Bishop Cannon said he had "openly bought and sold houses and lots, timber stumpage, coal, cotton and bank stock and stocks and bonds listed on the New York Stock Exchange, first in Richmond from my personal acquaintances, Col. John P. Branch and Mr. Langbourne M. Williams, both Christian gentlemen at the head of Richmond Stock Exchange houses."

"I learned of the monthly installment-purchase plan of Kable & Co. I thought the firm to be a reputable firm and bought and sold some stocks through it," he added. "I was greatly surprised when I heard of its failure, but I received a personal letter from the firm explaining why it had filed a voluntary petition of bankruptcy owing to inability to meet its contracts; that the affairs of the firm would be adjusted in the usual way, and that I would doubtless receive a dividend when the business was wound up. Of course I regretted the failure of the firm, but accepted my loss as an incident common in business transactions."

DWARF DESPERADO SHOOTS POLICEMAN

Sought for Two Killings and Numerous Thefts, Man Wins Fast Race.

HEAD OF POSTAL ROBBERS

Chicago, Ill., June 20 (A.P.).—A man identified by police as "Babyface Willie" Doody, diminutive desperado, shot and wounded Police Sergt. Clarence Falk today. He escaped after a 2-mile automobile chase through the Northwest Side at 70 miles an hour. Doody is the object of the most intensive Federal man hunt since the search for Gerald Chapman.

The crimes for which Doody is sought include two killings, a near fatal shooting and a long series of postoffice robberies. From descriptions given by Falk and a witness to today's shooting, police said they were confident the assailant was Doody.

Falk had been informed by a filling station attendant that a man driving away in an automobile had just robbed a drug store. He caught up with the car, and after the man drew to a stop, the officer got out and started to question his captive. The latter moved as though to put up his hands and suddenly struck the officer over the head with a gun.

As Falk fell, the man fired, wounding him twice. Another officer, attracted by the shots, fired at the man, but he escaped, apparently uninjured.

Doody shot his way out of a trap in a hotel room last April, wounding Postal Inspector E. L. Jackson. A few weeks later he fatally wounded Police Chief Charles Levy, of Berwyn, a suburb. He is also blamed for the killing, Tuesday night, of Leon Raymond, drug store proprietor, who identified Doody's pals as members of the gang who robbed the postal substation in the store.

Doody, who is only 5 feet in height, is said to be the leader of a postal robbery gang.

Representative James Begins Long Plane Trip

Representative W Frank James took off from Bolling Field yesterday afternoon in the new Army Air Corps' trimotored Ford on an inspection tour of Army posts, which will take him into practically every State in the Union and most of its foreign possessions between now and September 1. He was piloted by Capt. Harry A. Dinger, of Bolling Field.

Between now and September 1, Representative James said, he expects to visit all of the air fields and most of the Army posts of the United States to inspect their housing facilities. While in Porto Rico, he said, he will inspect the damage done to Army housing by the recent hurricane.

ALEXANDRIA OFFICER IS KILLED IN ALLEY

questioning at intervals, but no light could be shed on the identity of the assailant.

Rumors flew thick and fast that the fleeing slayer had been seen shortly after the killing at various parts of Alexandria and officers rushed about in vain to find him. Out of the welter of conflicting reports came two that were given partial credence. One man acting "suspiciously" was seen running along the Southern Railway tracks near its roundhouse at Alexandria shortly after the shooting, and about the same time another suspect was observed rowing frantically in a small boat across the Potomac River toward Washington. Neither was caught.

Dead Man 32 Years Old.

The slain sergeant was 32 years old and had been on the police force about four years since moving in 1916 to Alexandria from his birthplace in Orange, Va. Besides his widow and five small children, he is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. McClary, of Alexandria; three brothers, C. J., J. E. and A J. McClary, of Alexandria; and four sisters, Mrs. F. C. Peacher, of Orange, Va.; Mrs. J. Peacher, of Remington, Va., and Mrs. Nellie Toombs and Miss Virginia McClary, of Alexandria.

Sergt. McClary had a wide circle of friends throughout this immediate section, who knew him affectionately as "Mac." He had been prominent in the activities of the Police Department since joining the force, and was a leader in the search for the slayer of a fellow officer, Sergt. Elton B. Hummer, in Alexandria on August 18, 1928.

Young Practical Joker, 15, Jailed After Thefts Talk

Busboy Telephones Hotel to Discuss Series of Robberies That Netted Burglars $2,000, and Is Held on Suspicion Charge.

An attempt at practical joking at the expense of the police and the management of a downtown hotel, following closely upon the incident in which he jokingly telephoned his mother that he had been run over by an automobile, last night led Anthony Christopher, 15 years old, 1913 Fourteenth street northwest, a busboy, into the toils of the law.

Yesterday afternoon, police said, Anthony conceived the plan of telephoning to the Hamilton Hotel and discussing with the hotel manager the details of a $2,000 series of room thefts which occurred there a week ago. Anthony told police that he broached the plan to his sister, Gladys, who frowned upon the project. But he did it anyway.

After hinting definitely concerning various caches of the loot, Anthony made an appointment to discuss the matter in person last night, police said. At the appointed hour, with Detective Sergts. Hubert Brodie and Frank Varney waiting in the background, Anthony failed to appear. Instead, he telephoned again.

While the manager prolonged the conversation, the detectives traced the source of the anonymous call and hastened to the spot, a telephone booth in a chain drug store at Thirteenth and F streets northwest, where they interrupted Anthony in the act of conversation. He was charged with investigation and was lodged last night at the Receiving Home.

Auditor Defends Fund for District

Federal Appropriation More Than Is Claimed, Donovan Says.

Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor, has lined up on the side of Representative Simmons in the dispute over the proportion of the total District expenses contributed by the Federal Government through its $9,000,000 annual lump sum appropriation, it was disclosed by the Congressional Record yesterday.

Making allowance for sums which would not be properly divisible and chargeable in part to the Federal Government under a proportionate arrangement, Donovan said that the Federal contribution of $9,000,000 represents 28.214 per cent instead of the 20 or less percentage estimated by those seeking increased Federal appropriation for the improvement of the National Capital.

Donovan's figure was contained in a letter written to Simmons, at the representative's request, and inserted in the Record by Simmons. Excluding certain trust and special funds, Donovan said, the 1930 appropriations totaled $35,618,785. On this basis the Federal appropriation was 25.267 per cent, but release of other funds for the District increased the figure to 27.976 per cent, which climbed to 28.214 per cent when the $300,000 retirement fund payments were excluded.

Discharged Gallinger Patient Is Found Shot

Discharged from Gallinger Hospital Wednesday after mental observation for almost a month, William Behrle, 35 years old, was found unconscious at his residence at 731 Third street northeast, yesterday afternoon with a bullet in his chest and a .32-caliber revolver at his side.

The shot brought occupants of the house and policemen of the Ninth Precinct to his room. Medical aid was given by Dr. Henry W. Yaeger, of 700 East Capitol street, and plans were made for his return to Gallinger Hospital. The extent of his injuries had not been determined last night.

Power Trust Methods Revealed, Says Norris

(Associated Press.)

Disclosures before the Federal Trade Commission concerning the financing of the Mobile (Ala.) Press were declared by Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, in a statement yesterday to be an illustration "of the secret and dishonorable means used by the power trusts to conceal from the public the method by which they are using the contributions of the public to deceive the public."

Income Tax Gains Boost U. S. Revenue

Treasury Sees Surplus of $100,000,000 at End of This Month.

(Associated Press.)

A material increase in income tax collections has boosted the Government's total revenue for the current fiscal year to $3,790,141,997, as of June 18, giving a present surplus of $101,795,855. The Treasury's daily statement yesterday reported that income tax collections for June 18 amounted to $239,602,300, one of the largest single day's collections ever made. It raised the total for the month to $359,971,240, or $130,536,951 more than collected in the same period of last June.

For the fiscal year since June 30 income tax payments have totaled $2,135,426,544, or $190,140,331 more than collected in the same period last year. The amount is only $46,000,000 less than the total for the entire fiscal year of 1928. The total collections for the current fiscal year, which ends June 30, exceeded those for the same period last year by $38,715,826.

Treasury experts said that upon the basis of present returns all indications pointed to the Treasury having the $100,000,000 surplus June 30, recently predicted.

2 ESCAPED CONVICTS WOUNDED BY POSSE

17 of 43 Who Fled Texas Prison Farm Captured Within Few Hours.

DESPERATE MEN ARE FREE

Houston, Tex., June 20 (A.P.).—Two of the 43 convicts who escaped from the Clemons State Prison Farm, near here, early today were shot and wounded early tonight by members of a posse. Fifteen others had been rounded up during the day. Armed posses tonight, behind packs of bloodhounds, continued their search of the river bottoms for the fugitives still at large.

The break was one of a long series of similar deliveries from Texas prison farms, which officials admit are poorly equipped against wholesale escapes.

Those participating in the break were regarded as hardened criminals. About 150 other convicts not classed as desperate refused to join in the break, although the way to freedom was opened for them.

Three guards taken captive by the escaping convicts were released unharmed about 10 miles from the farm. Their weapons were stolen by the fugitives.

The break occurred about 2:15 a. m., led by Joe Williams, serving a five-year term from Tarrant County for robbery. Williams approached a guard on duty in a frame barracks quartering 42 men. "I want to get a little paper," Williams said. When the guard turned Williams covered him with a pistol, ordering the officer to hand over his gun.

When the guard started to argue, Robert Massey, serving three years from Galveston County for theft, came up behind armed with a pistol and forced the guard to surrender.

Two other guards then were overpowered and the convicts fled from the farm, after opening the doors to another barracks and inviting the inmates to escape.

The break was not discovered for about an hour.

4-Year-Old Boy Injured In Fall From Moving Car

Samuel Richards, 4 years old, 909 Irving street northwest, was injured last night when the door of the automobile in which he was riding flew open, throwing him to the roadway in Rock Creek Park.

The boy was taken to Emergency Hospital and was treated there by Dr. I. Rutkoski for lacerations to his head. He later returned home. Police said the automobile was operated by Howard McCauley, living at the same address.

Carrier Pigeon, Wounded In World War, Dies in Fort

The carrier pigeon President Wilson that played a valiant part during the World War in getting his messages to headquarters has died at the Signal Corps lofts, Fort Monmouth, N. J., according to word received yesterday at the War Department.

President Wilson was attached to the Tank Corps. During the Meuse-Argonne offensive he had his leg shot away and his breast pierced by a bullet. He reached headquarters, however, the message dangling from a torn tendon.

The bird was bred in France of unknown pedigree. It was noted for its remarkable vitality and speed. During the battle in which its leg was shot off, it flew a mile a minute through fire and fog.

At the close of the war the bird was brought to the United States after having recovered from its wounds and stationed at Fort Monmouth. He has been stuffed and mounted for display in the museum there.

Soft as Fluffed Silk So Gentle, So Exquisite!

10,000 Women a Day are Changing to this Utterly NEW TYPE Hygiene!

95% Softer—3 to 5 Times Longer Lasting

A Totally New Scientific Accomplishment that Adapts the Indescribable Gentleness of Pure Rayon Cellulose, the World's Softest Material, to Change All Previous Conceptions of Modern Day Hygiene.

IT is called VELDOWN and it is utterly and completely different from any other hygienic pad women yet have known. At the first touch to one's hand, one senses instantly the difference . . the exquisite softness of Fluffed Silk.

YET—it provides 10 times the absorbency of any other sanitary pad now known or ever known to women. And that means it can be worn in full security and peace-of-mind hours longer than any other sanitary pad.

Then, too, it provides 76% greater powers of deodorization than old-time sanitary pads. It is as quickly disposable as tissue. It is made so it cannot irritate. Experts say it soon will revolutionize the hygienic habits of women the world over.

Developed by a Six Hundred Million Dollar industrial corporation, its scientific importance cannot be over-estimated. It marks the expenditure of millions in money and the work of years of ablest scientists, by the company in whose laboratories the rayon industry was cradled.

Veldown
Soft as Fluffed Silk Filled with Pure Rayon Cellulose

An average of 10,000 women a day in this vicinity are discarding harsh, less efficient ways for this new, vastly improved hygiene.

Rayon Cellulose Filled!

Its filler is the superlatively soft Rayon Cellulose, the basis of the remarkable fabric that revolutionized the silk industry of the world; and that now comes to banish harshness, chafing and discomfort from the wearing of sanitary pads. Protected by world-wide patents, there is no other pad like it. Its use is sweeping from one end of the world to the other. Recent tabulations estimate that every day, in the very limited part of America in which it is as yet on sale, an average of over 10,000 women are changing to it. Consider what this means.

Filled with pure Rayon Cellulose, its very feel is that of fluffed silk,—it cannot irritate.

Its common-sense price is never more than 40c. And that places the best that science knows in the reach of every woman . . makes going on with less gentle ways a folly.

Do as millions are doing—try it. On sale in wrapped packages everywhere under the name VELDOWN.

MACDONALD MAKES FIRST AIR JOURNEY

LABOR IS PRIMARY TOPIC

London, June 20 (A.P.).—The new Prime Minister of Great Britain had his first air flight today and liked it. It was a long flight from his home at Lossiemouth, Scotland, to the Hendon Airdrome, just outside of London, with only a stop at Catterick Camp, Yorkshire, for luncheon.

Pulling the little wool pads from his ears on landing, Ramsay MacDonald said, "I am still just a little deaf." In a few minutes he added, "that's better. The deafness is all gone."

He thought that flying was far away the best form of long-distance travel, and added that the trip had been so comfortable that he had been able to read. Premier MacDonald tomorrow gets down to business with the cabinet counsel to consider the speech of the king with reference to opening parliament. He prepared the draft while staying at Lossiemouth. The state opening of parliament will be July 2, but King George is not strong enough to be present, and the royal speech will be read by a commission.

In the domestic field, its chief interest will lie in the measures for meeting the unemployment question. During the election campaign, J. H. Thomas, now lord privy seal and minister of employment, gave some indications of Labor's unemployment plans by way of legislation.

These plans are two-fold, namely:

(1) Raising the school age from 14 to 15 with allowance to parents. This is estimated to keep normally 400,000 out of industry for a year.

(2) Supplementing the pensions of the workers of more than 65 years of age, so that they will be able to retire. This, Mr. Thomas estimates, will eventually relieve the labor market of another 350,600.

In Scotland, where the percentage of those in receipt of poor law relief is greater than in England, steps were taken today to explore the available employment. The Scottish board of health sent an urgent message to all municipal authorities in Scotland asking them to state if they had any ground suitable for road development in anticipation of housing schemes, and particulars were asked of the estimated number of men who might be employed, with the probable date of employment and the estimated cost.

the firm conviction that an agreement concerning the treatment of neutral shipping in time of war is a necessary preliminary to further arms reduction. Prime Minister MacDonald is credited with sharing this view of the Idaho senator.

It is now generally accepted that President Hoover is not disposed to couple the two issues together at this time. On the contrary the view credited to the President is that to do so would endanger the move for actual reduction of naval armaments.

No responsible administration official last night would confirm the London report that an affirmative naval disarmament move will be made from Washington within a day or two. No such indication was forthcoming from either the White House or the State Department.

Japan Welcomes Proposal.

Edwin L. Naville, American charge d'affaires in Tokyo, today informed the State Department that he has been advised by Premier Tanaka that Japan is ready to support any measures looking toward further reduction of armament, and that Japan seeks only peace and lessened expenditures for war purposes.

His dispatch recalls the fact that during the last meeting of the preparatory disarmament commission at Geneva the Japanese delegation was outspoken in its support of the principle of the American proposals as outlined by Ambassador Hugh S. Gibson. Since that time there have been similar informal communications to the department from the Japanese government.

Coming as it does close on the heels of the meeting of Prime Minister MacDonald and Ambassador Dawes, this latest Japanese communication is accepted in some quarters as a direct reminder that Japan wishes to be included in any further negotiations.

Petain Succeeds Foch As French "Immortal"

Paris, June 20 (A.P.).—Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, commander in chief of the French armies in 1917, was elected by unanimous vote into the company of "the immortals" of the French academy today, in accordance with the unwritten law of the third republic that three representatives of the military glories of France should sit beside her great writers, artists, musicians and statesmen.

Marshal Petain will take the seat left vacant by the death of Marshal Foch. At the ceremony for his reception, in reply to the discourse of welcome, Marshal Petain will deliver a eulogy of his predecessor.

Shoemakers on Strike Reach Total of 2,750

Haverhill, Mass., June 20 (A.P.).—Shoemakers to the number of 2,750 were on strike here today, employes of five factories joining the ranks of 1,450 strikers of five other plants who quit recently.

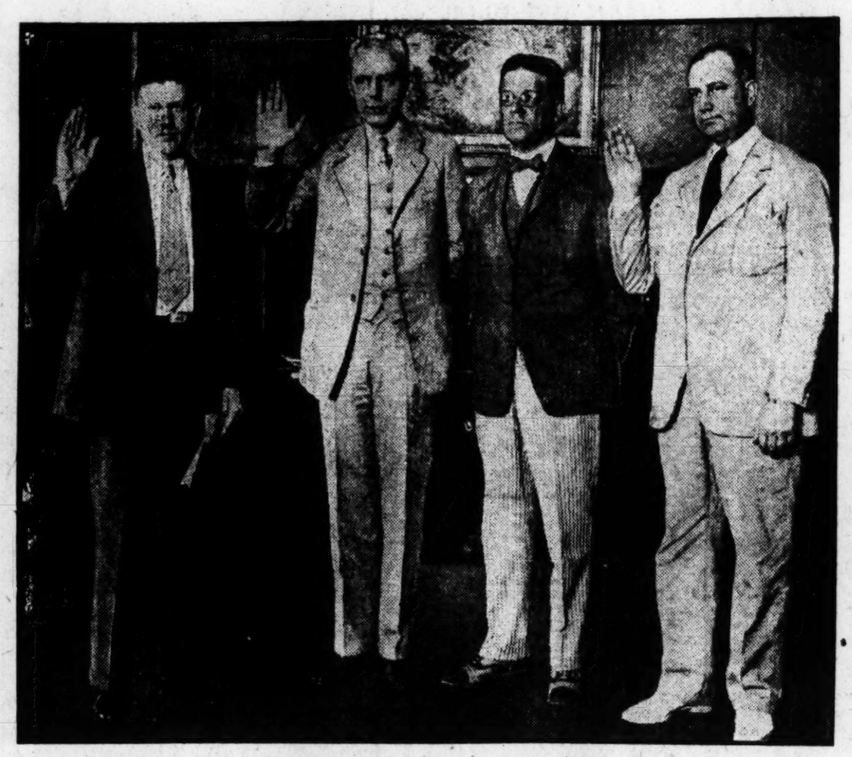

The walkout is the outcome of failure of the Shoeworkers Protective Union and the Haverhill Shoe Manufacturers Association to agree on new wage and work-week agreements. Agreements with the plants now affected by the strike have expired and pacts with all other plants in the city will expire by July 15.

BETTER HEALTH CARE AT SCHOOLS IS URGED

Chamber of Commerce Asks Increase in Staff of Physicians.

APPROVES BUDGET OF 1931

Emphasizing the necessity of rigid protection of school children from diseases, many of which are communicated within the school rooms, a subcommittee of the committee on public health of the Washington Chamber of Commerce, in a report submitted yesterday, recommends that school medical inspection in the District of Columbia be brought up to the highest standard. The report in part follows:

"Eight years after Boston's pioneering example in the safeguarding of the health of school children, Washington secured the services of twelve part-time school medical inspectors. Six years after New York pioneered in furnishing school nursing service, Washington followed suit by retaining five school nurses.

"During the 26 years that Washington has had schol medical inspectors the school population has more than doubled, but the number of doctors has remained almost stationary. The number of school nurses, admittedly inadequate at the start, has been increased to ten.

"According to recently compiled figures, Washington spends 88 cents per school child for health conservation work as compared to an average of from $1 to $2 in other large American cities. Reports from 20 cities showed that in 1925 they spent an average of $142,185 for school medical inspection. This was more than $80,000 more than the Washington figure, which amounted to $61,120 in 1924-25. This amount has been only slightly increased since 1925.

"In its budget request for 1931 the Health Department of the District of Columbia has requested that the appropriation for school medical inspection service be increased to $142,625, which is about equal to the average expenditure as above reported in 1925 for the 20 cities nearest to Washington in population size.

"It is, therefore, recommended that the committee on public health transmit to the board of directors an urgent request that they approve the appropriation increase requested by the District Health Department and that further study be given to this whole question by the proper public and private agencies to the end that health promotion work among the school children of the Capital City may be placed on a par with that now afforded by any other city in our country."

Nina Putnam's Former Employe Sued by Wife

New Haven, Conn., June 20 (A.P.).—Judge F. Mrs. Bassett charges her husband with eloping with Mrs. Muriel Blanchard Nelson, heiress and wife of William A. Nelson, Madison artist. Mrs. Bassett said Mrs. Nelson took Bassett away in her roadster just after the Putnam divorce. Testimony before Judge Ells today brought out that Bassett had been the secretary of the woman writer for thirteen months. Mrs. Nelson is to inherit part of the fortune of Maj. George Blanchard, millionaire Brooklyn, N. Y., hotel owner.

C., in a petition just filed in Court of Domestic Relations here. Tetter Burned and Itched So Was Nearly Crazy. Cuticura Healed.

"Tetter started on the inside of my hands. It was in little water blisters and burned and itched so that I was nearly crazy. I could not put my hands in water, and in fact was able to do but very little as my hands were so sore. Some nights I could not sleep on account of it. I had the trouble five years.

An Open Letter to the PEOPLE OF WASHINGTON

What a remarkable City Washington really is!

Abused by some Congressmen, scoffed at by some Senators and even slighted by some Presidents.

But that is not the half of it!

Criticized by some merchants, lost faith in at times by some financial interests and literally turned upside down by highly visionary experimental legislation recommended by groups of its own citizens.

Again, it has been made the goat of unproved magazine articles.

It is a full-grown man in the list of American cities that stands without a voice of its own.

WHY SHOULDN'T IT BE ABUSED?

But, while all this goes on and on—

A great railroad builds a magnificent edifice for its own home. This founded upon its faith in the Nation's Capital.

Another great railroad is to build an additional terminal to meet the ever-growing needs of the Nation's Capital.

A far-visioned merchant is building a magnificent structure to meet the ever-growing needs of the Nation's Capital.

And a great Nation is spending hundreds of millions upon the hundreds of millions already spent to keep this Nation's Capital here—

Forever

So, while these astounding things are going on—

While little minds prattle and bite at Washington—

OUTSIDE CAPITAL AND BRAINS COME INTO WASHINGTON AND—

Buy our railway system
Buy our electric light system
Buy our gas company
Buy our real estate,
acres upon acres, buildings upon buildings

Outside financial institutions come in and loan what seems to our half-closed eyes staggering sums upon Washington securities, while the old-line real estate mortgage houses are still trying to get for you

Old-Line Mortgages

WASHINGTONIANS, and those of you that have come here for four years but who are bound to remain, I have but one logical deduction to make from the foregoing FACTS, and I put it in the form of advice.

WAKE UP!

Get your part of this National Capital.

Get your part of its local mortgage securities. The world offers nothing better and THE WORLD WAR PROVED THAT.

Don't let outsiders buy all of Washington.

Big minds and big money have faith in Washington.

Washington has all the requisites of a greater city than Paris and will have more reasons for its very existence in the age into which we are coming.

FREEDOM OF THE SEAS.

Ramsay MacDonald and Charles G. Dawes met last Sunday at Forres, not far from the blasted heath where the weird sisters brewed their hellbroth and instilled poison into Macbeth's brain. The meeting was advertised over the world as a turning-point in history, and mankind hung breathless upon the speeches that were to unfold the glad tidings of Anglo-American accord. Then the speeches were made, and they contained nothing that could be seized upon as a hint of practical progress.

The core of the problem that faces Great Britain and the United States was not even approached by these statesmen. They seemed to shun it as if they feared it.

Before the British elections Mr. MacDonald boldly announced his determination to tackle that problem. He stated that an understanding with the United States on the question of the freedom of the seas would be one of the first objectives of the Labor government. He permitted it to be understood that he hoped to go to Washington to confer personally with President Hoover. In Washington the press gained the distinct impression that Ambassador Dawes would convey to Mr. MacDonald an assurance of warm welcome to the United States.

The public disappointment over the failure of the two spokesmen of American and British policy to refer to the central problem is reflected by Senator Borah and Senator Swanson, Republican and Democratic members of the committee on foreign relations. These senators are in a position to know the attitude of Congress toward naval limitation and reduction. They joined in the adoption of the provision in the cruiser bill which authorizes the President to suspend construction in the event of an international agreement safeguarding private property at sea in time of war. Both Senators Borah and Swanson express the opinion that the United States will continue to strengthen the Navy unless such an agreement is reached.

What will be the policy of the British government in dealing with American shipping in the next war, in case Great Britain is a belligerent and the United States a neutral?

Upon the determination of this question hangs the proposal to reduce and equalize the two fleets.

President Coolidge's Armistice Day speech and the decision to build fifteen 10,000-ton cruisers reveal unmistakably that the United States will not take the risk of war arising from aggressions upon American neutral commerce by a navy more powerful than the United States Navy. This is a constant, overhanging danger. The country once experienced an inglorious war as a result of such aggressions, and there are charred timbers now in the White House which testify to the humiliation suffered by Americans because they failed to keep their Navy strong enough to protect their commerce. The Capitol, the White House, and other public buildings were burned, and the President of the United States was chased out of Washington in consequence of this fatal lack of naval defense. Astounding as the fact may be in 1929, it was a British torch that set fire to Washington.

When Ramsay MacDonald is prepared to pledge Great Britain to observe the rule of freedom of the seas for all neutral commerce in time of war, the United States will gladly give the same pledge. From that moment the size of the British navy as compared with the size of the American Navy will be an academic question of no practical importance. Each government will provide for its needs, without reference to the other's needs, and neither will menace the other. They can readily agree to reduce their fleets and save much money.

Until such time as the security of American neutral commerce is otherwise assured, it will be safeguarded by warships, and the Navy will be increased to a size equal to that of any other navy, whatever it may be.

There is danger in widely advertised gestures that produce no results. It is unnecessary to reiterate that Great Britain and the United States are friends and hope to promote world peace by mutual effort in which all other nations can freely join. Everybody knows this. A visit from Ramsay MacDonald, not followed by some tangible movement toward establishing the freedom of the seas for neutral commerce in time of war, would probably do more harm than good, by convincing Americans that their only ultimate security and peace lie in maintaining a Navy capable of defeating any other.

ANOTHER SALARY GRAB?

The thought of 2,496 employes at the Capitol receiving increases in their pay envelopes created a feeling of covetous longing in the Senate. Why should Congress hand out "a raise" to mere clerks and add nothing to the salaries of senators and representatives? This feeling was given expression in the form of an amendment which would have raised the congressional job from the status of $10,000 to $12,000 per year. The request was graciously withdrawn to allow the increase for Capitol employes to go through without obstruction. But its advocates gave assurance that more will be heard of increased pay for congressmen in the future.

The theory is that every important Federal position Congress has created recently calls for a salary of $12,000 per year. Evidently senators are tortured by the thought of voting to any Government official a greater salary than they themselves receive. It makes no difference that the $12,000 positions demand the services of experts who could command salaries far larger in private life. It is to this class of Federal officials to whom President Hoover alluded in his recent praise of "the new patriots" who have sacrificed high salaries to serve in his administration. In these cases the Government often gets more for its money than a private corporation could possibly command. But can the same be said of members of Congress?

Unfortunately it is impractical for the Government to pay a member of the Senate or House just what his services are worth. If that were possible, some salaries would doubtless be raised, but there are many who insist that the average salary would suffer a tremendous shrinkage. Since congressmen must be paid a uniform wage, regardless of service rendered, the only question to be considered is whether the Senate and House are worth $1,162,000 more to the country than they now cost. This, too, is subject to a variety of opinions.

No increase in salary, however lavish, can be expected to improve the qualifications of the Nation's legislators. With salaries at their present level reports of politicians refusing nominations for financial reasons are not common. The philosophical attitude would be: When the best material available is anxious to serve at $10,000, why pay more? Of course, Congress has the distinct advantage of being able to raise its own pay. But when that august body is willing to leave underpaid Government clerks without relief and has no time to provide a retirement pittance for the veteran employes who have spent their lives in the service of Uncle Sam, an increase in the salaries of its own members would be nothing less than stealing from the Treasury.

THE ASCOT GOLD CUP.

The Ascot Gold Cup, the most coveted trophy perhaps in all the racing world, was won once by an American horse, James R. Keene's Foxhall. That was away back in 1882, 74 years after the race had been established in 1808. There were high hopes that another American candidate would annex the celebrated cup this year, for Mrs. John Hertz's Reigh Count, winner of the Kentucky Derby in 1928 and concededly the best of his year on this side of the Atlantic, was fully expected to follow up the victory which he achieved as recently as June 6 in the Coronation Cup at Epsom where he won by inches from the Irish horse Athford, with Plantago third, a length behind the leaders, and six others in the "also ran" division. But the one mile and a half on Epsom Downs is very different from the rolling two miles and a half on Ascot Heath, with its uphill and downhill gradients, and the last half mile of the cup course up an ascent that tests the stamina and saps the courage of all but the most stout-hearted thoroughbreds. Reigh Count did not win yesterday, but, though defeated, he was by no means disgraced, for he finished second to the 7-year-old Invershin, a proved stayer, that won the same race last year. Beaten by two lengths, Reigh Count was in turn three lengths in front of the game and famous French horse, Palais Royal II, with ten others farther still in the rear.

The race yesterday was remarkable for its international character, for, in addition to the English, American and French contenders that finished first, second and third, respectively, there were other representatives of France in the field, as well as some well known horses from Ireland. It will thus be seen that Reigh Count put up a really creditable performance in getting second place. One would naturally have expected Invershin to be favorite on his record, and he did rule favorite for some days before the race, but on the track he went badly in the betting and finally started at the comfortable winning price of 8 to 1 against. Favoritism, at 4 to 1 against, was shared by Reigh Count and Baron Edouard de Rothschild's Cacao, which finished fourth. Palais Royal II was strongly fielded against at 10 to 1. The undoubted hero of the day was Invershin, which, by his double victory, proved himself to be a genuine stayer and a courageous and dependable race horse, of which his owner, Mr. Reid Walker, is legitimately proud. To have won the Ascot Gold Cup in successive years with the same horse is a slice of luck that has rarely fallen to any sportsman.

FRANCIS E. WARREN.

Senator Francis E. Warren, of Wyoming, who observed his eighty-fifth birthday Thursday, holds the distinction of having served in the Senate longer than any other man. It was most appropriate for the Senate to give a few moments of its time before the recess adjournment to extend to him its congratulations and appreciation of his able services. For 36 years and 7 months the Wyoming senator has been a stalwart figure in the Senate. His record is not only unique for length of service; it is replete with achievements.

Senator Warren went West as a young man after he had distinguished himself in the Union Army during the Civil War. He settled in Cheyenne when it was a frontier village. His life has been devoted to Wyoming, and no man has exerted a more pronounced influence upon that State than he. After serving in both houses of the territorial legislature he became mayor of Cheyenne. He was appointed territorial governor by President Arthur, and was the first governor elected after Statehood was granted. Elected to the United States Senate in 1890, he has served continuously with the exception of two years when the Legislature failed to make a selection.

It is significant of Senator Warren's service that the principal tribute paid him in the Senate came from Senator McKellar, a Democrat. Political differences have often caused these two friends to oppose each other on the Senate floor, yet Mr. McKellar regards the veteran legislator from Wyoming as "one of the great men of the country." Senator Warren's interests have been in the welfare of the United States and in his own State. In the midst of political squabbles he has been a great stabilizing influence in the Senate. As a result, innumerable responsibilities have come to him, chief among which has been chairmanship of the appropriations committee. It was pointed out that in the last eight years he has directed the expenditure of $40,000,000,000.

The people of Wyoming are so appreciative of Senator Warren's achievements that they have recently named the loftiest peak in the State for him. The honor is fully deserved. Wyoming's greatest honor is that it has sent this statesman to the Senate.

The short, thick-set ape man who was captured in Mexico and who spends all his time shouting "Wah Oo Wah!" should have no trouble finding a job as a radio announcer.

RUSSIA "WORSE THAN EVER"

New York Times.

Deploring present industrial conditions in Russia as "worse than they have ever been," Leslie Urquhart, chairman of the Russo-Asiatic Consolidated, Ltd., in an interview at the Ritz Tower yesterday, held that the only real solution of the problems of the country was "common international economic action to cure Russia of communism" and establish "saner" economic principles there.

Mr. Urquhart will leave today for Vancouver and will sail on June 26 for Australia, before returning to London. The properties of his company, which were confiscated in Russia, include copper, zinc, lead and coal mines as well as factories and railways. The company's claims against the Soviet government, Mr. Urquhart said, amounting to £56,000,000, represent about one-third of the total British claims of £182,000,000 against Russia.

"It is quite possible," he said, "that the present British government may grant diplomatic recognition to the Soviet government, and it is not improbable that the Liberal representatives in Parliament will support such recognition. My personal opinion is that mere diplomatic recognition of the Soviet government is no solution to the Russian problem. It will certainly be considered a success for Soviet diplomacy, which they will exploit to the limit in other countries and, particularly, to strengthen their position at home."

Mr. Urquhart said that some British statesmen were of the opinion that diplomatic recognition of the Soviet government would do no harm. He insisted, however, that such recognition would only strengthen the Soviet.

"The real and only solution in my opinion," he continued, "is common international economic action of all nations. Just as common action between the United States and the allies in the war to down militarism was necessary, so common economic action of all nations will be necessary to cure Russia of communism and help in the evolution of saner economic principles.

"At the present moment the Soviet government quite rightly claims it a great victory in being recognized by most of the European nations. The Soviet representatives in New York claim considerable success in having obtained credits in America from important firms, such as Ford, General Electric, Standard Oil and others who do business with them and thus show some confidence in the Russian government.

"But what Russia requires is not to enter into a few spectacular deals which appeal to the front pages of the press. Russia needs to win the confidence of the investing public who are the real owners of private capital all over the world, and this, in the slightest sense, has not been accomplished.

"This confidence will not be obtained by diplomacy or spectacular transactions. It can be achieved only by mutually satisfactory settlement between Russia and her foreign creditors. This can not be done, as the Russian government suggests, by merely asking creditors to forget and write off all their losses caused by nationalization and confiscation of their properties as a result of the Russian revolution. Russia can only reestablish her credit in the world by first making a settlement with her creditors.

"I am firmly convinced," Mr. Urquhart concluded, "that the cooperation of England and the United States in the solution of the Russian problem is the thing which matters most, and it is my fervent hope that the forthcoming visit of Mr. Ramsay MacDonald to Washington will bring about a friendly cooperation in this question for the good of the whole world."

Hobbies and Men.

Philadelphia Inquirer: From Washington comes the news that Ambassador Dawes intends to carry a generous supply of underslung pipes with him when he goes to London to take up his position as our representative at the English capital. He does this, we are told, because he fears he may not be able to find exactly the kind of pipe he likes on the other side of the water. "Under diplomatic immunity," says the dispatch, "the ambassador's pipes will be admitted duty free."

It is curious how we come to associate little hobbies with our prominent public men. We might think that the "Dawes plan" for the financial rehabilitation of Europe would be his greatest advertisement, but the cartoonists and the paragraphists will not have it that way, and so the former Vice President will continue to be popularly known for his pipes. It has always been so. Roosevelt was celebrated for his chance remark about the "big stick," Coolidge as the apostle of economy and now Hoover is being featured for his love of fishing.

All have done great things, but the popular imagination loves to seize on the traits it likes best.

Is a Man Killed by a Pistol Less Dead Than One Killed by a Cannon?

By ROBERT QUILLEN

ONE of the popular stories of the Civil War concerned two wounded privates, one with a shattered arm, who walked to the rear in white-faced silence, and one with a finger shot off, who wept and howled in his agony.

An officer provided the moral by shaming the noisy one, thus teaching American youth to bear trivial hurts without flinching as becomes a manly man.

There is a universal belief that the suffering of the afflicted is in exact proportion to the size of the affliction.

Therefore the sight of a cripple prompts us to say: "Poor fellow! Surely if he can bear his affliction with a light heart, I should be ashamed to whine about my trivial troubles."

But the truth is that man's reaction to one misfortune is very much like his reaction to any other.

He has just so much capacity for suffering; he can feel just so much—sorrow just so much—and small troubles hurt him no less than big ones.

The child's grief for a broken doll is just as genuine and just as agonizing as an adult's grief for a dead friend. The hearts of both ache to the limit of their capacity. Neither can be consoled—and both will forget.

A "mashed thumb" hurts almost unbearably, yet men have hands and arms crushed and survive. If suffering increased in proportion to the area affected, no man could endure great wounds and live.

One tooth can ache as much as an entire head—or an entire body. It isn't the size of the disaster that counts, but its effect on the victim.

As the effect of a drug is limited, because the system can absorb so much and no more, so the effect of affliction is limited. And the one who is suffering to the limit of his capacity is suffering as much as any man can, however trivial the cause.

Only the one who suffers can measure his pain, and it is cruel and stupid to ridicule him because his agony seems out of proportion to the cause.

Does a man grieve more for the loss of six children than a mother grieves for one? Is a rich man hurt more by the burning of his palace than the poor man by the burning of his cottage?

A broken heart is a broken heart, whatever the cause, and a broken finger hurts no less than a broken arm.

If you have sympathy to give, give it in proportion to man's need, not in proportion to his loss.

THE ALTHING.

While the eyes of the West are turned toward Iceland, in the hope that the Swedish fliers may be able to continue in their course, Iceland's entire population of 100,000 is by their visit only for the moment diverted from thoughts of the celebration next year of the thousandth anniversary of the establishment of its parliament, says the New York Times. It was in the year 930 A. D. that the Althing, its legislative assembly, was organized. Though its powers have been subject to change, it has been in continuous existence for these thousand years and has recently come into virtually complete autonomy, subject with Denmark to the same king.

A joint resolution has been introduced in Congress by Representative Burtness, of North Dakota, authorizing the President of the United States to accept the invitation of the government of Iceland to participate in the celebration. The resolution provides that a special delegation of five official representatives of the American people shall be sent on this special mission. The preamble recites that the history of this intrepid little people is interwoven with our own through the scholarly influence of its literature and through the contribution to our prosperity and culture of a goodly number of descendants of Iceland in America—40,000 descendants in Canada and the United States, it is estimated. Moreover, the persistence of a legislative body through so many centuries deserves recognition by other peoples that have themselves made successful use of a parliamentary system, and especially by our own country, to which Iceland is a near neighbor, no farther away than San Francisco is from New York.

Another reason is offered. It was a native son of Iceland, Lief Ericson, son of Eric the Red, who in the year 1000 "discovered the American mainland." The location of Vinland is not definitely established. And Leif Erickson may not, as a recent American poet has put it, "have come rowing up the Charles River in the sea-battered dragon-ships."

But somewhere on the mainland he did doubtless land, and the genealogy of many living is traced back to the child of Thorfin Karlsefne, the first white child, so far as known, born on this continent. It is proposed that a "suitable statue" of Leif Ericson shall be presented as a gift of the American people to the people of Iceland in connection with the celebration.

MISS UNIVERSE.

There is a certain hyperbolical touch, it can not be denied, about denominating Miss Lisl Goldarbeiter, the Austrian girl who has just won the international beauty contest at Galveston, Tex., as Miss Universe, observes the New York World. Perhaps she can properly be called Miss Universe, and then again perhaps not. That is a thing we can not be certain about until we have seen beauties from some planet besides our own. Nevertheless, it is easy to see why Miss Universe was chosen instead of some name that would imply supremacy on our own planet and no other. The name was almost unavoidable, by reason of a hiatus in our language with regard to this ball of mud that we live on. We have no sonorous word to call it by. Manifestly we could not crown Miss Goldarbeiter as Miss Earth. That would sound too loamy. Somehow, under that monniker you would expect her to appear with her face smeared up with clay, and with Miss Sea, Miss Sky and Miss Fire in her wake as maids of honor. And we could not crown her Miss Globe. That would sound like publicity for Rand, McNally & Co., manufacturers of maps of all States and Territories, all foreign countries, all principal cities; atlases, globes, charts, textbooks, special maps for all purposes, engraved and printed. And we could not call her Miss Terra. That sounds too pedantic, and, in addition, it is Latin, and the spherical nature of the earth was not known at the time the Latin language was invented, so that its exact meaning is somewhat dubious. And that about exhausts the list. There was nothing to do, obviously, but call her Miss Universe.

So far as we are concerned, however, Miss Goldarbeiter may call herself Miss Universe, and welcome. To judge from her pictures, the Republic of Mars will have to go some to find a representative to challenge her title.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

What the Farmer Wants Is a Higher Price, But Congress Gives Him Everything Else.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Congress seems determined to give the farmer what he doesn't want, and to withhold from him the only thing he does want, which is a higher price. The manufacturer wants a higher price, so Congress gives him a tariff bounty. The carriers want a higher price, so Congress gives them the Esch-Cummins bill. The railway unions want a higher price, so Congress gives them the Adamson law and others. Every time it takes from the farmer and gives to these other classes. Now it is proposed through debentures to take from all these classes and give to the farmer, but suddenly that is condemned in high places as all wrong. Congress made the prosperity of these other classes. Congress made the poverty of the farmer. Congress ought to remedy the inequality it has created.

No other industry has Government boards with revolving funds, because they don't want them. Neither does the farmer want them, but his industry is not to be treated as are these others. His must be the only industry where those engaged in it are to be heavily burdened with unwanted boards and financing. Yet the farmer is just like all these others. All he wants is price. Suppose that will induce further production? Doesn't the increased price given the manufacturer induce further production?

For many years two things kept up the farming industry in spite of all the congressional handicaps that ingenious lawmakers could devise in the interest of others against the farmer, those two things being the constant stream of immigrants settling mostly in the cities, thus creating added demand for farm products, and the ever-increasing loan values on farming lands. Both are gone now. Congress took away the farmer's market, due to immigration, the labor unions requiring Congress to do this so as to lessen competition for their urban jobs and at the same time lessen their cost of living by decreasing prices for farm products. Loans have reached their limit, having increased over 150 per cent in the last eight years. The market among farmers for manufactured products has been largely destroyed, and that is the reason, and the only reason we now hear of "farm relief."

The city newspapers even go so far as to favor that reclamation plan to establish model farm communities throughout the Southern States. They ought to take a look at this poor, unprofitable land in Georgia it is proposed to unload on the Government for that purpose. It is thought even a subsidized farmer would starve to death on it. The ludicrousness of the idea seems to have wholly escaped the city dweller. What he wants is that "rural life be made attractive" to the other fellow, resulting in less competition in town for his job and bigger farm production so farm products will be cheap. The idea of calling it "farm" relief is rather fantastic. It should be called "city relief."

When President Wilson's coal commission studied and made their exhaustive report on the troubles arising from overproduction of coal, suppose it had been recommended that the Government subsidize the less profitable mines and have them operated in competition with other mines being financed by their owners? That would be just as rational as subsidizing farm model communities. The farmers don't want these things at all. They want a higher price for their products and cheaper freight rates. All the rest can go hang.

Farmers will build their own model communities just like other folks whenever they get prices that will pay for it. Make no mistake about that.

Wisconsin Wets Losing Ground as Shown by Votes of 1926 and 1929.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The wets are certainly easily pleased. They illustrate the old proverb, "He who expects little is easily satisfied." In an election early this year in Wisconsin the wets had a majority of 121,000 for the modification of the Volstead act, and they went wild with joy over this victory. But in 1926 they voted on the same question and had 172,000 majority. That means that the wets have made a net loss of more than 50,000 votes in three years. And they are "tickled pink." It does not seem to dawn on them that while they are still facing East, they are "going west."

There are eleven counties, including Bayfield, Crawford, Eau Claire, Marquette, Trempeleau and other populous counties which voted wet in 1926, but dry in 1929. There was not one single county that voted dry in 1926 that reversed itself and went wet in 1929. The fact is that the good old State of Wisconsin is swinging steadily and strongly towards the dry column. And a few more victories such as the wets won in 1929 will put the Badger State "high and dry."

Senator's Wife May Visit Daughter, Mrs. Foster, in Boston.

By JEAN ELIOT.

ALTHOUGH there was a considerable exodus of senatorial folk as soon as the Senate recessed Wednesday, Senator and Mrs. Frederick H. Gillett are staying on at their Eighteenth street residence and for the moment, have made no plans for a getaway. They are of the group who find Washington quite tolerable in summer, but presumably they will go later to Massachusetts.

Mrs. Gillett's elder daughter, Mrs. Reginald Foster, who was Miss Frances Hoar, is having her first "American summer" in four or five years and is now in Boston with her husband and her three young sons. Their presence will presumably be a magnet to draw Mrs. Gillett to New England. Since shortly after their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Foster have been living abroad, but they returned to this country last winter in order that their third child might be born at home and they expect to remain several months longer.

On the other hand, Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Le Farge are now abroad and expect to be away all summer. Mrs. La Farge is also a daughter of Mrs. Gillett and was Miss Louisa Hoar. The La Farges have one small son, Christopher John La Farge, named for his father and for that distinguished artist, Mr. John La Farge. While they are in Europe Mr. and Mrs. La Farge will make a series of visits. They made an early start in order that they might spend some time in Italy before warm weather overtook them, and recently they have been guests of friends who live in an ancient villa near Florence.

Both Frances and Louisa Hoar made their debut in Washington and were belles until they married and moved away. They had a flair for dramatics and were involved in the amateur theatricals which were the vogue with the smart young set during their girlhood. They have been occasional visitors here in recent years and have always found groups of old friends to welcome them.

Mrs. Foster and Mrs. La Farge are daughters of the late Representative Rockwood Hoar, of Massachusetts, and their grandfather was the late Senator George Frisbie Hoar, Republican stalwart of a bygone generation. Their mother's marriage to Senator Gillett took place just as they were growing up. Mrs. Foster's oldest son, who must be quite a big boy by this time, was always dubbed "Adam" in the family—"because he was the first man."

The Ammassador of Cuba and Senora de Ferrara, who returned to the embassy yesterday from New York, will start early next week for Cuba. They expect to be absent for three weeks.

The Ambassador of Japan and Mme. Debuchi left early this week, accompanied by their two children, for Buena Vista, Pa., where they have taken a cottage for the season.

Panama Legation Dinner To Honor Bridal Couple.

The Minister of Panama and Senora de Alfaro will be hosts at dinner this evening in honor of Miss Nancy Hamilton and their son, Dr. Victor Alfaro, whose marriage will take place Monday. Other guests will be members of their bridal party.

Last evening Miss Adelaide Henry was hostess at a dinner for Miss Hamilton and Dr. Alfaro.

The Minister of the Irish Free State and Mrs. MacWhite have returned from a motor trip to Hamilton, Mass., where they were the guests of Mr. Augustus Goodwin. They also attended the Brookline horse show.

Senator and Mrs. Jesse H. Metcalf will sail the end of the week aboard their yacht Felicia, on which they have been living for several weeks. They will cruise up the coast to Providence, R. I., to spend the summer.

Mrs. Charles Boughton Wood has as her guest at her summer home at Simsbury, Conn., her grandniece, Mrs. William Goetz, wife of Maj. Goetz, and their two children, who have come from their home at Fort Sill, Okla., to pass the summer with Mrs. Wood.

Mr. and Mrs. Hakan B. Steffanson, of New York, Mrs. Wood's nephew and niece, recently sailed for Sweden to spend two months at their country home at Ruda.

Mrs. Joseph Noell entertained at dinner last night at the Montgomery Country Club in honor of Mrs. John R. Williams, who has recently returned from a brief trip to Europe.

Mrs. Noell will sail on July 6 for Europe accompanied by her son, Mr. Joseph Noell, and her niece, Miss Elizabeth Hubbard. They expect to pass most of the summer at Biarritz.

Mrs. Harry King Curtis, of Chicago, daughter-in-law of Vice President Curtis, is visiting her mother, Mrs. William J. Elliott, at her summer home on Long Island.

Senator Royal S. Copeland has closed his apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel and gone to New York to be with Mrs. Copeland and their son.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Mathews Dick have arrived in Newport and have opened Moorland Lodge, which they have leased for the season.

Mrs. Carl Denton, of Portland, Oreg., and her son, Mr. James Denton, are visiting Interstate Commerce Commissioner and Mrs. Clyde Aitcheson and will be in town for a week or more.

Augusto Villa, Military Attache of the Italian Embassy, was also host to a party at the Deauville. Col. John N. New Debt Parley With U. S. Held Useless by Poincare

French Premier, Pressing for Ratification of Mellon-Berenger Agreement, Intimates America's Attitude Toward Money Matters Harder Under Hoover.

Paris, June 20 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—It would be useless for France to attempt to reopen war-debt negotiations with Washington, Premier Raymond Poincare informed the joint finance and foreign affairs commission of the Chamber in the second day of his lengthy exposition of why the government seeks immediate ratification by Parliament of the Mellon-Berenger and Churchill-Caillaux war-debt agreements.

The premier said, "It is certain we have not obtained an agreement such as we ought to have had in Washington, but if we were to reopen negotiations today we would get much less. I take full responsibility for what I say and add that there is no statesman in France who would dare risk fresh negotiations with the United States."

The attitude of the United States toward money matters is harder under President Hoover than it was under President Coolidge, the premier intimated, explaining Hoover's position, dating from 1921, at which time Hoover declared that Europe's war debts must be paid in full or international confidence would be ruined.

Eager for Ratification.

Poincare is pushing hard for ratification of the war debt agreements and also for approval of the Young plan for a reparations settlement. He called the cabinet together this morning to consider both questions and also to consider his conversation with Gustav Stresemann, German foreign minister, yesterday over evacuation of the Rhineland. The cabinet decided, Poincare informed the joint commission, that rapid action should be taken both on war debts and the Young plan.

The corridors of the Chamber of Deputies are buzzing tonight with discussion of means by which France might be safeguarded against the obligation to pay America in the event of Germany defaulting on her reparations payments. Many are of the opinion that it would be wiser for France to sell her share of German reparations bonds in the United States, rather than use them to retire part of France's internal debt. By this means, it is pointed out, American interest in seeing that Germany meets her obligations under the Young plan, would be kept alive.

Borah Expects Extension.

Senator Borah, chairman of the foreign relations committee, yesterday expressed the belief that the President probably would feel justified in extending the date when the French war material debt of 400,000,000 is due on August 1, despite the failure of Congress on Wednesday to enact the resolution authorizing the extension.

Similar expressions of belief have been made by Vice President Curtis and Speaker Longworth, both of whom felt they had no authority to sign the bill because the House had adjourned prior to the passage of the resolution by the Senate.

Senator Borah said the President had no more authority to extend the date than if no action had been taken. However, in view of the fact that both Senate and House expressed their approval, he felt the President might feel he was justified in exercising discretion in the matter.

All difficulty would be avoided by the ratification of the Mellon-Berenger debt settlement by the French Parliament prior to August 1. Intimations that this action is anticipated have emanated from State Department quarters.

HABEAS CORPUS WRIT IS DENIED KELLEHER

Convicted Gambler Loses His First Battle in Fight for Liberty, Pending Appeal.

KEART DROPS HIS PLEA

Jack B. Kelleher, convicted "big time" gambler, yesterday lost his first battle to obtain his freedom pending disposition of an appeal from a sentence of eight years and nine months imprisonment and a $7,500 fine imposed on gambling charges last Saturday.

While the dapper sportsman was staging his fight for freedom, Nick Keart, 28 years old, who was convicted on a gambling accusation last December 1 and was given a four-year sentence by Chief Justice Walter I. McCoy, dismissed his appeal. The chief magistrate reduced Keart's sentence to three years to run from December 1. Attorneys Harry T. Whelan and William O'Connell appeared for Keart.

T. Morris Wampler, who succeeded Daniel Thew Wright as Kelleher's counsel, presented a petition for a writ of habeas corpus to Justice Jennings Bailey for admission of the sportsman to bail on the ground that he did not have a fair trial and was convicted illegally.

Justice Bailey immediately denied the petition, and Wampler noted an appeal from the decision. The action left the sportsman no alternative but to wait in the District Jail until the District Court of Appeals acts in the matter. Prosecution of both Kelleher and Keart was conducted by Assistant District Attorney William H. Collins.

Injunction to Padlock Two Floors Is Sought

Padlock injunction proceedings against the first and second floors of 1125 Seventh street northwest were instituted in the District Supreme Court yesterday by District Attorney Leo A. Rover and his assistant, Capt. Harold W. Orcutt, on charges that the premises were used for dry law violations and constituted a common nuisance.

The petition named Mitchell Eisenberg and Irwin Eisenberg, tenants, and Moses Goldenberg, owner of the building, as defendants. The Government's counsel produced affidavits to support the contention that numerous sales of intoxicants occurred on the premises.

Man Files $25,000 Suit In Automobile Injuries

Floyd2 A. Nunn, of 1204 G street northeast, instituted suit for $25,000 damages against Massimo Ferrari, of 405 Eighth street northeast, yesterday at the District Supreme Court on charges of personal injuries.

Nunn declared he was crossing the street at Eighth and L streets southeast last December 21 when he was felled and severely injured by an automobile owned by Ferrari. Attorneys Julius C. Martin and Claude A. Thompson appeared for the plaintiff.

Sioux Indian Chief On Visit to Capital

Red Tomahawk, 80, Credited With Having Killed Sitting Bull.

Chief Red Tomahawk, leader of the Sioux Nation, is in Washington, repaying the visit of Gen. Charles P. Summerall of the U. S. Army, who last year was the guest of the chief in his Western home. Chief Red Tomahawk, whose Indian name is Tacanepi-luta, is credited with being the man who killed Sitting Bull. The chief is 80 years old but has arranged a busy program during his stay in the Capital.

This morning he will leave the Carlton Hotel, at which he is staying, for Mount Vernon. Returning at noon, he will meet Senator Lynn J. Frazier, Senator Gerald P. Nye and Representative Sinclair, of North Dakota, at the White House. Following luncheon he will present a peace pipe to Vice President Curtis. Visits to the Capitol, Congressional Library, Lincoln Memorial and Ford's Theater are on his schedule.

The Tomb of the Unknown Soldier will claim the chief's attention early tomorrow morning, followed by a visit to sick World War veterans at Walter Reed Hospital. The chief will then go up in the Washington Monument for a farewell view of the city before returning to Chicago. Chief Red Tomahawk speaks only the Sioux language and carries on all conversations through an intepreter.

Rail Heads to Radiocast Beauties of Washington

In furtherance of a plan to advertise the beauties of Washington and other advantages, and present its appeal to the world, the heads of a number of railroads entering Washington are to be invited to make talks on Washington over national hookups of the radio, it was announced at the Board of Trade of Washington yesterday.

Samuel J. Prescott, a director of the board; L. E. Williams, chairman of the aviation committee of the board, and Robert J. Cottrell, executive secretary of the board, left last night to meet Gen. W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania system, in Philadelphia, to prevail upon him to make one of the talks. Other presidents who will be invited to talk on Washington will be Daniel Willard, of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, and Fairfax Harrison, of the Southern Railroad.

SHIELDS REELECTED DES MOINES U. HEAD

Made Acting President, Despite Threats of Students Not to Enter in Fall.

FOES FAIL TO GET POSTS

Des Moines, Iowa, June 20 (A.P.).—Dr. T. T. Shields, storm center in the recent Des Moines University controversy, was named acting president of the university "for purposes of reorganization" by the board of trustees today. He was also reelected president of the board.

Miss Edith Rebman, another of the central figures in the controversy, was also reelected secretary of the board of trustees.

Reelection of Dr. Shields and Miss Rebman came in the face of repeated threats on the part of many of the school's 400 students that they would not return next fall if the two continued in control.

Two members of the board who have been most active in opposing Dr. Shields were not reelected. They were Dr. H. C. Wayman, deposed president of the university, and the Rev. Miner Stevens, of Des Moines. They were not reelected, the board said in an official statement, because they "were the chief instigators of the recent disturbances in the university."

Baptist Ideals to be Kept.

"The work of the university will be carried on in strict conformity to the principles of evangelical christianity as held historically by Baptists, and as represented by the confession of faith of the Baptist Bible Union of North America," the statement said.

Dr. Shields was also made chairman of a faculty committee of the board, which was given full authority to make appointments. The board stipulated, however, that no appointment could be made without the most thorough knowledge of the appointee's record and that "only such persons shall be elected to the faculty as shall have demonstrated their whole-hearted devotion to Christ and his gospel."

While the board was meeting today behind closed doors, 29 dismissed faculty members and employes of the university filed petitions seeking more than $22,000 in unpaid salaries. The largest of the suits was that of Dr. Wayman for $3,184.34, claimed due him up to September 1, the date up to which most of the petitions demanded payment. The faculty was discharged en masse May 11 and the students staged an egg and rock riot in protest.

Blessing in Disguise Seen.

The board of trustees said in its statement that although it regretted the "recent occurrence in the university" and the wide publicity given the institution, it believes "it will in the end be seen to be a providential order of events in answer to the prayer of multitudes that the university should be made and then kept wholeheartedly true to the faith once and for all delivered to the saints."

The board announced that it was already in receipt of evidence that "multitudes of people" have been stirred to interest in the university and expressed confidence that the finances would be in a healthy condition by the fall opening.

Four new members of the board were announced—the Rev. Charles Fredman, La Salle, Ill.; the Rev. Hozard C. Fulton, Buffalo, N. Y.; R. C. Alderson, Austin, Minn., and the Rev. H. Rust, Guthrie Center, Iowa.

LUTHERANS DEFEND WARS FOR DEFENSE

Synod Upholds Government Obligation to Protect Citizens' Rights.

ATTACKS PACIFIST PLEA

River Forest, Ill., June 20 (A.P.).—War, although held abhorrent, is justifiable and necessary when national safety is concerned, it was emphasized at the Thirty-fourth Triennial Convention of the Evangelical Lutheran Missouri Synod.

"The Lutheran Church deplores war and the unspeakable sorrow which comes in the wake of such national catastrophes," reads the code of belief of the Lutheran Church released today at the convention. "The very thought of this brutal carnage must be repulsive to every sincere Christian who knows the admonition of his Lord, 'Love one another.'

"But any civil government is obligated to protect the lives and property of its citizens," the statement continued. "To cry 'Peace!' when there is no peace, to do away entirely with national defenses and safety, and to declare in an absolute manner 'No more wars!' is a procedure which is contrary to the scriptural admonition and national prudence."

The convention appropriated $189,000 for the expansion and building program of the Concordia Theological Seminary at Springfield, Ill., and sliced the request of the Concordia Theological Seminary at St. Louis.

Dr. Frederick Pfotenhauer, of Chicago, who has served as president of the synod since 1911, was reelected. Dr. Pfotenhauer, now 70 years old, organized the first churches of the synod in the Northwestern States 40 years ago. From 1891-1908 he was president of the Minnesota district.

Ten nominations, out of which four vice presidents will be chosen, were made. They include: The Rev. F. J. Lamkenau, Napoleon, Ohio; the Rev. William Dallman, Milwaukee; the Rev. H. Daib, Merrill, Wis.; Dean J. H. C. Fritz, St. Louis; the Rev. Frederick Brand, Springfield, Ill.; the Rev. J. W. Behnken, Houston, Tex.; the Rev. J. Miller, Fort Wayne, Ind.; the Rev. G. S. Schuessler, Chicago; the Rev. H. Grueber, Milwaukee, and the Rev. P. Lindeman, St. Paul.

Plot on Insurance Laid to Train Victim

Liability Company, Charging Fraud by Suicide, Refuses to Pay $30,000.

Indianapolis, June 20 (A.P.).—Charges that Will H. Latta, Indianapolis attorney, who was killed in a collision between a Monon train and an automobile on June 12, committed suicide and that circumstances surrounding his death indicate a scheme to defraud are contained in a letter sent to John S. Hunt, brother-in-law of Latta, by the Employers' Liability Assurance Corporation. The company has denied liability on an accident policy for $30,000 taken out by Latta only a few days before his death.

The letter to Hunt was turned over by him today to Frank C. Dailey, Indianapolis attorney, together with two other accident insurance policies, one for $30,000 with the Hartford Accident & Indemnity Co., and another for $25,000 with the United States Casualty Co. The policy with the Hartford concern was also taken out shortly before Latta's death. The third policy had been in effect several years.

Miss Margaret Sander, of Fort Wayne, fiancee of Latta, was named beneficiary of $40,000 worth of the accident insurance. Of this amount $20,000 was held by the United States Casualty Co. and a like sum by the Hartford Accident & Indemnity Co.

Des Moines Aviators Seek Endurance Mark

Des Moines, June 20 (A.P.).—Ross Arnold and Charles W. Gatschet, local aviators, announced today that they would attempt to break the world's airplane endurance record next month. The flight will be made in their remodeled cabin monoplane, named Greater Des Moines.

A similar plane, the Fort Worth, now holds the record with 172 hours.

Jadwin Successors Suggested to Good

Congress Members Advance Eligibles for Chief of Engineers.

Secretary of War Good announced yesterday that a number of members of Congress had suggested persons they regard qualified to succeed Maj. Gen. Edgar Jadwin as chief of Engineers of the Army when he retires from the service in August. Secretary Good added, though, that he had not yet taken any of the names under consideration.

Gen. Jadwin retires August 7 because of age. He was appointed to his present office two years ago this month by President Coolidge.

Under a special act passed by Congress in March, 1915, Gen. Jadwin will retire with the rank of lieutenant general as a result of his services on the Panama Canal. He will be the only lieutenant general on either the active or inactive list.

Oil Leakage Defeats Endurance Flight Test

Minneapolis, June 20 (A.P.).—Leaking of oil caused the second attempt of Gene Shank and Owen I. Haughland to set a new world's airplane refueling endurance record to end in failure today. Shank and Haughland in their plane, Miss Minneapolis, landed at Wold-Chamberlain airport.

Their oil supply leaked out while flying over a triangular course between the twin cities, Northfied and Hastings, Minn., they said. They took off yesterday at 2:55 p. m. and had been in the air thirteen hours. Shank said they would take off later in a third attempt to break the record of 172 hours.

Beuchler to Announce in New York

Washington Barytone Is Promoted to Prize Station; Harold Provenson to Replace Him on WRC Staff; Bethmann Story.

Despite plenty of static listening conditions last night were about the average for this time of the year. Eastern stations, such as WJZ, New York, and WPG, Atlantic City, came in well. Also WLW, Cincinnati, but the Chicago stations not so good. There was considerable fading.

The National Broadcasting Co. has announced that George Beuchler, barytone-announcer, will be transferred to the New York studios, beginning Monday. Mr. Beuchler has been on the staff of Station WRC for about a year and a half. He is one of the youngest announcers in the business and his moving on to New York will afford him a wider field for the development of his ability as an announcer and the cultivation of his singing voice.

Harold Provenson, brother of Marthin Provenson, will replace Mr. Beuchler on WRC's staff. While Harold Provenson is not gifted with a singing voice, as is his brother, Marthin, he speaks several languages fluently. In addition to the Provensons, other announcers heard from WRC are George F. Ross and George F. Hicks.

The transfer of Mr. Beuchler to New York, the goal of all announcers, is in the nature of a promotion, the last announcer to be moved on having been John B. Daniel. Daniel attracted wide attention through his announcing of the Chicago Civic Opera broadcasts.

A long-time resident of Washington, George Beuchler, was at one time a boy soprano in the choir of St. Patrick's here. He was introduced into the announcing game by George F. Ross, who helped secure the audition for him. The station management had tried out an unusually large number of voices in the search for just the right quality, then Mr. Ross brought young Beuchler over for a test, and he was engaged almost immediately.

During his stay at WRC, Mr. Beuchler has announced many prominent persons and there is no doubt but that Washington listeners will hear him frequently on the network programs originating in either WEAF or WJZ.

"Amos 'n' Andy" will be discontinued from station WOL after tomorrow night's presentation. While the National Broadcasting Co. has not yet announced its plans for this comedy team, it is understood they will be available for broadcasting by the network about August 20.

WOL has presented the feature via phonograph records and the ten minutes each evening has had a large following among local fans.

For almost a solid week recently Darl Bethmann, barytone, who has been heard in several NBC programs, spent his spare hours practicing a burnt-cork dialect. He has been cast as a negro comedy character in a new program, and previously he had done most of his singing "straight."

"I almost made a slip Monday, though," Bethmann confessed. "I did a whole phrase of a song on another program in negro dialect before I remembered I was supposed to be singing plain English. No one caught it, though, for I realized my mistake before I had sung any words in which the dialect would show up strongly."

While he was rehearsing his blackface part, Bethmann also was rehearsing with the National Grand Opera Company.

"There's no danger of going wrong in opera," Bethmann added, "you can't sing French or Italian with an accent."

Formal Mode

The opening of Les Ambassadeurs—that extremely chic summer restaurant in the heart of Paris—shows the evening mode as it is accepted by the smart world. A profusion of jewels and flowers marked the event, this year. Rubies, emeralds and pearls vied for elegance with sheaths of real orchids. Three-quarter-length coats of rich lame bordered with chinchilla were noted as high fashion among wraps. Pastel shades were predominent in the fabrics of the gowns, and plain colors seemed to eclipse the prints. Sky-blue, lavender-blue and opal-white are reported as the most popular of the new shades.

For a formal event of equal importance, the gown illustrated here is an excellent choice. Developed of soft taffeta in that subtle tone—opal-white—it would prove an effective background for elaborate jewels. Its deep decoltage and polonaise drapery about the hips are formal details, as is the lengthened line of the skirt formed by the loops and ends of the drapery.

What Today Means to You

June 21.

By MARY BLAKE.

"Gemini."

If June 21 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 12 noon to 2 p. m., from 5 p. m. to 6 p. m. and from 10 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:10 a. m. to 9 a. m. and from 3 p. m. to 4 p. m.

The astrological controls for this day are very strong, but care must be used that you do not let their invigorating influences lead you astray, through headstrong and impulsive actions. Let common-sense be your check-rein!

Children born June 21 will need a few hard knocks to call out their strength from within, and to develop their characters as nothing else will. Pampering will be their ruination. They will need to be taught self-reliance.

There is a decided streak of envy and jealousy in your nature. You are always wishing that you were in somebody else's boots, and you can always find something about which to be unhappy. To envy is an emotion of futility. Get it out of your system! On the other hand, your desire to emulate the achievements of another only shows that you have ambition in your veins. You will get ahead much faster when you stop watching the crops of others—there are plenty of golden apples to be plucked by all. The passing of the years will not dim your interest in things, and you will always be in step with the times, and many times a pace or two ahead.

You are willing to "take a chance" and are sometimes venturesome to the verge of foolhardiness. While you are energetic, much of your energy is misapplied. You rather gloat over your victories, and are unduly depressed by your failures. You have too independent a nature to take kindly to dictation from others, and it would be better for you to be your own boss even on a small scale, than to attempt something more profitable as a subordinate. You like to travel, and you are eager to learn and improve your mind.

Successful people born June 21:

Alexander J. Dallas—Statesman.

Morris K. Jesup—Merchant and philanthropist.

Daniel C. Beard—Artist.

Henry Guy Carleton—Author and playwright.

Henry Holden Huss—Musician.

Yale Races With Harvard Over Radio

Rowing Classic at New London Will Be Broadcast Over WRC at 6; Popular Song Music on WMAL; Fiddlers 10:15.

The annual rowing classic of collegiate America, the eight-oared tilt between Harvard and Yale, will be broadcast by Graham McNamee from the finish line over the National Broadcasting System, including WRC, at 6 o'clock this afternoon.

The spectacle along the course on the Thames River, New London, Conn., will be described by McNamee and Paul Dumont, and the actual progress of the frail shells in their race for the finish line will be reported almost stroke for stroke.

Four microphones will be placed along the course—at the starting line, at Submarine Base, at Cows Point and at the finish line. McNamee and Dumont will be assisted by James F. Clancy, manager of WTI, Hartford, which will act as key station of the system for this broadcast.

Secretary of Labor James J. Davis and Senator Hiram Bingham, of Connecticut, will be the speakers in the "Half Hours With the Senate" program at 9:30 o'clock from WRC. Senator Bingham has selected "The Senate as a Jury" for his subject.

Classical works of lyric composers are featured in the weekly broadcast of the Cities Service hour at 7 o'clock. Kreisler's "Liebesfreud" and Tschaikowsky's "Romance in F Minor" are listed among the orchestral highlights, with an additional feature in the violin solo by Sascha Fidelman, "Danse Hongroise." Characteristic songs by the Cavaliers will include "Frankie and Johnny," "Sally of My Dreams" and "Annie Laurie."

A tuneful broadcast, "Summer Melodies," will be continued under the direction of Harry Horlick, with a list of vocal and instrumental favorites, at 8 o'clock from WRC. The orchestra, under Horlick's baton, will be assisted by Dolores Cassinelli, soprano, and Julian Oliver, tenor.

Dance forms in vogue in the eighteenth century, most of which now survive in the string orchestra suites, mainly compose the program for the hour of slumber music at 10 o'clock. Ludwig Laurier will direct the program, which follows in detail:

Overture from "Iphigenia in Aulis" and "Dance of the Furies" (Gluck), "Ballet Suite" (Rameau), menuet and finale from "Military Symphony" (Haydn), "Sarabande and Gigue" and "Largo" (Handel), "Bourree" from "Violin Sonata" (Bach) and "Meditation" (Bach-Gounod).

WMAL has announced the following program for the Then and Now period at 7:30 o'clock:

"Sweet Marie," "Marie," "Oh, Oh, Oh, What a Night!" "Oh, Baby, What a Night," "Oh, You Beautiful Doll," "Glad Rag Doll," "On the Alamo," "In Old Tia Juana," "For I'm Falling in Love With Someone," "I've Got a Feelin' I'm Fallin'," "Sally in Our Alley" and "I'm Sorry, Sally."

Dorsey Byron will sing "When My Dreams Come True" as a feature of the musical program surrounding Doc West's words of wisdom, when this half-hour is presented at 9:30 o'clock tonight. She has also chosen "Here We Are" as a contribution to this program.

The quartet will harmonize in a "Great Day" medley, "Baby's Awake Now," "Walking in the Sunshine" and "Finding the Long Way Home," while the orchestra will play "Garden in the Rain," "Feeling I'm Falling," "Sposin'" and "Do Something."

A dance orchestra will be heard from WMAL between 10:15 and 11 o'clock.

Katherine Dunning, pinaist, will be heard from WOL at 6:30 o'clock, followed by the Red Wings and "Amos 'n' Andy." Morning features will include the Variety hour, a household chat by Peggy Clarke and a beauty talk by Bertha Parker.

Bill Thompson's Champion Fiddlers will be the last feature from WJSV at 10:15 o'clock, preceded by the Gondoliers and the Harmelody Boys.

Bran Hughes' Rhythm Boys will play from 7:30 to 8 o'clock.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

DEATH AND THE MISER.

He piled it up in a yellow heap
The golden harvest he'd worked to reap.
The years seemed long and the cares seemed great,
Said his wife: "Let's spend," but he answered: "Wait,
Not now! Not Now! We've our lives to live,
We may come to want if we spend or give."

Richer he grew as the years went by
But he still stayed deaf to a poor man's cry,
And he still held fast to his golden store
Refusing to give till he'd gathered more,
And the years went on and his old age came,
But his fear of poverty stayed the same.

One night as he slept Death called and said:
"Come on! It's time for the trip ahead.
Never mind dressing! You've nothing to pack!
Don't worry, old man. You're not coming back.
Leave everything just as it is right now,
Your friends will take care of it all somehow.

"The money you've saved? Just leave that, too,
There's nothing up to there that your gold can do.
Don't you start springing the wornout moan
Of the good you'd have done if you'd only known.
You dead men weary me with your cry:

WORK'S BRIDGE

"The Auction Player unfamiliar with Contract is apt to be troubled by the big difference between Auction and Contract values for tricks, undertricks, premiums, slams and rubbers, &c. The vulnerability feature of Contract is also apt to be confusing.

"As a special service to our readers, Mr. Work will be glad to send you upon request, complimentary, a complete statement explaining all these new features, provided you inclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope for his reply. Mr. Work also answers all Auction and Contract questions without charge."

Continuing our series of Contract bidding hands, let us look at an interesting one I saw recently.

South had a strong No Trump hand except for the weak doubleton in Clubs which made that bid seem dangerous. His No Trump count was 19, provided the weak suit is better than a low doubleton, but with only two Clubs Nine high, he thought it better to show his strength by bidding two Spades. West passed and North raised to three Spades. On the basis of the count used for jumping partner's suit-bid, North's hand counted two in Hearts, six in Diamonds and one in Clubs; a total of 9, or one more than enough. With normal Spade support and ample jumping strength, North would not have been justified in shifting to his five-card Q-J Heart suit.

South, appreciating that North's jump might have been made with only three Spades, made a bid generally sound after a four-card suit-bid and a jump by partner, viz., No Trumps. South's three No Trump told North that South had only four Spades and whether to try for game at No Trumps or Spades.

When the three No Trumps came around to North he knew that the adversaries had six Spades and that game would be improbable in that suit. At the same time, with a partner who could not bid No Trump initially, three No Trumps looked dangerous and it seemed wiser to take out with four Hearts. If Hearts happened to be the weak suit that kept South from bidding No Trumps originally, North could bid four No Trumps safely; but if Hearts was one of South's strong suits it was much better to play with that suit the trump than at No Trump. Hearts pleased South and game was made easily at that contract.

TODAY'S WOMEN

By EARL MINDERMAN

June 21.

Martha Washington, wife of the Father of his Country, was born this day, 1731. She was the daughter of one of the first families of Virginia and was one of the famous belles of Colonial America. In 1749 she married Daniel Parke Custis, a wealthy Virginia planter. The marriage was a happy one and they had four children. Two died in infancy. Custis died in 1757, leaving his widow one of the wealthiest women in Virginia.

She became engaged to Col. George Washington a year later and in another year they were married.

It was one of the most brilliant weddings ever solemnized in Virginia. With her children they settled at Mount Vernon, leading the life of planters.

Then came the Revolutionary War. During the campaigns, she adopted the simplest manner of living and superintended the plantation. The winters, including the one at Valley Forge, she spent with her husband. Her daughter, Martha, died at the age of 16. Her remaining son also died. His children were adopted by the Washingtons.

Martha Washington never recovered from the bereavement following her husband's death in 1799 and died two years later.

The two rest side by side in the vault at Mount Vernon.

SPORTS occupy such an all-important place in British life that it is not surprising we find in England sports wear developed to a high point of attractiveness and practicability.

A recent visit to London convinced us that silks, and especially the tussore silks, will be very popular for summer wear of this type. The sheer wool fabrics are also strong, and one enticing outfit of ondamoussa had a short flared skirt in an off-white tint and a jumper of canary yellow. At the hipline was embroidered a whole row of teeny tennis rackets in black and green yarn.

SOME of the models conserve the straight line dear to the Paris creators of sports wear by using myriad pleats in the skirt, while others had a flared skirt of great width. These latter are particularly popular, more especially because the absence of pleats means much less frequent trips to the cleaners!

Very short jackets of fuzzy woolen material are popular for wear with these sports dresses. One of these was of white angora, with crochet edging and wool embroidery on the pockets. A matching white beret with a bit of the crochet completed the outfit. Berets are very popular, especially in plaids, and many of them have matching sports socks, a very attractive combination.

ELEGANTLY and languidly, yet with a determination typically Parisian, the Haute Couture has turned its attention to sports wear of a truly sports type—that is, lines and styles for shooting, for polo, &c.

The polo clothes are almost exactly like the suits worn by men for this sport. The white helmet, the knitted shirt and vest or the plain white riding shirt, and the white or tan breeches and field boots are all parts of this outfit.

Culotte (keu-lote)—bloomers, knickers.

• • • •

A PERFECT example of Redfern elegance is expressed in the beige georgette gown illustrated for you today. It is so simply trimmed with insertions of matching taffeta! But, the taffeta is entirely cut out to give the effect of an open-work design, and the cut-out part is outlined in beads. Lovely?

Smart Beach Coats!

Last week we told you how to make a smart and different bathing suit, a beach hat and bag. This week send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for an illustrated leaflet, which tells you how to make two very smart beach coats—and—sh-h-h-h-h—beach trousers to be worn over your bathing suit!

• • • •

DON'T forget that these beach robes make very practical and smart bath robes, if you are not beaching this year.

You will find Mme. Dare's weekly fashion letter appearing exclusively in the Capital in The Sunday Post. It has much of interest.

The Seedless Orange.

HAVE you had your orange juice today?

If you drink a glass of orange juice each day, or eat at least one orange, it will help you to be healthy. Of course, it won't save you from all possible sickness; but it will assist you to guard against colds and troubles of the stomach.

An Orange Cluster.

Fruits in general are healthful, and the orange is one of the best of the fruits. It contains "vitamines" which are important to the human body. It also contains "calcium," a substance which builds bone.

Yet the main reason the orange is popular is not because of its health-giving power—people eat oranges because they like them. Orange juice tastes good and is good.

In the old days a person could not buy an orange which did not contain seeds. That was before the coming of the "navel orange."

The navel orange seems to have been an accident of nature. The story goes that it was first found by a gardener in Brazil. The gardener noticed that the oranges on one of the limbs of an orange tree contained no seeds. From sprigs containing buds on that limb, he grew trees which also bore fruit without seeds.

In 1870 a dozen small navel orange trees were sent from Brazil to Washington, D. C. The Secretary of Agriculture forwarded two of the trees to Mrs. Eliza Tibbets, who planted them in California. Fruit from those trees took first prize at a citrus fair, and the planting of navel orange trees, by the use of sprigs, spread through the State. Today about half of the oranges raised in California are seedless. Florida produces good-flavored oranges, but attempts to grow navel oranges there have met with little success.

LATE PROFIT TAKING PARES EARLY GAINS

UTILITIES RISE FURTHER

New York, June 20 (A.P.).—Strong rallying tendencies developed in today's stock market on indications of a gradual easing of basic credit conditions, but late profit taking cut down some of the early gains. Traders received somewhat of a shock after the close of the market when the weekly Federal Reserve Bankers' loan statement disclosed an increase of $136,000,000, bringing the total to $5,420,000,000. Wall street had expected little change in loans, the large gain being attributed to the expiration of stock "rights" this week.

Public utilities, measured by the Associated Press index of 20 leading issues, advanced to another new high record, with some of the Western issues coming to the front as group leaders. Rails showed little change on the day and industrials were irregular, although the index of 50 leading issues showed a gain of about one point. Trading was relatively light in volume, the day's sales falling well below 3,000,000 shares.

Call money held steady at 7 per cent all day, although bankers thought yesterday the rate would go higher today because of the approaching midyear credit strain. Time money rates eased further, with long-term loans cut from 8 to 7¾ per cent, but with other maturities holding at the flat 8 per cent basis. Neither the Bank of England nor the New York or St. Louis Federal Reserve Banks made any change in discount rates.

Further Recovery in Grains.

A further recovery in grain prices, wheat rising 3 cents a bushel on reduced Kansas crop estimates and a better foreign demand, had a cheerful effect on speculative sentiment. One of the most important developments of the day was the announcement, after the close of the market, of a plan for the merger of the Fleischmann Co., Royal Baking Powder Co. and E. W. Gillett Co., Ltd., a Canadian baking powder concern, through an exchange of stock. Fleischmann and Royal Baking Powder stocks each rallied more than 2 points in anticipation of the announcement, which was made by J. P. Morgan & Co.

Commission houses with Western connections were heavy buyers of Pacific Coast Utilities, Pacific Gas & Electric and Pacific Lighting climbing to new high records. Public Service of New Jersey was one of the most active issues of the day, climbing more than 6 points to a new high record at 106½ and retaining most of its gain. American Water Works touched a new high at 146½ and then dropped back to 141, off 2 points net. New peak prices also were registered by Brooklyn Union Gas and Philadelphia Co. Standard Gas & Electric, which was strong earlier in the week, fell back more than 4 points.

Electric Equipments Move Up.

Electric equipment shares also extended their recent gains. Allis Chalmers jumped 11½ points to a new high at 228, and closed at the top. Westinghouse Electric climbed to a new high at 174¾, up 5 points net. General Electric closed a point higher at 303 after having fluctuated between 299 and 305⅞.

Mexican Seaboard was heavily bought on reports of important discoveries on its California properties, the stock closing 3½ points higher. Skelly also pointed upward, but most of the other oils were sluggish in reflection of the large increase in crude oil production last week.

Childs Co. ran up nearly 7 points to within a fraction of the year's high, and Frank G. Shattuck climbed 6 points to a new peak at 172½ and then eased 1¼ points on realizing. International Business Machines, Underwood Elliott Fisher, Timken Roller Bearing and National Dairy Products all reached new high ground for the year.

New Lows for the Year.

New low prices for the year were registered by Dunhill International, Hayes Body, Federal Motor Truck, Gimbel Bros, American Woolen preferred, Art Loom and a few other relatively obscure issues. Otis Elevator dropped 8¼ points on one sale.

Cotton fluctuated within rather narrow and irregular limits, showing little change on the day. Sugar and coffee prices held fairly steady.

British and Argentine exchanges stiffened further in reflection of recent gold withdrawals for export to this country, and the Spanish peseta recovered the drop of 1-5 of a cent recorded yesterday.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, June 20 (A.P.).—The cotton market was quiet and irregular again today with early declines under near month liquidation and a little selling on favorable weather and crop advices, followed by rallies on covering and trade buying. After selling off to 18.63, October advanced to 18.72, or 3 points net higher, and closed at 18.69. The general market closed steady at a net decline of 6 points on July, but generally unchanged to 1 point higher.

The opening was steady at a decline of 3 to 9 points and prices soon showed net losses of 6 to 8 points, with July selling off to 18.30 and December to 18.79 under liquidation and some local or commission house selling, which was promoted by the relatively easy showing of Liverpool and an idea that weather conditions in the South were fairly favorable for the development of the crop.

Offerings were comparatively light, while a better demand developed around 18.30 for July, or at a discount of about 35 to 36 points under October. In many cases sellers of July were buying the later months, and the absorption of July contracts at the wider difference helped to steady the market.

Failure of favorable features in the weather and crop news to bring in more aggressive selling was another factor which promoted covering, and the market rallied during the afternoon. New crop months led the advance as buyers of July did not seem inclined to follow the market upward, and December sold up to 18.90, or about 4 points net higher. While the highest price touched by July was 18.35, or 4 points below yesterday's final quotation. Last prices were a little off from the best under realizing.

Rumors that some unfavorable crop reports were being received from the Southwest may have helped the afternoon rally, but a large part of the day's business was supposed to be connected with the evening-up of July contracts. Next Tuesday will be the first July notice day in the local market and the widening of the differences between months would suggest expectations of liberal tenders.

Private cables said that local covering and trade calling had been supplied by continental selling in the Liverpool market, but noted an improved demand from China and said increased sales were reported in cotton goods at the Shanghai auctions.

Exports today, 6,146, making 7,896,983 so far this season. Port receipts, 2,322. United States port stocks, 897,223.

ON YOUR VACATION-

Going Camping in Maine?

DEEP in the Big Woods . . . a tent pitched under murmuring pines—trout biting on a mist-covered lake man! Once you've spent a vacation up there, you know what real sport is! Are you going to make it this year? Or are you worrying about that draw-back to all vacation pleasure—expenses?

If you've saved carefully, invested wisely, you probably are already planning that long canoe trip, through chains of tree-fringed lakes. Hundreds of men, whose modest investments will pay all their vacation expenses, are getting ready for the big event.

Without touching a cent of their regular earnings, many investors in the First Mortgage Notes offered through Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Company every year spend a glorious vacation-time—their finances taken care of by the unfailing 6% return these notes yield.

Two Billion Dollars

JUST as the wise farmer "ploughs back" a crop to enrich the soil, so great corporations "plough back" a large percentage of their annual income to surplus and reserves. The combined surplus of the 28 great corporations underlying is more than five billion dollars—more than enough to pay dividends at last year's rate for seven years. Holders of North American Trust Shares own an interest in and share in all dividends from these 28 corporations which, since 1921, have "ploughed back" more than two billion dollars. Write for particulars.

BONDS MOVE LITTLE IN COLORLESS MART

SOME CARRIERS IMPROVE

New York, June 20 (A.P.).—Bond prices see-sawed through a colorless session today. Swings in either direction were mostly short, and once again the bulk of the trading was in a handful of the public utility convertibles, which advanced with the stocks of those companies.

Despite an easement in time money, which placed the charge for the longer maturities at 7¾ to 8 per cent, and retention of the 7 per cent call rate against expectations of an advance, investors remained aloof from the fixed-return securities. At 7¾ per cent time loans were available at the lowest rate in three months, and the easier tone was obviously seen as a favorable factor for the market.

Utility bonds, which can be exchanged for stock, had a good day. Public Service of New Jersey 4½s hopped up 9 points to another new high at 230, while International Telephone 4½s advanced 1½ and American Telephone 4½s improved ⅝. The volume in the last-named bonds was again large, exceeding $1,500,000, principal amount.

Rails of the better grade, particularly the mortgages, improved a trifle in reflection of the money situation, although inquiry was limited. Northern Pacific General 3s mounted nearly 2 points, Pennsylvania Consolidated 4s gained ⅝, and Atchison general 4s, ⅜. Secondary and speculative rails were irregular.

Industrials and utilities moved sluggishly. Outstanding weak spots were Warner Sugar refunding 7s, down 9½, and White Sewing Machine 6s, the latter yielding 5 points. Anaconda 6s, called for redemption on August 1 at 105, sold off slightly.

Utah Power & Light 5s, North American Edison 5½s, New York Telephone 6s, and New England Telephone 5s and 4½s were leaders in the utility group, but the quotations hovered around the previous close. National Dairy Products 5¼s moved in good volume, with no net change.

Liberty bonds and Treasury certificates were firm to stronger on small transactions. In the foreign list the French Government issues brought out the best demand, but failed to gain. Obligations in this group held generally firm.

Curb Review

New York, June 20 (A.P.).—Activity was chiefly on the selling side in today's Curb Market as the upper New York State utilities broke sharply on the announcement of merger terms by J. P. Morgan & Co. Buying in some of the Western Power stocks, which were independently strong on talks of further mergers and capital readjustments, brought about a temporary rally in the mid-afternoon. New high prices for the year were reached by nearly a dozen issues.

Trading fell off in anticipation of an increase in brokers' loans, but the street was taken by surprise by the $136,000,000 jump reported after the close of the market. The New York Federal Reserve directors left the rediscount rate at 5 per cent. Call money held at 7 per cent.

Today's fireworks were supplied by American Light & Traction, a subsidiary of United Light & Power, which skyrocketed 27 points to a record price of 284½. It closed at 275½. A Stock Exchange offer, it is understood, is to be made to minority stockholders by United Light & Power. United Gas Improvement, which holds stock in Public Service of New Jersey, ran up more than 6 points to a new high at 223⅞, in sympathy with the strength on the "Big Board" in the latter. Electric Investors got up to a new high at 183¾, but its 3½-point gain was converted into a ¼-point loss in the late afternoon selling wave. Electric Bond & Share also got up to a new high, but its gain of 1⅛ was likewise turned into a fractional loss.

Stocks and warrants of Niagara Hudson Power, the new Morgan New York State holding company, declined steadily after their admission to trading at noon. Class A option warrants ranged from 8⅛ to 8¼. The stock opened at 25¼ and closed at 23¾. Buffalo, Niagara & Eastern common and "A" shares broke 7¼ and 5⅞, respectively, to 100 and 100¾. Four shares of Niagara Hudson and one class A option warrant are offered in exchange for one "A" or common shares of Buffalo, Niagara & Eastern. Northeastern Power dropped 4¾ to 66. For each Northeastern Power share 2 2-3 shares of Niagara Hudson common and 2-3 of a class A warrant are to be given. Mohawk Hudson Power, after opening strong, broke in the afternoon and closed off 2 points net. Niagara Hudson is offering 3½ common shares and ⅞ of an option warrant for each share of Mohawk Hudson. Commonwealth & Southern, in which contracts were settled today, lost ground.

Radio shares, which have been encountering a rather thin market of late, were well supported. Grigsby-Grunow rose 1½, and Zenith 2½. Marconi International, which is figuring in a merger of British cable and wireless companies, was actively bought, advancing 1½.

Oils failed to respond to tank wagon gasoline prices on the West Coast. Illinois Pipe Line broke 4 points, and Gulf 1¾.

In the specialties new lows were touched by Helena Rubenstein, Horn & Co., International Safety Razor "B" and American Stove, the last dropping 14 points.

WASHINGTON: FRIDAY, JUNE 21, 1929.

RED SOX POUND LISKA TO BEAT NATS IN OPENER, 6-4

BOXING DOES —It Would Seem— ABOUT FACE

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

NEW YORK, June 20.—It may signify some type of turpitude or depravity, but your correspondent is cheered to note that Peter Reilly and Joseph Jacobs, the prize fight managers, are partners again, in the management of Max Schmeling, and that Mr. Max (Boo Boo) Hoff, the noted character of Philadelphia, has been an honored visitor to Schmeling's camp in New Jersey. These three represent that school of ethics which stands exactly opposite the beautiful pretentions of the socially refined element, and they live down to the pugilist ideals with far greater consistency than the uplift element ever lived up to theirs.

But, at that, there is less hypocrisy in three thorough-going cynics than there is in one part-time idealist, and one may now know roughly what to expect in the prize fight between Schemiling and Paulino Uzcudun in New York next Thursday evening.

Peter and Joe Are There Despite Improvements.

The Messrs. Reilly and Jacobs personify to me all that is characteristic of the prize fighting industry, which derives most of its charm from its incorrigible resistance to sweetness and refinement.

For a hundred years and more successive groups of male lady bountifuls have gone down into this sporting slum to bring out the good that is supposed to be in the boys. And now, after the most energetic onslaught of culture that pugilism has ever known, one finds running water substituted for the old, insanitary waterbucket and brass ring-posts and plush ropes of great beauty, but one also finds Peter and Joe managing the prize fighter who probably will become the heavyweight champion of the world. And Boo Boo Hoff visiting their training camp!

Fighting Simply Not a Dress Suit Business.

I hold that prize fighting is no more susceptible to refinement than a mob is to the rules of parliamentary order, and this is a pleasant vindication of that belief. But I am glad to see them together again for the additional reason that they contribute much to the gaiety of the business, it being great fun to unfold, always belatedly, their professional machinations, which represent a high degree of cunning, like the whip-lash plots of O. Henry.

These machinations never hurt any one except those who think of the championships as things of beauty and even they are injured only in their imagination, because, actually, there is no such thing as a championship of the world. The socially refined element always demand to be regarded as fine people while sailing little boats in the gutters of sport and they seem never to learn definitely that this simply is not a dress suit occupation.

Reilly Likely to Make Schmeling Champion.

I suggest that Max Schmeling will become the heavyweight champion of the world not only because he seems to be the best of the heavyweights just now, but also because Mr. Reilly is exerting himself in his behalf. This must disquiet Paulino and his directors, because if past performances mean anything, it means that Paulino can get considerably the worst of it.

The shoeless Spaniard had one experienced a few summers ago which should have taught him that the chisel is mightier than the 6-ounce boxing gloves, but then these Latins seem unable to adjust their mental attitude to the facts of life in American pugilism. Luis Angel Firpo had no manager, but only some amateur advisers of his own race and the best they could offer in defense of his interests was a courteous protest when they should have chiseled back.

In his previous experience with Peter Reilly, Paulino was fighting Jack Delaney, a light heavyweight of beautiful figure and grace, who was a bit touchy in the body. There was brisk betting on Delaney, which was curious, because all probabilities visible to the naked eye favored Paulino. Delaney stroked Paulino's chin some few times in the first few rounds, but his hands were softer than the Spaniard's jaw and presently his knuckles were so badly bruised that he had no way to hold off the attack. Paulino then began to annoy him with pokes at the body. These were all strictly on the fairway and as they became more numerous, Delaney bowed his back in an effort to draw away from them.

Brisk Betting on Delaney Had Its Peculiarities.

At this stage the referee disqualified Paulino on a charge of fouling and offered Delaney his arm to support him back to his chair. Somehow, Delaney

Yale-Harvard Crews Race Today

Elis' Veteran Squad Choice Over Crimson's Braun.

Fair Weather Is Promised; 10,000 to See Annual Classic.

By GEORGE KIRKSEY (United Press Staff Correspondent).

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 20 (U.P.).—America's oldest intercollegiate sporting event will be renewed along about sundown tomorrow, when the Yale and Harvard varsity crews row four miles up the Thames River.

Yale and Harvard first met on the water in 1852 and have been racing in boats almost annually ever since.

The last few years it has been Yale which has been doing winning rowing, and tonight the prospects were much the same as they were last year, when the Blue won by ten lengths. Yale has won six out of the last seven races.

It was not so much "Which will win?" but "How much will Yale win by?" that absorbed the advance guard of the gay, carefree college crowd which was gathering here tonight.

Yale has a light but strong and experienced crew, which lost only one race this season—by half a length—to the stalwart Columbia crew, and has shown better form than Harvard in the time trials.

Harvard has the heavier, more powerful crew, but has never seemed to reach the limit of its possibilities.

Crimson Crew Has Been Improving Fast.

The Crimson crew has been coming on fast during the past few weeks, and tomorrow's race will rest with just how far it has come since moving to the Red Top training camp.

A good look at the Harvard boat, with Tim Clark, football tackle, weighing 215 pounds, Ben Harrison, weighing 188 and Mike Johnson weighing 196, putting their big brawny shoulders into the sweep of the oars, and one wonders if this Crimson crew hasn't been taken a bit too lightly.

In the long run, it may be the weight which will hold the Harvard shell back in a gruelling 4-mile race, but in all outward appearances—time trial and season records notwithstanding—Harvard doesn't look like any losing combination.

Leader Has Brilliant Record at Yale.

Ed Leader's crews, which reach way out over the gunwales for a hard catch at the beginning of the stroke, have a way of getting a longer run for their money than those developed by Ed Brown, the Harvard mentor. Since Leader came out of the Northwest to direct the Yale crews, Old Eli has lost only one race to Harvard.

Both crews were reported in splendid condition tonight from their camps—Yale at Gales Ferry and Harvard at Red Top.

Down in the heart of this little, old whaling center tonight there was hardly room to turn around. Old grads, undergraduates with blue and crimson feathers in their hats, pretty subdebs carrying chrysanthemums dyed their favorite color—these and many more were preparing for a gala time on the morrow. With fair weather promised, a crowd of 100,000 is expected to see the varsity race. The freshmen and junior varsity races will be rowed over the 2-mile course tomorrow morning.

Pladner in Hospital Following Knockout by Unheralded Opponent

PARIS, June 20 (A.P.).—Spider Pladner, erstwhile kingpin of the European flyweights, was in a state of coma at a hospital here after being knocked out tonight by Gene Hunt, an unheralded French bantamweight. The French conqueror of Izzy Schwartz and Frankie Genaro entered the ring against Hunt with nothing but confidence as an asset and was severely beaten, being knocked down eighteen times before the referee intervened in the fifteenth and final round. He was out on his feet leaning against the ropes.

The doctors at the Hospital Lariboisiere, say that no serious damage was done by the beating and when Pladner recovers he will be "as good as ever."

Pladner, who recently abandoned the flyweights to campaign as a 118-pounder, was scheduled for a trip to the United States next month, but that probably will be called off now.

The fight was even up to the last round.

Braves Rally in Third To Down Robins, 4 to 2

Boston, June 20 (A.P.).—A rally in the third for four runs enabled the Boston Braves to win a close game from Brooklyn here today, 4 to 2. The victory, the third straight for the home team in the series, enabled the Braves to move into sixth place. Maguire's two-bagger was the only hit off Watson Clark in Boston's big inning, but Brooklyn committed two errors and Clark passed one man and permitted two sacrifices.

The visitors outhit the home forces by 6 to 5, due to a ninth-inning rally for three hits and one run.

Women's Golf Favorites Survive

Mrs. Nicolson to Play Mrs. Haynes Today for D. C. Title.

Former Champion in 19-Hole Win Over Mrs. Hodges.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

THE final round for the women's District of Columbia golf championship will be played this morning between Mrs. Dorothy White Nicolson, of the Washington Golf and Country Club, who has held the title during the past three years, and Mrs. J. M. Haynes, Columbia, who won the championship in 1925 and was runner-up in 1926. In the latter event Mrs. Nicolson, then Miss Dorothy White, defeated Mrs. Haynes on the nineteenth hole in the final round played on the course of the Congressional Club.

Today's match starts at 9:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Nicolson yesterday scored an easy victory over Mrs. L. B. Chapman, Congressional, winning 8 up and 7 to play, but Mrs. Haynes had a nineteen-hole struggle against Mrs. J. M. Hodges, of the Congressional Club. Winning the first hole when Mrs. Hodges' drive landed her ball in the ditch, Mrs. Haynes was 1 down at the eighth tee. With the eighth hole halved, Mrs. Haynes won the ninth hole when she stymied her opponent and the players began the homeward journey all even.

Mrs. Haynes Scores Par 4 On 19th Hole to Triumph.

With the tenth and eleventh halved, Mrs. Haynes won the twelfth and became 1 up by virtue of another stymie, and then won the thirteenth with a par 3. Losing the fourteenth but winning the fifteenth, she again became 2 up, but lost the sixteenth when her tee shot went into the ditch, an error which was followed by three putts. Then she lost the seventeenth, making the match all even. The eighteenth was halved in 5s. On the nineteenth both players were on the green in three, but Mrs. Haynes' approach had left her ball within 3 feet of the cup, and when she holed out for a par 4 she had reached the final round.

In the consolation flight of the first sixteen, Mrs. Y. E. Booker, Washington, will play the final round this morning against Mrs. E. R. Tilley, Indian Spring. Mrs. Booker yesterday defeated Mrs. Perry B. Hoover, Indian Spring, while Mrs. Tilley eliminated Mrs. H. A. Knox, Congressional, although both matches were by the narrow margin of 1 up.

The second flight was won yesterday by Mrs. William S. Corby, Columbia, with Mrs. C. I. Putnam, Columbia, runner-up.

The other flight winners were: Third—Mrs. L. L. Steele, Indian Spring, winner; Miss Dorothy Hunter, Indian Spring, runner-up. Fourth—Mrs. B. C. Hartig, Manor, winner; Mrs. J. F. Gross, Indian Spring, runner-up. Fifth—Miss Sue E. Gantt, Bannockburn, winner; Mrs. E. L. Powell, Manor, runner-up.

Secretary Davis to Award Prizes This Afternoon.

Miss Mollie Hodges, the 14-year-old daughter of Mrs. J. M. Hodges, Congressional, and the youngest player in the tournament, won the consolation in the fifth flight in a match against Mrs. Hugh MacKenzie, Columbia which went to the twentieth hole.

The prizes will be awarded at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon by Secretary Davis, of the Department of Labor. The summary:

Walsh Allows Browns Four Hits to Win, 5 to 3

St. Louis, Mo., June 20 (A.P.).—Young Ed Walsh pitched a four-hit game and batted in two runs with a pair of singles in four trips to the plate as the Chicago White Sox drubbed the Browns, 5 to 3, here today, and evened up the series count at one victory apiece

Walsh weakened in the ninth when the Browns put across three runs in a belated rally. Crowder and Kimsey felt the brunt of the Sox bludgeons and Ogden finished out the game in the ninth, yielding one of the fourteen hits registered against the Browns.

SPICER BOWS IN SOUTH'S TOURNEY

Wheeler, Youth, Wins in Upset Over Favorite, 3 and 2.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 20 (A.P.). Scoring the most surprising upset of the Dixie golf season A. J. (Hot) Wheeler, of Nashville today eliminated Emmett Spicer, medalist and favorite, from the Southern golf championship play, 3 and 2.

Wheeler's fine recoveries and excellent putting gave him the advantage over Spicer, whose putting was shoddy and who missed several drives

Spicer won the first hole, lost the second, won the third, lost the fourth, halved the fifth and sixth, lost the seventh, halved the eighth and dropped the ninth.

With Spicer out of the running, Billy Bridewell, the three-time Arkaknsas champion, and Freddy Lamprecht, of New Orleans, former national intercollegiate champion, now are favored to reach the final round Saturday.

Recoveries and Putting Forte of Wheeler.

Young Wheeler, hitherto unknown, except locally, gave the more seasoned Spicer the battle of his life all the way round the first nine today, his fine recoveries and accurate putting keeping him on even terms with Spicer until the sixth, when he forged into the lead and held the advantage until the match ended on the sixteenth.

Sam Perry, Birmingham city champion, won his way to the quarter final with a 2 up victory over W. B. Mason, of Asheville, N. C. Two down through the twelfth hole for the second time in as many days, Perry came from the rear to beat the North Carolinian.

Another upset was registered later in the day when Alan Smith, the yuong North Carolina star, eliminated Freddy Lamprecht, of New Orleans, former intercollegiate champion, 1 up.

In the upper bracket tomorrow Wheeler, conqueror of Spicer, plays Berry and Ted Hampton meets Alan Smith, while in the lower bracket the well-liked Bridewell faces W. J. Tyne, the other surviving Nashville star, and Darden Hampton takes on Lebourgeois. Quarter finals are scheduled in the morning and the semifinals in the afternoon.

Cleveland, June 20 (A.P.).—The Tigers pounded Jimmy Zinn unmercifully to win their second game from the Indians here today, 8 to 4.

Vic Sorrel, on the mound for the Bengals, held the Cleveland Tribe to 7 hits and registered his ninth victory of the season and his sixth in a row

MACKS OPEN SERIES WITH YANKEES

Leaders in Twin Bill Today; To Play Five Games in 3 Days.

NEW YORK, June 20 (A.P.).—The American League's first crucial series of the 1929 campaign opens at the Yankee Stadium tomorrow when the New York Yankees, defending world's champions, clash with Connie Mack's fast-flying Philadelphia Athletics in the first two games of a five-game series crowded into three days.

Although the season is barely one-third over, the series is of the utmost importance for it should go far toward determining whether the Athletics' machine is as invincible as it has appeared to be during the first two months of the current campaign.

The Athletics will invade the stadium with a lead of seven and a half games over the second-place champions. Even should the Yankees make a clean sweep, the Athletics still would lead by two and a half games and few, if any, of the Yankees' supporters believe Huggins' men can accomplish that feat.

Babe Ruth and Bob Meusel will be back in the Yankees' lineup.

Miller Huggins expected to send Pennock and Hoyt to the mound in the first two games tomorrow. Mack may depend upon his left-handed aces, Walberg and Grove. Two more games will be played Saturday and a single game on Sunday.

Tilden to Semifinals In British Net Tourney

London, June 20 (A.P.).—Bill Tilden entered the semifinals of the London tennis championship at the Queens Club today by defeating his American countryman, Wilbur F. Coen, jr., 6—2, 6—3.

Rookie Fails To Survive Seventh

Nats Even Score in 2d and Gain 2-Run Lead in 6th.

MacFayden at Best in Closing Innings of Series Opener.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

FOR the second time in as many starts, Pitcher Adolph Liska picked out the seventh round to take a balloon ascension and, as a result, the Red Sox yesterday took the decision in the first game of the current series with the Nationals. Until this so-called "lucky" frame, the home team was sailing along under a 4-2-run lead. Then Liska went up in the air and with him went the ball game. The final count was 6 to 4.

Liska started the game poorly, Reeves' opening single, a base on balls, and the first of the two doubles credited to Bill Regan, netting two alien runs, while Gerber's single, Cronin's error, and a walk filled the bases with one down in the second. A double play pulled the rookie underhanded hurler out of this hole and then he apparently settled down to pitch a good game and did so until pounded off the peak in round seven, granting but one hit in the next four innings.

Nats Take Lead, But Fail To Hang Onto It.

The Nationals, meanwhile, had come from behind to knot the count in the second and to become two up in the sixth. The runs all were earned and had Danny MacFayden in real trouble. The first pair resulted when Bluege, Cronin and Tate singled in rapid succession opening the second inning. These blows were good for one run and set the stage for the other to be scored on Hayes' infield out. Two were gone and one on as a result of Judge's opening one-baser when the Nationals broke the deadlock four frames later. Then West, Bluege and Cronin came through with timely base knocks.

Liska fanned Rothrock, a pinch hitter, opening the Boston seventh, but walked MacFayden, despite the fact that the latter showed when he went to the tee that he had been ordered not to take his bat off of his shoulder. This was the beginning of the end for the Nats. Reeves singled his pitcher to third and took second on the throw-in, and Scarritt then cleared the bases with a one-base drive to center. He counted a moment later on Bigelow's single after having advanced on Williams' sacrifice. When Liska walked Regan, Johnson walked Liska, Brown then taking the hill and forcing Berry to roll to Judge for the final out.

Goslin's Double in Seventh Proves in Vain.

With two out in the ninth, Regan's double and Todt's triple gave the Sox their final run, but it was not needed.

Following the alien seventh-inning rally, the Nats had but one chance to do anything worth while, in the next frame, when Goslin doubled with one on the shelf. He got no farther than second, however, for West fouled to Todt and Bluege to Berry.

Bob Reeves and Elliott Bigelow, two Washington castoffs, cut big figures in beating their former mates. The third baseman singled, scored and walked twice each, while putting up a fine game afield, while Bigelow was credited with two one-basers, one of which drove home a run, while he walked once and scored once.

The real thorn in the Nats' sides, however, was Russell Scarritt, the left fielder. He robbed Rice of at least a double in the eighth, just before Goslin came through with his two-bagger, by taking the liner while falling well over toward center, while in the ninth he raced to the foul line to snare Tate's shot, which looked like a sure hit as it left the bat. Scarritt also drove home the visitors' winning margin, two runs, in the seventh with a single.

Bluege and Cronin, with two singles apiece, accounted for half of the home hits, with Sam Rice contributing the fielding feature—a one-hand catch of Williams' foul after a reach into the field boxes at arm's length.

REIGH COUNT SECOND AFTER GALLANT BID AT ASCOT

Historic Race Annexed by Invershin

U. S. Colt Makes Move in Stretch But Loses by 2 Lengths.

Reigh Count, English Jockey Up, Made Cofavorite.

By TOM CREEDON
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

ASCOT HEATH, England, June 20 (U.P.).—Reigh Count, Kentucky Derby winner of 1928, made a gallant bid for the Ascot Gold Cup today, but found one horse with greater staying powers in the field which went to the post in the historic fixture, and had to take second place to Reid Walker's Invershin.

For a few thrilling seconds during the stretch run, down past the gay-colored stands where royalty, nobility and English and continental society crowded elbow to elbow in the excitement of a driving finish, it looked as though Reigh Count might make it.

The stout-hearted American horse, carrying the colors of Mrs. John Hertz, of Chicago, a full mile farther than it ever had been called upon to run, challenged Invershin at the quarter pole.

"Reigh Count wins!" was shouted from stands and infield, but the Sun Reigh colt had given all it had, the other had better staying qualities, and the yellow silks of Mrs. Hertz were two lengths back as the leaders flashed past the winning post.

Invershin, a 7-year-old, carried top weight of 130 pounds and ran the 2½ miles, up and down hill over the rolling course in 4:24 4-5. In doing so, it repeated last year's triumph at Ascot.

English, American and French Horses in Money.

Three lengths back of Reigh Count, which was the only horse to challenge the winner after they straightened out for home, came Jacques Wittouck's Palais Royal II, so that the gold cup race, with an English, an American and a French horse finishing in the first three places, had all the international atmosphere usually attributed to this most aristocratic of race meets.

Despite the fact that it was attempting a distance twice that for which it was trained, Mrs. Hert's colt displayed such promise of speed and stamina that the bookmakers made it joint favorite with Baron Rothschild's Cacao at odds of 4 to 1. Cacao finished fourth in the field of thirteen.

Invershin, which had been rated better than the favorites a day before the race, paid 8 to 1, while the starting price against Palais Royal II was 10 to 1.

In brilliant sunshine, Ascot Heath presented a gorgeous spectacle today, English society as well as many turf enthusiasts from the continent and a few Americans mingling on the lawns and in the paddock.

Odds Against 1928 Derby Winner Shrink.

At the last moment before the bugle called the horses to the post, there was a rush of betting on Reigh Count, which brought the odds against the American horse tumbling and installed it a joint first favorite.

Reigh Count was nervous and fidgety at the barrier, but got off well, only to

BY BERT E. COLLYER

I WANT to slip you another real old-fashioned sleeper like Gideon which romped down at Latonia, on schedule. Today's wopsy tiger is no other than ZIRCON which goes in the second spasm. If you don't think this is a speed marvel, go ask the "dynamiters." The Audley Farm entry probably holds the others safe.

ROYAL JULIAN, which seems to have regained his best form has a good wide call in the fifth. The fact that this gee performs equally well in any going makes for "safety."

By the way and in the event the going turns muddy down here, don't overlook McCULLOCH which will about tin-can in the opening dash—if such conditions prevail. But he must have other than a fast track.

RUANE, the trick which John Partridge is training, was slipped me overnight as the real jam out at Washington Park. Personally, I know this horse to be improving with every workout, also he was eased up that last effort—when he began to tire. Now, this horse is a superior mudder, and it is just possible Old Jup Pluv will treat us to more rain. So says the storm guide.

LE BEY is good at present, as also OLD DEVON, which, by the way, also favors mud. GENIE CRIT was an overnight commission horse, and on that last race seems to have quite a "shade." I know the "Col." fancies her.

Willis Kilmer will shoot from taw with a couple of "good things" in SUN COAT and SUN BLOW. The former goes in the opening spasm at Washington Park and should walk in. SUN BLOW is a good colt, but will have trouble trimming MORSEL.

Over in Canada another of the "Sun" horses is a hotsy-totsy. It is none other than SUN CLOVER. Goes for all the kale in the third race. Heavy commissions indicate this "bird" is "home." More anon!

SCHMELING AND DEMPSEY COMPARED BY GALLAGHER

German's Best Bet Is His Right

Marty to Quit Ring if Next 2 Years Aren't More Successful.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., June 20.—Marty Gallagher, young Washington heavyweight who is one of Max Schmeling's sparring partners, today drew an interesting comparison of Schmeling and Jack Dempsey. Gallagher, who served as sparring mate for Dempsey before the latter's first fight with Gene Tunney in Philadelphia, was interviewed by Ed Van Every, of the New York Evening World, whose story follows:

"Schmeling looks like a good fighter and he is a good fighter," said Gallagher, who is only 21 and full of that well-known vim and vigor. "I think the most interesting thing I got out of this experience is the discovery that Max has a pretty good left hook. I knew Dempsey had one before I started working with him, and he convinced me of it. I had been told that Schmeling was just a sweet right-hand puncher, but he showed me a left hook, two of them, in my first workout."

"How did the Dempsey and Schmeling left hook impress you?" he was asked. "They impressed me," was the reply. "I don't know which I liked the best because I didn't like either one. Dempsey socks you with his in closer, while Schmeling nails you more from a distance. I should say that the Dempsey hook is the more powerful as his nearness, when he strikes you, gives him better leverage. But he takes more chances of putting himself into dangerous ranges for a counter.

Max's Right Always in Sight, Yet You Don't See It.

"After trying out a couple of the Dempsey left hooks, the Schmeling left hook is not so hard to take, even if you don't like it. It seems to me that Max has it—which is something he does not appear to have been given credit for. Of course, his right hand is his best bet. But I doubt whether you will see any better right hand. Certainly it is the best I have seen in my few years experience in the ring. The dangerous thing about this right hand is that it is always cocked there in front of you, and still you don't see it, if you get what I mean. You know it is ready for delivery, but he does not telegraph it—and you get it."

It might be pertinent to say a few words about Marty Gallagher, since he is liable to be heard from. Absolutely, Mr. Gallagher is a likely looking young man as young men go, who have pugilistic ambitions. He is 21 years old and weighs in the neighborhood of close to 200 pounds. It is all good, solid athletic manhood. The interesting thing about Gallagher is that he is interested in his business. Jim (Mr. Shean) Gallagher, who happens to be his elder brother and severest critic, says Marty has too much good nature in his disposition. "They call him 'big-hearted Marty' back home in Washington, D. C.," said Mr. Shean, that is, Jim Gallagher.

"When he has his opponents in bad shape he is inclined to let up on them. He fought Johnny Grosso in one of the preliminaries to the Sharkey-Stribling match (Jack Dempsey got him that bout) and he dropped his only decision professionally as a result of not following up his opponent when he had him in trouble. If he doesn't develop much more cruelty, he'll have to go back to plumbing."

Back to Plumbing if Future Is Not Rosier, Says Marty.

"There was a time when I began to think pretty well of plumbing, at which I worked for four years," grinned Marty. "After winning the title of amateur light heavyweight champion of the South Atlantic division I turned professional and was signed up by a manager for $25 a week. I made $1,000 in a year and a half. Then I started to think well of my old trade of plumbing. I went down in Georgia and fought Gunboat Williams and got a split lip and $30 for my end. After I paid the doctor I still thought well of plumbing. I fought in the semifinal to the Von Porat bout in Chicago, and though the gate was $26,000 my manager told me my bit was $200. Me for plumbing, says I. Brother Jim then took me in hand. I like the fighting game and things look rosier now, but if I don't see myself getting more in another year or two, then it is back to plumbing."

"Positively," concurred "Mr. Shean" Gallagher. "But I don't think Mr. Gallagher will go back to plumbing."

George Neron, another sparring partner, also speaks well of Schmeling, as all worthy sparring partners should. Still, we should lend an ear to the Greek heavyweight's remarks, since at one time he was a sparring partner for Paolino Uzcudun, whose task it is a week from tonight to knock Max Schmeling out of the heavyweight picture if Max doesn't do it first.

"Schmeling, on the contrary, does not lose his poise when you pop him a good one," said Neron. "He fights on just as methodically when he is stung and just bides his time for his opening." He agrees with Gallagher that the German does not need much of an opening.

Paulino Sure to Triumph, Predicts Loughran.

"Tommy Loughran, light-heavyweight champion, who is doing preliminary training for his match with James J. Braddock next month, dropped into camp yesterday afternoon and saw nothing, as Schmeling took a day off from training. Tommy gave it as his opinion that Paolino is a sure thing to win. Loughran bases his opinion of the German Dempsey's chances on his showing against Joe Sekyra. He says Monte was not much of an opponent to stow away, and the fact that Sekyra lasted the full ten rounds with Schmeling is a tip-off on Max's chances with the Basque. I don't know if Loughran saw Schmeling's bouts with Monte and Sekyra, but his estimate sounds as though he didn't. Monte may not be a great fighter, but he is no pushover Anyway, it wasn't the fact that Max finished Monte, it was the way he did it. As for Sekyra going the distance with Schmeling, the type of fight the Dayton light-heavy put up against the German, one of those grab, stab and stay battles, I doubt if Paolino would have done any better against Sekyra than did Schmeling."

Anyway, Loughran is not the wisest "picker" in the world. I saw Tommy himself in a workout with Jack Dempsey, when the latter was in training for his first match with Tunney. In this sparring setto Loughran showed up the former heavyweight champion so badly that even the most rabid Dempsey admirers started to worry about Dempsey's chances. The only thing that restored their confidence was an interview with Loughran. "Dempsey would have gotten to me in two more rounds," was Tommy's opinion. "I don't see how Tunney can go more than five rounds with Jack."

be instantly rated off the pace, which was set at a merry clip by B. Davis' Monsieur Neuf, one of the lightweights.

Wragg took Reigh Count back into ninth position, while Baron de Rothschild's Nopal, Mrs. G. H. Drummond's Ox and Ass, and T. Davidson's Constant Son pushed the pacemaker. R. Perryman, on Invershin, also chose to lie well back in the field and wait for the leaders to run themselves out.

Field Spreads Out Over 100 Yards After Start.

The early speed of Monsier Neuf and some of the others and the steadiness with which the jockeys of the eventual place horses restrained their mounts resulted in the field of thirteen thoroughbreds being spread out, with several hundred yards between the first horse and the last.

After 12 furlongs had been passed, Nopal moved up into the lead, Monsieur Neuf's jockey dropping him into second place, with Lord Derby's Cri de Guerre and Maj. J. S. Courtauld's Cyclonic showing prominently. Reigh Count still was well back, with Wragg sitting comfortably.

Mr. A. E. Berry's Lawsuit moved up into the van 7 furlongs from home, and the tardy ones in the field began to close the big gap which separated them from the leaders. The race really began at this point.

Now Reigh Count commenced to take hold of the bit and rapidly moved up to an improved position. Meanwhile Perryman shot Invershin out in front, with four furlongs to go, it was apparent that the race lay between the 1928 winner and the American challenger.

Wragg went to the whip as they entered the stretch, and Reigh Count responded gallantly. It was then that the crowd began to shout for a victory for the game American colt, which bore down upon the leader.

Wragg Rides Great Race; Mount Not Good Enough.

But although Wragg rode with every bit of artistry and strength at his command and Reigh Count responded with heart and muscle, the task was too great for the American horse, bred for no such gruelling race as this one over Ascot heath.

Perryman and Invershin shot ahead once more to win a well-merited victory, with Reigh Count, two lengths back, sharing in the thunderous cheers. Mrs. Hertz's colt was sweating, but finished fresh and soon was enveloped in its bright yellow blanket.

Mr. and Mrs. Hertz took the defeat like sportsmen.

Hubbell Settles Down; Giants Beat Phils, 11-6

Philadelphia, June 20 (N.Y.W.N.S.). Surviving a not very promising start, Carl Hubbell settled down and held the Phillies in check this afternoon, while the New York Giants, closing strong, hammered out another victory, 11 to 6.

Luther Roy, pitching eight innings for the Phils, was a worthy foeman for Hubbell for a while, but he weakened as the game progressed, and was derricked for a pinch hitter in the eighth. When Ace Elliott relieved him, the Giants proceeded to sew up the game.

Home runs were made by Fred Leach and Don Hurst. Leach made his in the eighth inning with Eddie Roush on base and this proved ultimately to be the blow that actually decided the game in the Giants' favor. Hurst made his in the ninth, his thirteenth of the season.

REFINEMENT OUSTED IN SCHMELING CAMP

missed the cue and he stood there, erect and smiling until Mr. Reilly bounded through the ropes yelling, "Down, down; you have been fouled." Still Delaney hesitated, and it was not until he had walked lightly to his corner that he really began to manifest acute suffering.

Through some oversight, the spectators also had failed to notice the foul punch, if any, and they set up a growl which stirred Mr. Reilly to action. He broke away from the excited group in Delaney's corner and walked around the ring holding aloft a sort of mental cuirass or armor-belt which prize fighters wear among their intimate lingerie to protect their abdominal muscles from punches landing out of bounds. Peter pointed to a deep dent as showing that Delaney had been hit below the waist and this evidence rather allayed the public unrest, while Delaney, in heroic agony, made his way to the dressing room.

There, however, it developed that his tin belt was not only intact, but still strapped to him, forcing all present to conclude that Peter had brought down to the ringside a spare one with a ready-made dent in it, as if aware that his gladiator was to win on a foul.

Jacobs Faded Reilly And Won Fighter.

Some time later, Peter got into a game and, running short of cash resources, threw his fighter on the table. Of course, in such cases, one does not actually hurl the prize fighter on the table, but throws in one's managerial contract, calling for one-third of the fighter's earnings. Mr. Jacobs faded Mr Reilly and won the fighter.

I hope the renewal of the association between Peter and Joseph and the reappearance of Mr. Hoff around the training camps may be taken to mean that pugilism has returned to normal, because all virtue and no conniving makes prize fighting a dull sport. The champions fight only once a year, if that, and the revelations that occur in the meanwhile give much better sustained entertainment than the combats in the ring. And why not? These concern feats of the intellect, whereas the actual bouts are mere contests of brawn.

FITZGERALD CLELAND CHAMP

Shoots 68 to Annex Sports Writers' Golf Cup.

MAURY FITZGERALD, of the Herald, leaped into international golfing prominence yesterday as he emerged from the sports writers' tournament at the War College course, with the famed Cleland Cup dangling from his belt as the result of a brilliant card of 68, which enabled him to win from a field of fifteen without the necessity of his four-stroke handicap.

Henry "Bullet" Rodier, of the Bulletin, a former Cleland Cup champion, was the only contestant able to offer serious contention. Rodier registered a net 70, aided by a 14 handicap, but the rest of the field trailed Fitzgerald hopelessly with the exception of those who did not play. The winner traversed the first nine in 33 and the second in 35, gaining low gross as well as low net.

No Shots Missed at Midday Luncheon.

After a discouraging morning round, which was followed by luncheon with officers as hosts at the Officers Club, most of the golfers buried their heads in shame—in Capt. Frank Hayne's tasty repast. Better scores were produced in the heavier afternoon going.

Yesterday's tournament marked the ninth for the Cleland Cup, which was placed into competition four years ago by Capt. John R. D. Cleland, athletic officer at the War College. Fitzgerald adds his name to the following winners of the cup: Heinie Miller (twice), Henry Rodier, Raymond Bryan, Shirley Povich, Juno Kinerk, June Thornton and Harry Frye. The awful truth follows:

Maury Fitzgerald (Herald), 68—4—64; Henry Rodier (Bulletin), 84—14—70; Charles Watson (Post), 83—8—75; R. E. Thomas (Star), 82—6—76; Walter Haight (Post), 88—12—76; Bill Hottell (Star), 87—10—77; Shirley Povich (Post), 85—7—78; Harry Frye (Star), 88—10—78; Chuck Egan (News), 94—15—79; Francis Cronan (News), 97—7—80; Rollins Atkinson (Post), 106—24—82; Ben McAlwee (Herald), 90—12—88; Norman W. Curtis Lone D. C. Golfer To Qualify in Tourney

Hagerstown, Md., June 20.—Only one Washingtonian—W. B. Curtis, of the Indian Spring Golf Club—made the grade to the first sixteen in the qualifying round of the fifth annual invitation golf tournament of the Fountain Head Country Club here today. He turned in a card of 80.

Talbott T. Speer, of the Baltimore Country Club, drove, approached and putted his way to a 75 score and the medal. One stroke behind came B. Warren Corkran, who threatened at the end of nine holes with the humiliation of failing to make the first flight in a tournament which he has won for the last two years, rose in the emergency to the dizzy heights of a record-breaking 33 for the incoming nine. No one, amateur or professional, has ever done it in less than 34.

Canzoneri and Mandell In Title Fight August 2

The match was closed here today by Nat Lewis, matchmaker for Chicago's big indoor arena. Lewis signed Mandell for the bout before coming East.

The fight will be staged indoors to avoid possible postponements due to inclement weather. Canzoneri agreed to start training in a Chicago suburb July 15.

Indian to Race Horse In 100-Mile Contest

Gallup, N. Mex., June 20 (A.P.).—The Zuni Indians of New Mexico, whose distance running skill has won the tribe an international reputation, have sent two of their tribesmen to Pecos, Tex.—one to run a 100-mile foot race against a race horse, and the other to run a 10-mile race against ten white men, who will do the distance in relays.

The races will be two of the feature events at the annual cowboys' reunion at Pecos on June 22.

Andrew Chimoni, 29-year-old Zuni, who broke the world's Marathon record here in 1927, will pit his skill against a thoroughbred west Texas distance horse for 100 miles. Chimoni, before leaving here for Pecos, said he expected to do the 100 miles on a circular track in less than ten hours.

The Zuni, who will try to run 10 miles faster alone than ten white men running in relays, is Leketa, 32 years old, who also has represented his tribe in many Marathon events.

NATS JOINED BY 2 ROOKIES AND JONES

Harley Boss Returns; Johnson Bans Golf for Squad.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

MANAGER WALTER JOHNSON'S squad was enlarged by three players yesterday; two newcomers and Pitcher "Sad Sam" Jones, who had been at his home in Woodsfield, Ohio, recuperating from an injured back muscle. The others to make their appearance were First Baseman Harley Boss, who was sent home ill from the Tampa training camp this spring, and Willard Hershberger, a combination catcher and infielder, who starred with the Fullerton High School Team at Fullerton, Calif., the same school from which Walter Johnson graduated in baseball.

Boss appears to be the picture of health and was happy to be back. He declares that he has been playing semipro ball with the Jonesboro (La.) Team and believes that he has regained his old-time form.

Hershberger, who is here on trial, is 19 years old, weighs around 155 pounds and is about 5 feet 8 inches tall. He hits and throws right-handed and had a batting mark of .410 at school. During the previous vacation period, he played semipro ball with the Santa Ana Team and he comes here rated as a most promising piece of "ivory."

Jones worked out before yesterday's game with no bad effects, although he states that his injury is still "tender." Provided he suffers no setbacks, he hopes to be able to start taking his regular turn on the mound within a week.

Johnson Bans Golf After Braxton Episode.

Golf is now a lost art with Washington players, Manager Walter Johnson announced yesterday, stating that, from now on, any player caught playing the royal and ancient game would be fined $500.

This ruling was made when it was learned that Pitcher Garland Braxton and Catcher Muddy Ruel played approximately 40 holes of the Scotch game in the sweltering heat Monday, an open date on the schedule. As a result, when Braxton was called upon to relieve Hadley in the fourth inning of the game with the Mackmen on the following day, he was in such a weakened condition that the Athletics had little trouble pounding his slants for enough runs to overcome a 3-run lead and then continue on to win.

Johnson did not ban golf this spring because he thought that his men would use a little judgment as to when and how much to play, but the case of Braxton and Ruel has forced him to take the matter into his own hands.

Thomas Likely to Make Debut Against Red Sox.

With Braxton among the missing and Irving Hadley temporarily incapacited because of having two of his infected teeth extracted Wednesday, Johnson states that he likely will give Pitcher Myles Thomas, recently obtained from the Yankees on waivers, a chance as a starter during this series with the Red Sox. The Nat leader also intimates that Catcher Roy Spencer, who has started only one game, likely will be used shortly.

Fred Marberry, whose timely and terrific hitting of late, has started the factories working overtime turning out "Marberry Models" of bats, will do the hurling against the Red Sox in today's game. Manager Bill Carrigan last night was uncertain as to his probable mound starter. Women and Boy Scouts will be guests of the Nats this afternoon.

Having obtained waivers on Pitcher Joe Giard, President Clark Griffith yesterday ordered him to report for a 30-day trial to the San Antonio Club of the Texas League.

Rutgers Pitcher Advised to Forego Big Leagues.

Michael Lonathan de Mucchio, a young southpaw pitcher from "dear old Rutgers," reported here for a tryout yesterday. He advised President Clark Griffith that he had a good job awaiting him and, after hearing Manager Johnson's report on the youngster, the Nat owner advised De Mucchio to take the job, but to try to get the experience he needs by playing semipro ball after work.

Pitcher Paul McCullough, now getting himself into playing condition at his own expense after having been assigned to the Washington Club by Baseball Commissioner Landis over the Nats' protest, is fast rounding into good form, Manager Johnson admitted last night. He has regained 9 more pounds of the weight he lost while ill, and now tips the Fairbanks at 177, a weight at which he played for the three seasons preceding last. "I think he is just about at the proper weight now," Johnson said last night, "and if he continues to add to the stuff he has been showing he probably will be put on the pay roll shortly."

The Return Of OLD KING BRADY

Revived by MERLE W. HERSEY.

(Copyright Protected Reproduction in Whole or in Part Prohibited.)

In the fifth chapter Old King Brady gains access to the roof of the house in which Mrs. Fairchild has disappeared. Through the skylight he sees her smoking hasheesh, and overhears her conversation with the Chinese attendant, Wang. He hears a plot to marry Inez to the Viscount Dalwise thus furthering Mrs. Fairchild's ambition to become a member of the British social world.

THE TRAIL OF THE FAKIR OF FRISCO

Harry Joins Forces With the Prince.

A cold bath is very efficient in counteracting the effects of hasheesh and as Harry plunged into the pool if felt wonderfully cool and refreshing. The viscount followed his example and they swam about for a few minutes. Harry was rapidly regaining his normal condition.

"Hi-Ti-Li!" he heard the Hindoo call.

"Hello! The prince is here!" He thought. "This isn't so bad. I am mighty glad I came."

The two young men came out of the pool and went into the needle bath. Swami had vanished and now in his place a young Chinaman entered.

"Well, my lord, you try the pipe early in the day," he said with a grin.

"Rub me down, Hi-Ti-Li," replied the viscount. "Give me friend a towel and he can rub himself."

The Chinaman had several Turkish towels thrown over his arm. He gave one to Harry, and selecting one for himself began to dry the Englishman.

"I have got rid of the Jap, Hi," the viscount said. "And I am going to engage you in his place. You will go with me to Monterey, won't you, Hi?" he asked.

"Sure."

I am so anxious to meet this lady Swami has been telling me about. I think—ah!" he clapped his hand to his heart and would have dropped to the floor if the Chinaman had not caught him. He was scared to death.

"Ring the bell!" he cried. "It is there in the corner of the other room. He is dying! The hasheesh has struck his heart!"

Harry darted to the other room and pushed the bell. In a minute the Swami rushed into the bathroom. But it was too late. The Englishman was dead. They carried him into the other room and laid him on the divan.

"I'm up against some plot on other," thought Harry. "I had better get out of this. I wonder if they will let me go?"

Now the Hindoo turned to him and asked his name. He gave it "Henry Johnson."

"How did you—well—I suppose you don't want to be mixed up in this business?"

"Naturally I should like to go."

"All right. Follow me."

Harry stepped into a passage and went down some winding stairs, with the Hindoo close behind him. At the foot of the stairs was a door which he was instructed to open. Scarcely had he done so when he received a violent push on the back, lost his balance and fell on his face. The door slammed behind him and the key was turned in the lock.

His troubles had just begun, it seemed. He picked himself up in the dark, his head swimming.

He flashed his dark lantern about and found that he was in a cellar. The walls were boarded up and where the little window should have been plates of iron had been screwed.

Half an hour passed and then the door opened and Prince Hi-Ti-Li entered carrying a small lamp and a revolver.

He closed the door behind him and turned the key. "Well, you are still here, it seems!" he remarked with a grin. "Look here, Johnson, that man upstairs and I have nothing against you. I'm going to put up a proposition to you and I want to see how you take it."

"Put it then. Don't be bashful. I am good for any old thing."

"Well, it is this: That Englishman was half an idiot. He learned to smoke hasheesh in India. He was far gone and his father, the Earl of Penrose, is an imbecile. His income is enormous. All this Swami knows. How would you like to step into his shoes?"

"How could I?"

"You can't take his place openly, of course. That would be impossible. But you could draw all kinds of drafts and get the money before you were discovered."

"Oh, I see."

"But that isn't all. There is at the present time stopping at the Hotel Del Monte at Monterey a woman who is worth a couple of millions. She has with her a beautiful girl who poses as her niece, but is not. The old woman is expecting the viscount at the hotel today. She means to marry him off to the young woman and go to England with them, where she hopes to get into high society. She smokes hasheesh and we could work a hundred thousand or so out of her as easy as turning a finger. Now do you catch on?"

"I'm good for this game if you'll take me on," answered Harry without hesitation.

"Well, we have either got to do that or give it up. We can't get the body out of here without attracting attention. Now, I'll be perfectly frank with you, Johnson."

"I wish you would."

"I'm going to be. Swami's business hasn't paid. He fitted up this place at a big expense, but the sports did catch on. I got next to the old woman who owned the building and persuaded her to go into the scheme regarding the viscount. I fired the gambling den I had in Frisco and gave out that my wife and I were burned in it, but we were not. It is my wife who is posing as the old woman's niece. Now do you catch on?"

"You don't expect me to marry your wife?"

"I'i like to see you try it! The old woman thinks that is the game, but it isn't. I propose to work her for all she's worth and draw on the Penrose estates for all they are worth, that's all. And, if you will join me, you will get half."

"I'm willing—if you are."

"I say let's try it. Swami is going to skip. He proposes to hide the body in this cellar and then close the place up. He would have killed you but for me. This scheme will foot up half a million if you can get next to the old woman and borrow of her."

"You haven't told me her name yet."

"You'll know that when we get to Monterey."

The two shook hands heartily and then left the cellar. Young King Brady felt sorry for the young Englishman, but there was nothing for which he could blame himself. The experiences through which he was passing were all very interesting, but he felt little hope of being able to close the case successfully as far as Van Gordon's interests were concerned. Prince Hi-Ti-Li and Harry left the house together, leaving the gloomy Hindoo to care for the body as best he could.

On their way down Jackson street they passed Charlie Ching, but the shrewd Chinaman just glanced at them with no sign of recognition. They went on down to Kearney street, where Harry telephoned the Palace Hotel, imitating the viscount's voice perfectly. He informed the clerk that he had engaged a Chinese valet who would call in half an hour to pack up and ship his belongings to the Hotel del Monte at Monterey, and he instructed him to give the Chinaman free entrance to his rooms.

"The way is clear now, so go ahead," he said to the prince as they passed out on the street.

"And where shall I see you again?"

"I'll be in a cheap furnished room over on Mission street. No, you had better bring along a dress suit with a suit of the Englishman's clothes. You see how I am dressed. It won't do."

"All right."

And so they parted. Two hours later the prince turned up at the room with the suitcase. The prince reported success.

He said: "I had no trouble at all. I secured all the private papers, and the trunks are already on the way to Monterey."

"Do you propose to raise any money on his account before you start?"

"What do you think?" asked the fakir. "I am beginning to have a lot of confidence in your opinion."

"If it was me I wouldn't do it. I would make my draft at Monterey and cash it with some banker there."

To this the prince agreed.

It was now 1 o'clock and at 4 Young King Brady, in the guise of the Viscount Dalwise, started for Monterey with Prince Hi-Ti-Li.

LICENSE LAW TOPIC AT BANKERS' OUTING

FLEMING OPENS SESSIONS

By THOMAS M. CAHILL

Montauk Beach, N. Y., June 20.—Approval by the District Government of legislation providing for licensing and bonding of brokers and bond salesmen and punishment for those who run counter to good practices was predicted yesterday by District Commissioner Sidney F. Taliaferro, in presenting the National Capital's greeting to the District of Columbia's Bankers Association at the opening session of its convention here. Thirty-six member banks are represented with 66 delegates present.

Praising his officials, the rank and file of the association, those of its kindred organizations and the press, for their cooperation, President Robert V. Fleming, of the association, presented an able and complete review of the administrative year's accomplishments. He recommended adoption by the association of a resolution authorizing the committee on law and legislation to take all possible steps to assist in the passage of the fraud law, known as Senate bill No. 1332, and a resolution authorizing this committee to work for introduction in Congress and passage of "an act to limit the liability of a bank or trust company in the District of Columbia for nonpayment through error of a check or other instrument drawn up or payable at the bank or trust company."

Drafted by Association Counsel.

This law has been drafted by the association's general counsel. Careful consideration by the new administration of the bank collection code, a law drafted by the general counsel of the American Bankers' Association, passage of which is recommended by that association, by the committee on State legislation of that body, and which has been passed by a number of States, was also recommended by Mr. Fleming. He further recommended to the incoming administration and its committees the stimulation of closer contacts with the parent association, the American Bankers' Association, in order that local committees may be of full benefit to that body and theirs to the District association.

Henry H. McKee, president of the National Capital Bank, was honored by the association's vote to print his address on "The Value of a Secondary Reserve," as a separate report for distribution to every bank in Washington. Gov. George J. Seay, of the Fifth Federal Reserve District, Richmond, who presented its greetings, again took the floor to praise Mr. McKee's paper. The speaker defined a secondary reserve as "earning assets," that can be collected, sold or used as collateral, to obtain without delay the cash necessary to meet withdrawal of funds and to keep the banks' legal reserve up to the percentage required by law.

He asserted it was a matter of record that if many of the 500 banks which failed in the last eight years had maintained a definite secondary reserve they probably would have been able to weather the conditions which forced them into liquidation.

Believes It Wise Policy.

"With this lesson before us, is not the creation of a secondary reserve a wise policy for all banks, regardless of their size?" he queried.

"The amount and character of a secondary reserve can not be standardized," he explained. "They depend upon the size of the bank, the character of its business, its relationship to other banks and the economic condition of the community it serves."

Discussing "The Banks Bond Account," F. Winchester Denio, vice president, Old Colony Trust Co., Boston, said there were two great communities in the United States, the agricultural and the industrial. The industrial was much better charted than the agricultural, he said, adding that no one can foresee, for instance, the effect of the weather, politics, or the hazards of war and the most that a banker can do is to use the yardsticks that are available and apply his judgment to the facts they indicate.

If the banker, however, can with a reasonable degree of success, foresee the trend of interest rates, he asserted, he is in a position to handle his secondary reserve by selling his long term bonds, buying short term bonds and vice versa, as conditions warrant. In no case will he be able to accomplish this with 100 per cent perfection, with no losses, said Mr. Denio, but he can limit the losses and probably increase his profits which will strengthen the bank for all depositors and stockholders who are interested in it.

Committee on Resolutions.

President McKee, National Capital Bank; John Poole, Federal American National Bank; R. Golden Donaldson, Commercial National Bank; Julius I. Peyser, Security Savings & Commercial Bank, and Dr. Frederic E. Farrington, Chevy Chase Savings Bank, form the committee on resolutions.

Raymond G. Marx, Riggs National Bank, presented the report of the auditors' section.

Charles E. Howe, American Security & Trust Co., submitting the report of the safe deposit section, said in order to get uniformity in the forms and practices of safe deposit departments, the committee recommended that the standard safe deposit forms, which were approved by the convention in 1927, be continued in use and adopted, as far as possible, by all the member banks.

New Richmond in Tourney.

A new Richmond, in the person of Charles Gaskins, director of the Bank of Brightwood, entered the top spinning tourney for the Edward B. McLean Cup, his top rotating for 47¾ seconds.

J. Frank White, National Bank of Washington, took charge of the contest, and "boys" 30 to 50 and beyond competed for the cup, which must be won three times in succession to become the property of the winner. Mr. White, in addition to superintending the game, was the timekeeper.

Howard Moran, American Security & Trust Co., has completed two legs on the way to recovery, his top having won duration spinning records in 1925 and 1926. Mr. White, the presiding official yesterday, was the winner at the convention of 1927 and last year. Charles L. Taylor, National Metropolitan Bank, was supreme in the competition.

Temporary Offices Opened.

G. L. Ohrstrom & Co., of 44 Broad street, New York City, one of the largest public utility houses in the country, has opened temporary offices at 349 Southern Building, with E. J. Carver as liaison representative.

Prompt Deposit Is Urged.

Prompt deposit of adjustment bonds under the Seaboard Air Line Railway Co. recapitalization plan is urged by the adjustment bondholders' committee in a statement issued yesterday. It is of vital importance that the plan be consummated as promptly as possible, the statement declared, and all holders of the bonds are requested to deposit them at once with the National Park Bank of New York.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, June 20 (A.P.).—Orders to buy swept into the wheat market today like a tide, and carried values 8⅝c a bushel higher compared with 48 hours before. Reported fading away of brilliant crop prospects southwest was largely responsible with new purchasing much more general in character than followed enactment of the farm relief bill.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 2⅝ to 3c above yesterday's finish. Corn closed at ½ to 1⅛@1¼c gain, oats ¼ to ⅜c advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 10c.

Increasingly bad advices regarding the probable outcome of the 1929 wheat harvest in Oklahoma and Kansas piled up today on top of pessimistic dispatches which yesterday started the wheat market on a big advance. Rains at various places in Oklahoma today acted as a decisive early influence on the side of higher prices, the effects of a wet harvest being added to harm already done through excessive moisture and high winds at previous critical periods of the crop.

Disappointment over threshing yields applied definitely today to Oklahoma and parts of Texas, but indications pointed also to similar conditions being found in southern Kansas. Estimates received from leading Chicago crop experts were rapidly cut down today, and in some cases amounted to only 140,000,000 bushels probable production for Kansas, compared with the Government's June estimate of 161,000,000 bushels. Predictions of 3 to 10 bushels an acre were numerous in place of 10 to 15 bushels and higher, which had been looked for.

Complaints of untimely dry weather in the Northwest creating uneasiness that the spring wheat crop in that section might fare no better than winter wheat southwest were also a disturbing factor today. Both in the States south of the Canadian boundary, as well as in sections of Saskatchewan and Alberta, the dearth of moisture was being watched with anxiety.

Profit-taking sales in the late dealings brought about something of a reaction from today's top level of wheat prices which had ranged from 7⅜ to 8⅝c above Tuesday's bottom figures. The market, however, readily absorbed today's late selling, speculative operators with bear proclivities, being more or less held in check as a result of talk about possible farm relief steps with Government backing. Meanwhile, export business today in wheat from North America was announced as totaling about 700,000 bushels, chiefly Canadian.

Corn and oats proved responsive to wheat market advances and to reports of the corn crop being seriously backward. Cash demand for corn was active. On the other hand, favorable weather for corn growth prevailed, and there was much selling of corn future deliveries against simultaneous buying of wheat.

Strength of cereals tended to restrict selling of provisions.

POISON GAS KILLS 2 NEAR OIL PLANTS

El Paso Children's Deaths Due to Hydrogen Sulphide; Origin Still Mystery.

SCORE MORE OVERCOME

El Paso, Tex., June 20 (A.P.).—Poison gas that swept a residence district near two oil refineries and a natural gas company plant here last night, taking the lives of two sleeping children, and overcoming more than a score of other persons, was identified today as hydrogen sulphide. While the nature of the death-dealing gas was determined, its origin remained a mystery.

Dr. T. J. McCamant, county health officer, reported to a joint meeting of the city council and county commissioners that an autopsy performed on the children showed death was caused by hydrogen sulphide, a gas containing sulphur.

16 Taken to Hospital.

The health officer said the gas was heavier than air. The two children who died, Ignacio Ceniceros, 3, and Cartolo Ceniceros, 8, were asleep on a cot, while those who were overcome were either standing or on higher ground at the time. Sixteen persons, most of them Mexicans, were taken to hospitals, but all except two had been released late today.

The impromptu court of inquiry convened by city and county officials summoned chemists and refinery and natural gas company officials in an effort to determine the origin of the gas and to attempt to prevent a recurrence.

W. G. Hamilton, general manager of the Pasotex Petroleum Co.'s refinery; A. L. Forbes, general superintendent of the El Paso Natural Gas Co., and R. G. Collins, of the Texas Company's refinery, were questioned by Mayor R. E. Thomason and County Judge E. B. McClintock.

Hamilton said that everything was "perfectly regular" in the Pasotex refinery.

"I will not try to deny the fact that West Texas crude oil has some hydrogen sulphide in it," he said. "It is taken from the oil during the course of refining and burned at our plant."

Forbes said it would have been a physical impossibility for the poison gas to have come from the Natural Gas Co.'s lines.

No Leak Is Discovered.

"We made a thorough inspection of our lines and there was no indication of a pinhole leak," he said. "Besides, there is no trace of hydrogen sulphide in our gas. Natural gas is lighter than air."

Collins testified the Texas Co.'s refinery, which was recently completed, has not yet begun operation.

Mayor Thomason and Judge McClintock appointed Dr. McCamant, Dr. George Turner, Dr. W. W. Waite, city chemist, and Lieut. Charles S. Shadle, chemical warfare expert from Fort Bliss, to make a test of the water in ponds near the Pasotex refineries.

Dr. McCamant said he visited the scene this morning and that the gas odor was still strong in the room where the two children died.

THE ONCE OVER

The Airplane Fire Department.

Monday—2 a. m.

Fire broke out in the residence of Caleb Gladwyn at 356 Hollyhock avenue early today. Mr. Gladwyn immediately notified the fire department.

Monday—2:10 a. m.

Word has just been received by Hose Company No. 6 of a fire at the home of Caleb Gladwyn. The company plans to hop off at once.

Monday—5 a. m.

Engine trouble delayed the start of Hose Company No. 6 for the Caleb Gladwyn fire today. The hose company managed to take off for the blaze at 4 a. m., but was obliged to return almost at once, due to faulty ignition. "We will make a start for the Gladwyn fire as soon as we can inspect the motor," said Fire Capt. Luke McPhail.

Tuesday—10 a. m.

Mechanics were still busy today overhauling the motor of Hoe Company No. 6's plane, "the Flying Hydrant." The hose company was confident of hopping off before nightfall.

Tuesday—7 p. m.

Late today "the Flying Hydrant" was apparently ready to take off for the fire at the home of Caleb Gladwyn, reported early yesterday, but after getting aboard and testing the controls the firemen got out again and announced that the flight was off until tomorrow. "The Government weather reports say that if we hop off tonight we will have unfavorable winds all the way to the fire," said Capt. McPhail.

Wednesday—8 a. m.

Everything indicated this morning that an early attempt would be made to take off in the airplane of Hose Company No. 6 for the fire at the home of Caleb Gladwyn, 356 Hollyhock avenue.

Wednesday—3 p. m.

"The Flying Hydrant" took off for the Caleb Gladwyn fire at 2:50 this afternoon, but had difficulty rising. After circling the firehouse several times it threw over four firemen in an attempt to lighten the load. The plane was still unable to gain any height and made a forced landing.

"We will make another start for the fire soon in a larger plane," said Capt. McPhail.

Thursday—3 p. m.

After a long delay Hose Company No. 6 made a fresh start for the recent Caleb Gladwyn fire this afternoon in a new twin pump Fokker. The firemen got within four blocks of the fire when they had to come down due to heaviness in the plane's tail. An investigation revealed two stowaways aboard.

"Is the fire still going?" asked Capt. McPhail of a reporter.

"Just barely," was the reply.

"It's a good thing it is that kind of a fire," replied the captain, declaring he would reach it yet, even if he had to go by automobile.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

L. M. M. writes: Medical science has made and still is making great strides in the saving of baby lives and prolonging the lives of old people. In the case of babies this will help to keep up the average in spite of birth control and the tendency of young married men and women not to have any children.

From an economic standpoint the saving of baby lives is a correct and great thing for humanity. Statistical facts prove we are living a longer, and healthier life than ever before. But what's the gain?

I am reminded of the Chinese scholar in New York City. He was shown how certain rapid transit saved him five minutes. At the conclusion of the demonstration he asked what he was going to do now with the five minutes.

I am now asking what we are going to do with life and time we have saved for the old men from 50 years up. Unless they have money or family connections, if they should happen to lose their jobs, nobody wants to employ them. Though they walk erect, stand erect, think more correctly and faster than the younger men, are steadier and more loyal to their jobs, it seems nobody wants their experience. You will notice advertisements in the daily papers for experienced young men, 23 years of age. Ask yourself what experience has a man 23 years of age. Yet the experience of life, besides business experience, has no value in the employment market.

What are we trying to extend life for if it has no value in the business world? This is a question asked by a good many thousands. When business men will begin to realize that age alone should have no bearing on employing help, then they will begin to help medical science in saving and extending human life. Otherwise it is not worth while. They are losing a greater asset than the gain by saving babies.

Reply: Your letter voices thoughts that are in the minds of many. If the average age of the people dying is 60 years, there must be a great many who are over 70 and some who are over 100. This follows, since to establish 60 as an average, many old ones are needed to offset the deaths of babies.

The official retirement age is around 64. A retirement age of 64 and an average age at death of 60 causes an economic anachronism. There must be either universal thrift or an old age case system of some kind, or great misery, or several of these combined.

Accepting the prolongation of life as an established fact, research work to establish whether it is worth while is being done at Johns Hopkins. They are trying to find a scientific answer to the question you ask and some related ones.

Angina Pectoris.

E. E. M. writes:

1. What is the cause of angina pectoris?
2. Does the heart need to be diseased to be stricken with it?
3. When arterial blood pressure is 155 and venous pressure 85, is that regarded as a serious condition?
4. Does dieting reduce such pressure?
5. Does neuralgia affect the heart at times to cause symptoms of angina pectoris?

REPLY.

1. There are three kinds of angina. One type of true angina is due to disease of the coronary artery. Another, perhaps an almost true angina, is due to disease of the heart muscle. A third, or false angina, is due to neurasthenia, worry, and some other remote causes.
2. No, as to types one and three. Yes, as to type two.
3. Not necessarily.
4. It helps somewhat.
5. Yes, as to false angina.

TEETH COLORING.

Mrs. N. E. writes: I am 48 years old. My teeth are sound and were very white until a short time ago, when small yellow spots about the size of freckles appeared, spreading over each tooth, causing them to look yellow.

What is the cause and is there anything I can do?

REPLY.

If you have mottled teeth, I know of nothing you can do. If it is stain, your dentist can bleach them and you can avoid the cause thereafter.

WHAT MAKES US FAT?

C. S. writes: Will the undersecretion of one's thyroid gland make one fat? If so, what is the best treatment to prevent it? By what treatment can one get thin?

I am 17 years old. My weight is 215 pounds. I have been fat for six years and I have steadily increased in that time. I have exercised and played two years of football and baseball and gained while I have been playing. I eat well, but my brother eats as well as I do and he is not so heavy.

REPLY.

My guess is that you have what is known as pathogenic obesity. You had better have the direction of a physician in your efforts to reduce.

CARDOZO GRADUATES BUSINESS STUDENTS

J. A. Jackson Makes Address on Widening Horizon of Colored People.

DIPLOMAS AWARDED TO 13

The second semiannual graduation exercises of the Cardozo Business High School were held last night in the school auditorium. Mrs. Mary A. McNeill, member of the Board of Education, presided. The program was featured by student addresses on business subjects by George Morris, Pauline Butler and Arthur Carter, and an address to graduates by J. A. Jackson, head of the small business unit of the Department of Commerce.

Jackson spoke of the widening business horizon of the negro in America, and in citing the value of business credit said:

"Let it be known that the making of your status begins today. Credit is based on character and known facts. It has little regard for race. Create a personal record for clean living, a history of life lived within your means, a reputation for meeting your obligations promptly, and no member of this class will ever have occasion to complain of denial of banking or other credit accommodations."

The James E. Walker medal for athletic attainment, character and physical fitness was awarded to Arthur Carter by Garnet C. Wilkinson, assistant superintendent of schools. The invocation and benediction were said by the Rev. H. D. Tillman. Musical numbers were furnished by the All-High School Orchestra, under direction of Henry L. Grant. Diplomas were presented to thirteen graduates by Mrs. McNeill, as follows:

District Boy Scouts Seek Regional Title

Camping Champions Going to Compete in Test at Richmond.

Hoping to capture the Boy Scout intercouncil camping championship for this region, the camping team from Troop 17, champions of District of Columbia Council, will leave by bus at 6:45 o'clock this morning for Richmond to compete in the intercouncil finals today and tomorrow.

Hawley is scoutmaster, recently won the District championship in a contest at Braemar Forest, in the final elimination to select a team for the Richmond contest. The team scored a total of 917 out of a possible 1,000 points, and as this was done in a drizzling rain the boys hope for a much higher average at Richmond.

Linn C. Drake, Scout executive; Col. E. L. Mattice, assistant to the Scout executive, and Maj. James F. Hawley, scoutmaster of Troop 17, will accompany the boys to Richmond. The team is composed of Dean Longfellow, Jack Meany, Tom Blair, Don Fitzwater, William Hammers, jr., Myron Smith, Fred Kennard, jr., and Edward Duffy.

KLOTZ, COMMISSION UTILITIES ENGINEER, URGES HIGHER FARE

OUSTER IS EXPECTED AS RESULT OF LETTER

Federation Citizens Prepare to Fight Trolley Effort to Raise Income.

Capt. R. G. Klotz, engineer of the Public Utilities Commission, caused a furore in public utilities circles yesterday when he made public a letter to Ralph B. Fleharty, people's counsel, urging that the Utilities Commission increase car fares even higher than the new rate asked for by the Capital Traction Co. in its petition now formally before the commission.

Klotz's letter created nothing less than a sensation among the personnel of the commission and among leaders of the car riders who are preparing to fight the fare boost. Prompt and sharp action is to be taken by the Utilities Commission, and Klotz's days as the engineer of the commission are expected to be but few more.

Harleigh H. Hartman, acting chairman in the absence of Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, who is out of the city, sought to call a meeting of the commission to consider the matter immediately he was informed of the letter Klotz had made public. Col. William B. Ladue, Engineer Commissioner, was absent from the District Building, however, on an inspection tour with the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, of which he is a member, and the meeting will be held today.

Klotz Admits Authorship.

The first commission officials knew of the letter was after it had been published in an afternoon newspaper and Hartman was asked about it. He immediately summoned Klotz into his office and asked if he had written the letter as reported. "I did," said Klotz. "Did you make it public?" Hartman asked. "I did," Klotz said.

Klotz said that he had received no request from Fleharty, nor any other officer of the commission, for a statement of his opinion, except the general invitation contained in a memorandum sent by Fleharty to the citizens' associations and other civic organizations urging them to action in the car fare increase case.

So surprised was Hartman and others among the commission personnel when asked about the letter that it was several minutes before it was found. Klotz had written it in longhand and had asked to have it typed, and without being read it had been placed with other routine work to be done.

Citizens Prepare to Fight.

Klotz's letter urging increased fares as being inevitable was being typed by commission clerks at the very time that the public utilities committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations was meeting in the office of William McK. Clayton, chairman, in the Victory Building to devise ways and means of fighting the proposed increase.

Although no announcement was made as to the outcome of the committee meeting, due to the gag rule put into effect by Dr. George C. Havenner when he became president of the federation, it is learned that the committee agreed on a report to be made to the federation tomorrow night. The Federation is expected to adopt this report, which will be a restatement of that body's opposition to increased car fares, as well as to authorize the utilities committee chairman to carry the fight actively forward.

In his letter Klotz attacked every ground which will be used by Fleharty and car riders to fight the fare boost asked for. The excess earnings of the Capital Traction Co. during the war period, Klotz said, had been "shrewdly held and prudently used" in the postwar period.

Opposes Revaluation Move.

Turning to the Washington Railway & Electric Co. Klotz said that only the earnings from the Potomac Electric Power Co. sustained that car line because its "earnings from its railway operations are still far below anything like a reasonable rate of return on a fair value."

Klotz deprecated any move to have transportation properties revalued before higher fares are granted, declaring that revaluation "might possibly postpone for a time the increase in fare which is so obviously necessary," but would prove fruitless in the end. The car companies, he continued, have been maintaining a high degree of service "over a time of actually inadequate return," but how much longer they "can or will maintain this scale of service at a rate of fare that is by no means commensurate therewith is a matter of complete uncertainty."

Even if valuations were made again they might be found so high that it would be impossible to boost car fares high enough to pay a fair return, and the cost of the proceedings would be wasted.

Attacks Merger Proposals.

Klotz took a slap at the street car merger proposals, declaring that "whether the public would gain or lose through an actual merger of the present companies is a matter of considerable doubt." The promised economies which would result from a merger, he said, boiled down to reduced service.

The "arbitrary" rate of fare suggested by Klotz was a follows:

"Uniform fare for all street cars and buses. (Except as noted below.)

"Ten cents cash fare. Three tokens for 25 cents.

"School tickets, twelve for 75 cents.

"Free intracompany and intercompany transfers between all cars and bus companies (except as noted) with only sufficient restrictions to avoid loop riding or other forms of abuse.

Bus Connections Suggested.

"Bus connections to be graded as follows:

"Feeder lines: Bladensburg, Potomac Park, Massachusetts avenue, Randle Highlands, Chevy Chase loop, South Washington, Hillcrest, Benning, Park road, Woodley road, East Washington-Anacostia. Fares to be same as street car fares with free transfers to and from cars.

"Auxiliary lines: Burleith-Trinidad Conduit road, Rhode Island avenue. Fare 10 cents straight. Free transfers to cars. Transfers from cars on payment of 10 cents cash fare.

"Special lines: Chevy Chase coach, Cleveland Park coach, Hains Point, golf course. Fare to be same as at present.

"Since," Klotz concluded his letter, which was signed as engineer of the utilities commission, "there is no apparent doubt that an increase in fare is needed, and badly so, the sane and sensible procedure is unquestionably to establish a substantial rate that will provide for convenient and rapid transactions on the cars and will insure continued good service for the public, and to grant with it the long-desired and long-sought-for complete transfer system, devoid of extra charges and unnecessary complications."

4-H CLUB MEMBERS VISIT WHITE HOUSE

ALEXANDER GIVES TALK

A visit to the White House, where they were received by President Hoover, and a tour of a number of Government institutions featured yesterday's activities of the 300 delegates attending the 4-H Club Camp on the grounds of the Department of Agriculture.

Places visited on the tour were the Bureau of Engraving and Printing and the Aircraft and Arts and Industries buildings of the Smithsonian Institution.

Preceding the visit to the White House the delegates were addressed by John Alexander, of the American Youth Foundation. Mr. Alexander discussed the development of the boy and girl, and especially commended the influence of club work on the rural boys and girls enrolled in its activities

"Through the influence of club work, the boy or girl builds up a life that is symmetrical and balanced," Mr. Alexander said. "The 4-H Club idea is one of the soundest that ever has been applied to youth education."

Early yesterday evening the delegates held a campfire meeting and enjoyed a period of recreation directed by W. P. Jackson, of the Playground and Recreation Association of America.

Today the delegates will hold a meeting at the National Museum and will be addressed by Representative Ruth Bryan Owen, of Florida, and will hear a concert by the Orlando Reporter-Star Newsboys Band, of Orlando Fla. In the afternoon they will go to Griffith Stadium, see the Boston-Washington baseball game, and enroll Walter Johnson as an honorary member of the 4-H Club organization.

Taxi Driver Beats Autoist in Brawl

Silver Spring Man Seriously Hurt in Traffic Battle; Suspect Seized.

Elton J. Layton, 38 years old, of Silver Spring, Md., was knocked unconscious in a fight at the Peace Monument by a taxicab driver who hit Layton with his fist and then disappeared late yesterday afternoon. Layton had not recovered consciousness at an early hour this morning.

Police of the Sixth Precinct, who investigated, learned from witnesses that the dispute arose when the cab driver crowded Layton's automobile to the curb. Both machines stopped, and the drivers engaged in a dispute which was followed by the blow, police said.

Layton was taken to 26 Evarts street northeast in a passing taxicab, and thence to Sibley Hospital, where he was treated for the coma caused by the blow. His condition was regarded as serious.

Late last night Detective Sergt. B. C. Kuehling arrested Harris Blandford Grey, 28 years old, 124 B street northeast, a chauffeur, on a charge of assault. Gray is alleged to have struck the blow and then fled. The taxicab, police said, was owned by Walter J. Norris, 124 B street northeast. Grey was held last night at the First Precinct.

Girl Hurt Falling Through Window.

Gaidra Santivo, 6 years old, of 818 East Capitol street, received cuts about the right arm and bruises when she fell through a pane of glass in a first story window onto the porch of the home early yesterday afternoon. After Medical aid at Casualty Hospital she was taken home.

Playing on Motorcycle, Girl Suffers Broken Leg

Evelyn Riedel, 9 years old, of Harrisburg, Pa., stopping at the Valley Vista apartments, Twentieth street and Belmont road northwest, received a fractured leg yesterday afternoon when she attempted to climb onto a parked police motorcycle in an alley at the rear of the apartments, and the motorcycle overturned, pinning her beneath it.

The motorcycle, police said, had been parked in the alley by Policeman Jeremiah Mills, attached to the Fourteenth Precinct, who was attempting to serve a warrant in the Valley Vista apartments. The child saw it and attempted to board it in play, police said.

She was extricated from under the machine, which had caught her leg, by Mills, and taken by him to Garfield Hospital, where the broken leg was set.

20-Year Drug Taker Is Stricken in Cell

Admits He Is Accustomed to 16 Grains of Morphine Daily.

Suffering intense pain from lack of his ration of 16 grains of morphine, which he told police he had taken daily for the past 20 years, Harold Earl Casson, 41 years old, arrested early yesterday for investigation at 103 Second street northwest, last night was seized with violent cramps in his cell at the First Precinct.

Police at the precinct summoned an Emergency Hospital ambulance, and Dr. I. Rutkoski administered a small quantity of the drug to alleviate his suffering. Casson, however, remained at the precinct last night.

Casson was taken into custody for investigation yesterday morning when Detective Sergts. J. F. Waldron and Thomas J. Sweeney arrested his companion, James Henry Barnard, 34 years old, as a fugitive from justice. Both men were arrested at the Second street address.

Barnard is alleged to have forged traveler's checks, involving a large sum of money, in New Haven, Conn. Authorities in that city last night telegraphed District police that they were sending an officer to return Barnard to New Haven. Casson will probably be questioned by the New Haven officer upon arrival, police said last night.

Mrs. Dreifuss Receives Bulk of Woog Estate

Mrs. Malvine W. Dreyfuss, of 1753 Lanier place northwest, is one of the principal beneficiaries under the terms of the will of her late uncle, Herman Woog, which was filed yesterday for probate in New York City, according to advices received here.

Baby, 21 Months Old, Hit By Truck, Believed Unhurt

Infant, in Accident in Front of Home, to Be X-Rayed Today.

Although struck down by a heavy furniture truck yesterday afternoon, Edward Lee Sherman, 21 months old, of 6 Second street northeast, is not believed to be seriously injured.

The child was rushed to Casualty Hospital by William Cooper, of 1920 Eighteenth street northwest, a passing motorist. Dr. J. Rogers Young, who examined the baby, stated that in his opinion he was only slightly hurt. The doctor stated that an X-ray examination will be made today to determine if the infant's skull is fractured, but expressed the opinion that such an injury is unlikely, due to his age.

The accident occurred directly in front of the apartment building in which the baby lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sherman. In some manner the little one, who was on the sidewalk with his mother, escaped her attention and darted into the street and directly into the path of the truck, according to police reports.

Police said the accident was unavoidable, according to their information. No charge was made against the driver of the truck, Marion Romeo Robinson, colored, 24 years old, of 309 R street northwest.

EDWARD LEE SHERMAN.

CAPITAL RAIDS SEEN START OF DRY DRIVE

Letterman Squad Obtains 980 Quarts of Liquor in Two Places.

YOUTH OF 19 IS ARRESTED

Two raids in speedy succession within a single block about noon yesterday by Sergt. Oscar J. Letterman's vice squad, yielding 980 quarts of liquor, one arrest, a truck and miscellaneous paraphernalia, was foreseen in police circles as the opening of a new dry clean-up drive.

The squad, headed by Sergt. Letterman and including Officers R. J. Cox and G. C. McCarron, swooped down on a private garage at 221 East Capitol street to seize 48 quarts of liquor in half-gallon jars and arrest Fred George Dambrosio, 19 years old, of 228 First street southwest, on charges of possession of liquor.

The officers also reported the finding there of one 200-gallon "still" and various implements for manufacturing the contraband. The garage had been under surveillance for several days and Dambrosio was apprehended when he entered the structure about 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

Shortly before noon the trio had uncovered a truck loaded with 932 quarts of liquor in a private garage in the rear of 209 East Capitol street. Officers during the preceding night had become suspicious at the sight of the tarpaulin-covered machine rolling through the streets in that section and had given chase, but lost sight of the car in the East Capitol street neighborhood.

Alongside the truck, bearing a District of Columbia license, were a mattress and a leather coat. No arrests have been made.

Plan for Memorial On Mall Is Pushed

George Washington Group Says Work on Building Has Progressed.

Plans are well under way by the finance committee of the George Washington Memorial Association for the completion of the George Washington Memorial Building on the Mall at Sixth and B streets northwest, granted as a site by the United States through act of Congress.

The association, which was incorporated under the laws of the District of Columbia in September, 1898, was formed for the purpose of carrying out George Washington's wish for the promotion of science, literature and art and to provide an institution for the "general diffusion of knowledge."

The building will be one of practical utility, planned to serve as a meeting place for the American people when, through their respective organizations, they assemble here in Washington. According to the plan now being developed by the association, of which Mrs. Henry F. Dimock is president, the memorial will be the gift of the people of the United States. The campaign to raise the necessary funds will be Nation-wide. The association has been authorized to raise the $10,000,000 needed to erect the memorial.

Divorce Suit Charges Fireman With Cruelty

Clarence Kohler Bunn, a District fireman, of 1823 Wyoming avenue northwest, was sued for limited divorce on grounds of cruelty yesterday in the District Supreme Court by Mrs. Lillian Beatrice Bunn, employed as housekeeper at 1339 Fourteenth street northwest.

Mrs. Bunn declared she was married to the defendant on August 30, 1921, and was forced to separate from him last January 4. Bunn began drinking, absenting himself from home and associating with other women last fall, the wife charged, and treated her cruelly. On one occason, she stated, they started for Baltimore in his automobile, but when they reached Sixteenth and Taylor streets northwest, the fireman, without provocation, threw her out of the car and proceeded on his way. Attorney Vivian O. Hill appeared for the wife.

TOUCH OF REALISM GIVEN "SHERWOOD" BY THREAT OF RAIN

CAST OF 100 SUPPORTS TWO CHIEF CHARACTERS

Big Crowd Views Presentation, Although Weather Holds Down Attendance.

Mother Nature added her bit to the staging of "Sherwood," a drama of Robin Hood's time, last night at the Sylvan Theater on the Monument Grounds by the Community Drama Guild of Washington. Enacted on the greensward of the theater stage, which represented the Sherwood Forest of old England, the play had also a bit of England's famous rain and a background of lightning.

The threat of a shower held down attendance to some extent, although the seats facing the stage were two-thirds filled, while a crowd of 1,500 filled vantage points on the hillside surrounding the scene. Many of these left at the end of the first act, when a gentle shower hinted at a storm to come, but the performance was completed before any heavy downpour.

Frederick C. Oechsner, as Robin Hood and Lahuna Clinton, as Lady Marian, his sweetheart, gave remarkably clever performances, aided by a supporting cast which numbered more than 100 and which brought into the spotlight a score of characters who ranked with the stars of the play, except that their bits were not as lengthy.

Rosenthal Plays Villain.

Aaron M. Rosenthal was a decidedly villainous villain as Prince John, brother of Richard, King of England, while Anne Ives, Lady Marian's Fool in the role of Shadow-of-a-Leaf, played a difficult part with the ease of a veteran of the stage.

Splendid lighting effects, together with gorgeous costumes, added to the entertainment, while music was furnished by the United States Marine Band Orchestra, with Capt. Taylor Branson directing.

Among the special features which won applause were court dances by the attendants of Prince John; dances by the fairies, and the scene in which Robin Hood, wounded, is found at Kirklee Priory. The background of nuns in this scene was a striking picture, while their singing at the twilight added to the effectiveness of the arrangement.

Dorey Directs Play.

J. Milnor Dorey as director of the entire cast earned praise for the smooth and efficient manner in which the huge cast was handled, while Edward A. Mueller was responsible for the ballads, chants, dances and musical themes used during the presentation of "Sherwood."

The story was that of the work of Robin Hood to right the wrongs by Prince John during the absence of King Richard while on a crusade. The love theme was woven cleverly into the historical background, but the play had an unusually tragic ending with Robin Hood, his sweetheart and Shadow-of-a-Leaf lying dead upon the green sward.

Prominent in the cast were Harry Wescott, James Otis Porter, Edwin Paul, Hannah Stolar, C. Newell Atkinson, Amy Clement Leavitt, Mary Ellen Wager, Milton D. Korman, Caroline McKinley, Clarke Beach, Cricket Caukin, Maurice Jarvis, Hilmar R. Baukhage, Clarence Ruebsam, Craig S. Carmack, Robert Davidson, Edith Sears, Grace Peters Johnson, Edna Ellis Hilton, Dorothy A. Lawrence, Esteban Cerdan, Lucien E. Kerns, Francis McGarraghy, Nell M. Childs, Melvin Y. Wilt, Yvonne Levy, Andrew Dent, Jane Plummer Rice and Ruth Molyneaux.

Other Characters.

Ladies and gentlemen of the court included Anne Darlington, Alle E. Epperly, Virginia Gummel, Stasia Harris, Esther Holmes, Dorothy Koepke, Lillian Lichtenberg, Harriet Mast, Marguerite Paul, Kathryn L. Rea, Elsie P. Wildman, Mary Brooks, David Martin, Charles Foster, Albert C. Hall, Melvin Y. Wilt.

Fairy dancers included Sandy Alexander, Virginia Alexander, Virginia Burnett, Ruth Critchfield, Martha Fisher, Elizabeth Jenkins, Judy Lyeth, Virginia Miller, Pauline Oak, Molly Pagan, Dorothy Parson, Anna Schultz, Ruth Shoemaker, Preble Walter, Florence Wingate.

Milton Burka, James Brown, Chester Jones, Thurston Lady, Frank Kemon, William Jenkins, Malcolm Shutters, A. Wilbur Mann, Robert Miller, George Miller, Walter A. Crow and Bennet Wood were foresters and undersheriffs.

Peasant folk were represented by Harry Westcott, C. Newell Atkinson, Edwin Paul, Melvin Y. Wilt, Hannah Stolar, Amy Leavitt, Mary Wager, Dorothea Lewis, Sue Shorter and Martha Byrd Kemon.

The nuns forming the chorus included Isabel Allen, Katherin Baird, Kathlene Berry, Beulah Brown, Frances Cole, Agnes Cruickshanks, Susie Jones, Janet Long, Margaret Marean, Charlotte Monteath, Violet Murray, Adele Nye, Ada Oertley, Lillian Rector, Louise Russell, Ruth Simpson, Blanche Stoddard, Anne Tennyson, Catherine Wheeler and Nancy Williamson.

All the players were chosen from various dramatic groups of the city by the Community Drama Guild.

Wife of Music Teacher Files Maintenance Suit

Suit for maintenance against Samuel Drazin, employed as a music teacher at the Jewish Foster Home, was filed in the District Supreme Court yesterday by Mrs. Sarah Drazin, operator of a grocery store at 1219 E street northwest. Mrs. Drazin charged her husband deserted her, and the revenue obtained from operation of the store is not sufficient for the needs of her and their five children.

According to the complaint, the parties were married in Binghamton, N. Y., in March 1911. Marital difficulties arose in 1921, when the husband instituted a divorce action in local courts, but a reconciliation was effected and the action was dismissed. The wife declared they then lived together until September, 1927, when he deserted her. Attorneys Louis L. Whitstone, Harry Whelan and William O'Connell appeared for the wife.

Deaf Mute Janitor Hit By Car at Crossing

Emmett Fresher, a colored deaf and dumb man, 43 years old, janitor at Providence Hospital, was seriously injured last night when he was struck by a street car while crossing the intersection of Third and G streets northwest. He was taken to Emergency Hospital and treated for lacerations to his head and body and a fractured skull.

Later he was transferred to Providence Hospital.

Speaking Generally

By JOHN J. DALY

THE man who had shaken the hand of John L. Sullivan leaned back in his chair, triumphant. Rather superior he felt, recounting his great achievement. Poor fellows, we had shaken the hand that had shaken the hand of the great. Chagrin, though, was short-lived.

Came an invitation. We were to have tea with Red Tomahawk, chief of the Sioux Nation, the Indian who slayed Sitting Bull.

Chief Red Tomahawk is visiting Washington the first time in 30-odd years. On his last trip we were in school. Now that vacation is here we called for the car and went to meet Red Tomahawk; or, as we learned to call him in Indian, Kanrpti-luta.

In no time the yallah chariot—an affectionate nick-name we have for that old steed of the asphalts—halted at Sixteenth and K streets, shying at the red light abaft Harry Wardman's Indian Club which some call the Carlton, where the chief is staying. Strange what an effect a red light has on a yellow cab!

We alighted, my secretary, Don Martinez, and I, and went immediately into conference with the clerk at the desk and a bell-hop. We were shown, after quite a climb in the elevator, to the sumptuous suite assigned only to royalty.

CHIEF RED TOMAHAWK sat in his tepee a aiting us, his mammoth frame squat in a Louis de Quinze fireside chair of the old Hepplewaite era. Imagination gripped us, and fancy swung away to the foothills of Dakota, away out thar where Indian men are bucks, the women squaws, and the babies papooses. It is there that the eldest son of a chief is called Creske—not quite like the 5 and 10 cent store man, who spells his name with a "K"—and the eldest daughter of the chief, Winona.

Imagine the thrill of meeting Red Tomahawk, who made Sitting Bull, another Indian, bite the dust! The 80-year-old Chieftain rose to meet us and right gladly we rushed to shake the hand that, in its day, had shaken such a mean tomahawk. After all, John L. Sullivan merely beat Jake Kilrain and that tribe in a squared ring. Here was Red Tomahawk, in person, standing pat, the man who stretched Sitting Bull his full length beneath the hyacinth and cacti in the valley of the Little Big Horn.

The chief's English—or, American, as the Foggy Bottom men insist—is one with our knowledge of the Indian language. So an interpreter dealt himself the third hand—Mr. Frank Zahn, a graduate of Carlisle.

Weather, being what it is, naturally formed the topic of conversation. It developed that the heat had got the better of the chief, who at that moment was longing to go back to nature. He was arrayed in a simple pair of gray pants—not trousers—a khaki-colored shirt, open at the throat, such as we wore in that man's army, and a pair of moccasins. His socks had wilted.

Whatever he wore, and though no war-bonnet topped his iron-gray locks, parted in the middle, braided, and hanging down his back, he was our idea of a hero—a real, old-fashioned Indian warrior.

* * * *

RED TOMAHAWK still stands as an arrow, when he stands still, like a wooden Indian outside a cigar store. He measures 6-feet-2 in his beaded moccasins that resemble very much an old pair of bedroom slippers we've got at home, and weighs 220 pounds; at least he weighed that during the interview. He weighed 222 when he landed in Washington, losing 2 pounds in transit between the station and the hotel. The chief fanned himself continuously during our visit.

"Umph," grunted Chief Tomahawk, the interview nearing its end.

"He means," we divined, "its hot—damned hot!"

"Right hard on a man his age," explained Mr. Zahn.

"He's been through many a battle, though, hotter than this," Don Martinez said, admiringly.

"Yes," nodded the interpreter, who rose to get a pipe of peace that the chief's fourth wife made for Vice President Curtis, "the old man has been through the mill. I think he'd better lie down for a while. He needs a rest."

The interpreter motioned the chief to get up and go into the bedroom. Obedient as a little boy—when little boys are obedient—the celebrated chieftain followed his guide out of the room, walking Indian file, and so to bed. On the way out Red Tomahawk shook hands with us, smiled and said, in remarkably good English, or American, his only word, "Good-by!"

* * * *

IN a jiffy we were on the trail of the man who had shaken the hand of John L. Sullivan. As luck would have it, he had passed out of the picture, overcome by the heat. So Don and I had no opportunity to gloat over him, the piker; but some day, when he again starts to reminisce, we'll stand right up on the hillside and shout to the wide-open world:

"Here are the men who shook the hand of Red Tomahawk, who met Sitting Bull in a standing fight and made of him a good Indian."

POPE ADDS BLESSING TO MISSION CRUSADE

Delegates Are Warned There Will Be No "Whoopee" at Convention.

YOUTH OF CHURCH LAUDED

A benediction and blessing from Pope Pius XI, and a warning for discipline to the effect "there'll be no whoopee at this convention," featured the formal opening of the sixth general convention of the Catholic Students' Mission Crusade at the Catholic University last night. Approximately 1,000 delegates from every State in the Union had registered during the day, and more are expected today.

"The Holy Father is delighted with the work of the Catholic Students' Mission Crusade," the message from Pope Pius XI, received by cable from the Vatican read. "My benediction and blessing upon the convention."

The Very Rev. Mgr. Frank A. Thill, Ph. D., national secretary-treasurer of the Catholic Students' Mission Crusade, in a brief address, emphasized with warning, told the assembled students, most of whom are yet in their teens, that it was their convention and they were expected to attend every meeting and keep every rule.

The Most Rev. John T. McNicholas, president of the Crusade, who was to have made the opening address, could not be present.

The Right Rev. John M. McNamara, D. D., Auxiliary Bishop of Baltimore, extended a welcome to the delegates to the archdiocese of Baltimore. In his address he paid high compliments to the young people of the church.

"The young people bring new life, new hope to the church," he said. "They are the rod and staff that comfort us," he said.

Passing to the work of the Mission Crusade, he declared that "those who lack interest in the Catholic missions are not true Catholics."

In behalf of the Catholic University, the Right Rev. Msgr. James H. Ryan, D. D., rector, expressed the appreciation of the university in having the convention as its guests, and said it was inspiring to have the convention upon the university ground.

The convention is to continue until Sunday noon, the delegates following a strict schedule from arising at 6 a. m. until retiring at 10 p. m. A solemn pontifical military mass will be celebrated this morning at 9 o'clock in the stadium. General sessions are to be held in the gymnasium.

HOT WAVE IS FATAL TO MAN OF 80; FIVE OTHERS PROSTRATED

KIOSK REGISTERS 97; RELIEF COMING TODAY

Weather Bureau Promises Showers—Official Maximum 91 Degrees.

Continuation of the heat wave which for more than a week has held Washington in its grip yesterday caused one death and sent five persons to hospitals suffering from prostration.

Relief is promised today by the Weather Bureau if predicted showers arrive.

Isaac M. Bailey, 80-year-old veteran of the Indian wars, and an inmate of the Soldiers' Home, died suddenly yesterday. Doctors at the home ascribed his death due to heart failure superinduced by heat.

Henry Brooks, 33 years old, of 2298 Champlain street, collapsed at 2:50 o'clock yesterday afternoon in front of 1115 Fifteenth street northwest. He was removed to Emergency Hospital and treated for prostration.

Joseph H. Augustus, colored, 51 years old, of 2307 Champlain street northwest, was taken to Casualty Hospital following his collapse at his home. Doctors said he was suffering from heat prostration.

Aged Woman Overcome.

Miss Mary W. Gass, 75 years old, of No. 1 Riggs Court, Du Pont Circle, in an effort to escape from the heat, ran out of her apartment into the street. She was scantily clad. Crowds surrounded her and she was rushed to Casualty Hospital. She was resting well last night and in no danger, the hospital attaches said.

Donald Stewart, 21, while painting a house at First and K streets southeast, fainted and was taken to Casualty Hospital. He was revived shortly, but he had been so completely prostrated that he was detained for hours. Following recovery he was allowed to return to his home, Bradbury Heights, Md.

Col. Frank Lampler (retired), 47 years old, chief engineer of the U. G. I. Contracting Co., of Philadelphia, was overcome by heat while riding on a streetcar downtown. He was taken to Emergency Hospital and treated.

Kiosk Reading Is 97.

Weather Bureau reports show that the maximum in the shade and under ventilation was 91 degrees at 3:45 o'clock, and the minimum for yesterday was 68 degrees at 5 o'clock in the morning. Kiosk readings of the thermograph, which is in the sun and on the street, registering both direct and reflected heat, the heat people suffer in the streets, showed the maximum of 97 at 4 o'clock, which is 10 degrees above the average for the same day for the last 33 years. Humidity registered at 36 degrees maximum, about the average for the day.

Washington, however, is not the only place suffering, for weather reports show the entire country in a sweltering belt with the thermometer at Yuma, Ariz., registering 110 degrees in the shade, the hottest temperature in the country. The coolest place was Yellowstone National Park with only 54 degrees maximum registered.
